Dear Mary Hawthorn: I am a divorced woman, 28, with a child and expecting another by a married man. When I first realized my pregnancy he said he would go away with me. But now that the time has come for us to leave town, he has written me to say that he is not coming.

I recently resigned my job because of my condition. I have no money saved, no place to go and nobody to help me. He was introduced to my aunt who lives with me as my husband; also to a few others in that guise. Now I don't know what to say.

Please advise me what to do. I can understand why he lied to me all the way, to the very last minute, and doesn't want me to tell his parents. Yet I have to tell mine so why not his? The agent is essentially different from mine. Please answer soon. I can't drift much longer.

Dear T.G.: In the town through which you write, there is a Florence Critchfield Home for unmarried mothers. You find it listed in the telephone directory under "Florence (for Florence)" and I suggest that you make an appointment with the social service department of the home, asking for assistance in your problem. In the event the home is carrying an overload and can't admit new applicants just now for a honeymoon in Europe.

St. Dunstan's University is a member of the teaching staff of the RCAF base in Summerside.

The bridegroom attended Prince of Wales College and in the autumn will be continuing his studies at St. Dunstan's University.

Although the bridegroom's immediate family was unable to attend, many of his friends from Germany, Poland, and Czechoslovakia were present.

Out of the province guests included Mr. and Mrs. Ross McCarthy of Washington, D.C., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Picone and children of New York, and Mrs. James Collins of Boston, Mass.

P.S.: An alcoholic usually is not a violent person. In fact, he is usually a person of great conviction of being a total failure in life. With God's help he has to learn how to be a success in love.

Dear G.G.: Only those who have lived closely with the problem of alcoholism, responsibly utilizing every possible, in resolute efforts to conquer it, can fully appreciate the understanding character of the AA program.

He wrote in effect that in 1960, when the AA fellowship was still in its infancy (comparatively), a tough-minded doctor and well known medical columnist of that era, the late Dr. Loosan Gledhill, wrote his hat in grateful salute to the great work it was doing.

He wrote in effect that "this informal group already has a done more to defeat John Barleycorn than the combined efforts of medicine, psychiatry, the WCTU (Women's Christian Temperance Union) and other white ribbon crusaders and prohibitionists put together."

FLAVOR your food favorites with a dash of ingenuity; sparkle them with a dash of imagination; you'll be well on your way to being a gourmet.

Two top teenage cooks from Amherst, Nova Scotia, are putting their own stamp on the leading teenage magazine's ninth annual "Favorite Recipes" contest.

Both Donna and Donald ("Butch") Browning practice cooking at home every week. They like to experiment. So their dinners often are a special treat for the family or a new dish from their own ranges from a Five-Minute Deviled Egg to a Pineapple Sherbet.

Butch presents a delightful recipe for a vegetable terrine. He suggests that you make a career of cooking. His ambition: first to get a rooming house, then off to France to train to be a chef.

His ambition When I asked Butch what he expected from his career as a chef, he thought a moment, looking up an imaginary scene where several diners in an elegant restaurant were seated at a table. "I want to be a chef and in lieu of a French-speaking master, I intend to find a red-headed

PATTY GRANT FRANK FOWLER ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Dr. and Mrs. A.R. Grant, Summerside, announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Ellen, to Frank J.P. Fowler, son of Mr. John's Newfoundland. The wedding will take place on August 17, 10 am, at St. Paul's Church, Summerside.

ELLEN'S DIARY Summer's Sunny Haze Hangs Over Farmlands

And now the faint blue summer sun hangs again above the morning's farmlands, bringing our farmers to another nice hay-making day. We saw the live green of a wind-rippled hayrack, turn to a maye shade as the sun moved in the wake of the moving-king, heard the beat of a tractor as it pulled a hayrack moving in the wake of the moving-king that "Shall I move only a little, or a lot?"

"We could fancy that the farmer pondered as he scanned earth and sky for some sign of a storm, but he decided, which would answer it.

"That's the trouble nowadays," a farmer visiting Alderley, commented this evening. "We have come to depend so much on the forecasts we have forgotten to watch for the weather-signs once so familiar to us."

"That's a truth," James nodded.

"Do you mind old Mr. D-?" the visitor questioned.

"He could fancy that the farmer pondered as he scanned earth and sky for some sign of a storm, but he decided, which would answer it.

"Sometimes she would go by the name of 'The Old Lady'."

"I've heard her."

"There's a mean man in it to show the underside of his hat's what's down into coils, or the old-timers too, to look at the sky and the weather. It was a sure sign of falling weather."
