

NORTH SIDE IS MECCA FOR THOUSANDS

A red letter day was chalked up yesterday for the attractions of the North Side where thousands beat the heat with a dip in the briny. The family group dominated in many areas with Dad and Mom participating in the children's activities. Stanhope above, had its counterpart at Dalvay, Brackley, Cavendish and other well known vacation areas.

Teachers Help Asked In Planning For Visit

The department of Education has issued instructions to all teachers in the province asking for their co-operation in the filling of a form for any school which plans to participate in welcoming Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth and His Royal Highness Prince Phillip to this province on July 30.

The form requests the name of the school, time of arrival in Charlottetown, the number of children and the names of the leaders.

The children will assemble on the grounds of Prince of Wales

College and adjoining Kings Square. Positions along the route will be given to the leaders.

Her Majesty is expected to arrive at 9:45, and following the morning ceremonies, she will attend a rally for all the school children in the coliseum at the Exhibition Grounds at 2:00 p.m.

While the Queen is attending horse racing after the rally, the children will line the route from the building along Hawthorne Avenue towards the city. Directions will be given over a loud speaker system.

Labor Leader Warns Powerful Union Chief

LONDON (Reuters) — Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskell bluntly warned Britain's most powerful trade union chief Saturday that no one can dictate party policy on nuclear weapons.

In an unusually candid speech, Gaitskell threw back the challenge posed by Frank Cousins, general secretary of the 1,300,000-member Transport and General Workers Union.

The union's annual conference last week overwhelmingly rejected the Labor party's new plan for the creation of a world "non-nuclear club" excluding the United States and Russia.

Gaitskell Saturday said it is "an imaginative and far-sighted plan" which might dissuade governments which do not yet have nuclear weapons to abandon programs for developing them.

Cousins' union has called for Britain to halt permanently nuclear weapons production and tests instead of waiting for the formation of a non-nuclear club.

Gaitskell, who addressed a Labor party rally at Workington in Northwestern England, pulled no punches in blasting Cousins' views.

"It is hard to understand the mentality of those who whatever their politics—they include some strange bedfellows—describe our policy as bringing us no nearer to peace," he said.

"Party decisions on these matters are not dictated by one man whether he be the leader of the party, our spokesman on foreign affairs (Aneurin Bevan) or the general secretary of the Transport and General Workers' Union."

"The non-nuclear club policy was formulated jointly last month by the leaders of the Labor party and the trade union movement."

Strawberry Exchange Adds New Mixer To Speed Process

The Charlottetown Strawberry Exchange has added a new machine which automatically controls the mixing of sugar and berries in the canning process.

The new machine is expected to speed up the whole process and also to insure uniformity of the product.

The mixer automatically measures out the right ratio of sugar to berries and when the quantity of berries is below a certain level, the machine cuts off the supply of sugar.

The Exchange has also installed a new conveyor belt to take the berries from the huller to the mixing hopper.

The president of the Exchange, Norman MacLeod, says so far only berries from the older plants have been harvested. The berry crop from the new plants is expected to be considerably lighter than in other years. The plant will be in full production this week.

It can be assumed that completion of negotiations will mean that Thomson will move his headquarters from Edinburgh to London.

Asked why he was bidding for the Kemsley papers, Thomson replied:

"It's the same objective I always have. Primarily it's my business. I like to have more newspapers."

BUYS 12-ROOM VILLA

In a telephone interview Saturday from his home in Edinburgh — formerly the residence of royal surgeon Sir James Learmonth — Thomson bubbled with enthusiasm over recent developments, including his purchase of a 12-room villa at Cap d'Ail on the French Riviera, near Lord Beaverbrook's residence. Thomson bought the villa from French actress Arlette Dorgere.

The publisher ducked comment on where the money comes from for the deal now under negotiation. The Financial Times, in a profile of Thomson, notes that Scottish television, in which the publisher has a controlling interest, "appears to stand out by its prosperity in a field where prosperity is the rule."

AMERICAN INFLUENCE

"Canadians are after all North Americans, exposed to the almost overwhelming American influence. They cling to monarchy the parliamentary system and Commonwealth ties more stubbornly than they might otherwise do because they feel a vital need to assert themselves against the risk of subversion in the American way of life.

"It is not surprising that their

Truce

SUMS UP

Maurice Couve de Murville, the French minister, summed it up this way:

"This time perhaps it will be possible to arrive at a limited concrete arrangement on the problems before us."

U. S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter used these words: "Although I do not come here with high hopes; I believe it is possible, with goodwill on both sides, to reach an agreement."

Together with Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd of Britain, Herter and Couve de Murville were due to resume their sessions with Gromyko this afternoon in the Palais des Nations.

Sunday night the Western three scheduled an informal strategy meeting with Foreign Ministers Heinrich von Brentano of West Germany and Giuseppe Peila of Italy.

Gromyko, flying in Saturday, proclaimed that "the success which the people so urgently desire will be achieved... if there is a true interest on the part of the western powers."

The broad outline of a possible agreement appeared to be emerging. It would involve the freezing of the present situation in Berlin for several years while a special commission of the four powers sought to work out an over-all settlement. In the meantime one and possibly several summit conferences might be arranged.

attitude to the Crown often differs from British custom."

Fry's article, perhaps more thoughtful than some of the off-hand judgments cabled back to Britain in the spot stories of correspondents—accompanying the Royal Tour, includes a statement by Mayor Nathan Phillips of Toronto that Toronto people are "more loyal than Britons" and that attacks on the Queen are aimed at gaining notoriety.

TELEVISION PROGRAM

Another British publication, the weekly magazine The Spectator, comments on reports reaching here of the first stage of the tour. The Spectator's columnist, writing above the non de plume Pharos, says he has yet to come across an informed report of the tour that does not "at least hint" at exasperation with the tedious nature of the program.

"Such royal progresses are at least years out of date," says the columnist. "They are fair neither to the Queen nor to the people who want to see her; and this particular tour appears to have done more harm than good."
