United Church Union Recalled By Speaker

ALBERTON — Rev. M. K. Charman was guest preacher at a service in O'Leary United Church Thursday when the congregations of West Prince assembled to celebrate the 40th anniversary of church union.

Mr. Charman, now retired and living in Moncton, has served the church on a number of pastoral charges in this province. In commenting upon the union of 1925, which brought together the Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian Churches in Canada, and a number of local union churches, Mr. Charman described it as "an attack on the walls that separated the churches."

Recalling the first meeting of the Maritime Conference of the United Church he said "it seemed that all the flavors of dissensions and differences were closed. It was a mountain-top experience to meet in that atmosphere of brotherly love."

From recollections of the past Mr. Charman turned to the future. "The work must go on," he emphasized. "We belong to a great church and a great church must do great deeds. She has had consecrated men and women serving others in many ways and at great cost—she must go on if she is to be the church God would have her to be."

The following students received certificates on completion of their commercial course.

A certificate for bookkeeping, typewriting, proficiency in shorthand, prize for shorthand, and typing, awarded to Patsy Kennedy.

Certificate for bookkeeping, typewriting, and a prize for bookkeeping, Frank Martin.

Certificates for bookkeeping and a certificate for typewriting awarded to Florence Kennedy, Helen Kennedy, Mary Shea, Mary Conway, Mary Murphy.

The guest speaker, Peter M. Jungermann, BA, speaking on the opportunity, success, and ambition in ones life said a man who is doing his best each day is truly alive, but the man who did his best yesterday is starting to die. He spoke on the thousands leaving school each year as "Trail Blazers" not knowing which trail to blaze.

Business people all across Canada and the U.S.A., he told the graduates, are looking for young men and women with ambition. Further education he said is essential.

He also spoke on the Cultured Arts Foundation at Tignish. "Make room for culture," he said, "to put something worth while into your lives."

Other speakers were: Everett Broderick, Rev. Patrick Walsh, Rev. A. Pendergast, Rev. C. MacDonald, Wilson J. Shea, Alfred Handrahan.

HAD FAITH
"I had a great faith in the people who put me there," said White. "Also I had a great faith in my own God. I couldn't take a token for each religion in the country, but I took the three I was most familiar with. I think this is probably the most important thing I had going for me."

The astronaut's wives sat with their husbands' parents in the audience at the manned spacecraft centre auditorium.

The major thing he felt when stepping from the spacecraft, White said, was "a feeling of accomplishment."

White said he knew before he left the spacecraft that his conversation during his walk would be broadcast to the entire United States.

"Prior to going out I thought, 'what do you say to 194,000,000 people when you're looking down on them from space?'"

White said. "And this flashed through my head as I got out. . . and the solution became very obvious to me as I stepped out. I said, 'they don't want me to talk to them up here. They want to hear what we're doing up here.'"

VIEW CLEAR
White was surprised at how he could see with the unaided eye.

"I could see much greater detail than I could from an aircraft flying at 40,000 feet. . . you could see the outlines of cities, roads. You could see the wakes of ships at sea. . . at night I was impressed with the clarity of lights, outlining cities. . . one, I believe it was Sydney (Australia), it was very clear. It looked like a fine string of lights—a fine spider web of lights."

Besides this, he could see airport runways and even small lakes in Texas.

White got a sunglasses view of the world—because of the gold visor to protect the eyes from the searing sun. But it didn't alter the rich colors very much, the startling royal blues and deep greens and the whites of earth.

"The view was spectacular. The one I remember most is when we came over Florida and I could see the whole state, Cuba, Puerto Rico and the complete chain of islands."

White said that when he stepped from the spacecraft, he had "no sensation of falling, little sensation of speed." He could see the earth turning beneath him, and said the view was spectacular.

LAGOS, Nigeria (Reuters)—Ghana came under heavy fire from the Ivory Coast, Niger and Upper Volta at Friday's session of the Organization of African Unity Ministerial Council. The countries' foreign ministers accused Ghana of supporting subversive forces, sending them to Peking and Cuba and helping them to prepare rebellions in their home countries.

De Gaulle Visits Bonn In Chilly Atmosphere

By HAROLD KING
BONN (Reuters) — French President de Gaulle and West German Chancellor Erhard began two days of talks Friday as their two countries were reported to have reached agreement on increased co-operation in defence projects.

No flags were out for de Gaulle's arrival by air, although the police lined the route the president's car took into Bonn.

The diplomatic atmosphere was chilly and public interest was slight. West German diplomatic sources saw little hope of achieving any major agreement during the talks.

But while the two leaders talked for an hour their respective ministers agreed on increased co-operation in defence projects and more consultation on tactical and strategic problems, informed West German sources said.

What is a FATHER?

He is the man who leaves your home every morning to go to work, and returns every evening growling and grumbling, but it only takes a smile and a cheerful "Hello Dear" from his Wife or a Hi Dad from one of the children to take all the growl and grumble out and replace it with a smile and a cheerful answer.

He is also the one who lays down the rules and regulations for the children and he may be the one who gives all the lickings. But it hurts him almost as much as it does them.

He is probably the one who forgets his wedding date and his birthdays too. You may be able to count on his being late for dinner and then forgetting to call you. And no doubt he forgot to drop the letter in the post office. You may find him walking home and forgetting the car downtown.

BUT there is another side to Dad. He is the one who can really understand when feelings are hurt. His gentle words and tender hands can smooth away the days trial and tribulations.

HE'S the guy who washes the car and takes the family out for a drive when he has more important things he could be doing.

HE'S the guy who sits in the stands and roots for his son at the game and always makes him feel better whether he won or lost.

HE'S the man who takes time to listen to his daughter about how mean that brother was today, or bucks up her spirits after that boyfriend turns out not to be too good.

HE'S the man who mother likes to have home, even if he is underfoot. There is just no way to describe the Father that you have at home. And there is no one who can ever take his place.

GOD BLESS THAT IMPERFECT MAN AND MAY HE NEVER CHANGE
