

Goes To Bat for 65 And Older Class; Urges Action

OTTAWA (CP) — A prominent woman member of the Senate Wednesday the time has come for a revision in the thinking that people are too old to work at 65 and the government should take the lead.

Senator Nancy Hodges (L—British Columbia), herself 66, said that while science predicts longer life spans, the feeling in Canada seems to be: "Too old at 45 and get out at 65." People seeking jobs at 40 are told they are too old. People were automatically pensioned at 65, some of them left in "tragic" circumstances.

Many of these older people, she said, are creating unemployment problems on the west coast, to which they are attracted by the climate.

SHOULD TAKE LEAD

She thought this "quite wrong" and told the Senate: "We shall have to change our thinking and I think the government should start to give a lead in that direction."

Mrs. Hodges drew a large audience of women to the public galleries as she spoke. She is one of five women Senate members and is a former speaker of the British Columbia legislature, the only woman in Commonwealth history to hold such an office.

A journalist in her own right, she was moving the address in reply to the speech from the throne as the Senate launched its throne speech debate.

Senator L. D. Tremblay (L—Quebec) seconded the address in reply.

Speaking partly in French and partly in English, he said the throne speech showed the West is slowly but surely moving towards peace. He was critical of what he termed the indifference of Quebec to advantages offered to all provinces under federal housing legislation for slum clearance.

S'ide Firemen Battle Fire In Stable

Fighting a fire in which Johnny Doughboy, a show horse unequalled in the Maritimes, died yesterday morning, Summerside firemen are seen battling the dense smoke and flames that gutted the barn-garage at the home of the owner, Mr. G. B. "Jerry" Sheen on Victoria Road at Summerside. Smoke from two tons of burning hay and straw was so thick that it was impossible for anyone to enter any part of the building until firemen had poured hundreds of gallons of water into all sections.

S'ide Trinity Y.P.U. Program

There was a very interesting program arranged and conducted by the commission on faith and evangelism when Trinity Y.P.U. held their regular weekly meeting in Epworth Hall Tuesday evening.

Dr. Henry Moyses was present as a guest and showed and narrated several of his films and slides dealing with his and Dr. Grant's trip to the Pacific coast a few years ago as delegates to a medical convention held at Banff, Alberta. He also showed the group other slides of floral and geographical scenery. The program was a most successful one, for which those taking part were highly commended by convener, Ernest Murphy. Vance Bridges extended a hearty vote of thanks to Dr. Moyses. This had been moved by Florence MacLean and seconded by Shirley MacKinnon.

An inspiring worship service was jointly conducted by Louise Norring and Doreen Smith, the latter using chapter 3 of James as scriptural reading and also leading in prayer.

Mary McLure was pianist for the hymns. Rev. C. D. Matheson opened the meeting with the regular period of Bible study. The president, Evelyn Underhay conducted a brief business period, and reported on an executive meeting held the previous evening. Other group activities were discussed and planned. A large number, including one new member, answered roll call. Lunch was served by the committee.

Walker, secretary, Miss Jean MacFadyen; treasurer, Miss Clara Mountain. The retiring president, Mrs. R. W. Wood, expressed appreciation to the members for their cooperation and encouragement during her term of office. The report of the activities of the regular period of Bible study, the financial statement was most gratifying. A vote of thanks was extended to the retiring officers. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Harold Hall.

Demands Rehabilitation Of Canada's Merchant Navy

OTTAWA (CP) — Rehabilitation of Canada's shrunken merchant navy was demanded Wednesday by Howard Green, transport specialist for the Progressive Conservatives.

The Vancouver-Quadra Commons member, speaking in the throne speech debate, said federal policy on merchant shipping has been "one of the most dismal failures of the Canadian government."

But he added he believes a bold policy now "could yet save the situation."

Mr. Green said the Canadian flag fleet of dry cargo vessels, which numbered 145 six years ago, has dwindled to 15. In the same period, gross tonnage dropped from 928,000 to 69,000, lowest in 35 years.

U. K. REGISTRY

About 100 Canadian-owned vessels are on United Kingdom registry, transferred there to permit them to operate at lower cost to meet world shipping competition.

Mr. Green said one result of the small number of ships under Canadian registry is that practically no Canadian products are being carried in Canadian ships.

On the west coast, where no Canadian flag deepsea vessels carry dry cargo now, there is not enough shipping space for available cargo, Mr. Green said.

"If we had Canadian ships," he said, "there would be some measure of control over the way goods are shipped and we could get cargoes carried."

In a general criticism of the government, Mr. Green said it is getting more arrogant and tending to place more and more importance on itself than on Parliament.

During the throne speech debate, which continued uncompleted through the first Wednesday half-sitting of the session, J.W. Murphy (L—Westmorland) sought construction of the Chignecto canal to link the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the Bay of Fundy in the Maritimes.

Find Boy Sleeping Under Small Shed

A 10-year-old Summerside boy was found at 2 a.m. yesterday morning sleeping on the frozen ground beneath a small shed near the parking lot of Smallman's Ltd. The discovery of the lad was made by Constables S. Berry and K. Champlin, and further investigation resulted in the recovery of a number of food items similar to those stolen earlier in the evening in a break at the Summerside Co-Op.

Yesterday a second youth of about the same age was picked up by the police in connection with the break. The boys will appear in juvenile court as soon as a judge for this court is appointed. The late Judge L. G. Lewis acted in the capacity of juvenile court judge, and no new appointment has as yet been made. It is understood that several cases are awaiting the disposition of this court.

Famous S'ide

The present owner Mr. Sheen had said that he would not sell him for any price.

Dodge Stables in New York, and from Kentucky he went to the west handled there by the top trainer Pat Bowers.

From his first appearance in Summerside following his purchase in 1952 by Mr. Sheen, this horse has been a highlight not only of race meets at the Summerside Raceway, but at agricultural fairs in sections of Prince County where he has made appearances by public request as one of the feature attractions.

News of his death yesterday was received with grief and sympathy akin to that of an esteemed person.

Following the fire scores of phone calls poured into the home, and among the many visitors who travelled to the scene was a teenage schoolboy from a village fifteen miles distant who secured permission to have one of the ears of the horse he had so dearly admired.

The fire was well advanced when discovered, and anxiety for the safety of two five or six-year-old boys who had earlier been playing around the barn existed for almost an hour before they were located at a home several blocks away.

Two tons of hay and straw in the building added to the dense smoke and made it impossible for anyone to enter the building for some time after the arrival of the Summerside Fire Department who fought one of the most stubborn fires encountered in recent months.

The loss of the building and contents apart from the horse, included the saddle and harness of Johnny Doughboy, racing equipment, racing harness, and a power mower.

The loss of this lovely horse will be noted with regret by horsemen and race fans throughout the province.

Collie Returns Following Vigil

STRATHROY, Ont. (CP) — Prince, a 16-year-old collie, came back home Wednesday after spending two weeks with a sick friend.

Prince developed the habit of following everywhere it went the tractor owned by his master, Harry Korolewch, on his farm near this community 20 miles west of London.

When the tractor broke down, it was brought to a garage here for repairs. Prince came along too and refused to leave.

After two weeks of living right beside the sick friend, Prince proudly came back—right behind the reconditioned tractor.

Brig. Allard Receives Medal

QUEBEC (CP)—Brig. Jean V. Allard, commander of the Third Canadian Infantry Brigade, has received the Legion of Merit medal from the United States government for service during the Korean War, it was learned Wednesday.

Brig. Allard commanded the 25th Canadian Brigade in Korea from April 5, 1953, to June 19, 1954.

A citation accompanying the award was read at a presentation ceremony Monday by George Bencherd, American consul in Quebec City. It said Brig. Allard "evinced forceful leadership and aggressiveness during an extensive and sustained period of battle."

It cited him as being "instrumental in uniting Commonwealth and United States forces against numerically superior forces."

Board of Trade Delegation Waits On Premier

A delegation from the Summerside Board of Trade waited on Premier A. W. Matheson yesterday to make application for a change in the turn-off from the Trans-Canada Highway to the road leading to Summerside. The delegations was advised that change may be made this year. The committee, in making representation, pointed out that the turn-off was constructed in such a way that tourist traffic to Prince County would be seriously affected under the present set up.

Premier Matheson said he was favorably disposed to the idea, could see the need for a change and that the request of the delegation would be given every consideration.—S

Miss Adella Dingwell, North Bedouque, who recently entered the Victoria General Hospital, Halifax, as a student nurse, has been confined to the Hospital through illness. Her many friends hope she will soon be able to resume her duties.—S

Let's Talk It Over

The suggestion by Councilor Clark that water meters be installed in Summerside homes, and that families be charged according to the quantity used is an interesting one. We confess we are behind the times because we had no idea this was done in other centres, but we can believe that the innovation would indeed decrease the consumption of water. The proposition would require very careful study with regard to how much to charge for the aqua pura. The success or failure of the plan might depend considerably upon the rate set.

There is a certain section of every town or city which is sometimes collectively and secularly called "the great unwashed." This group might live up to their name better than ever with water selling at so much a bathtub full. Although it is by no means a rule, quite frequently the families less able to pay for water (or anything else) are the ones who have the greatest disdain for water and its partner in the war against grime, soap. In this age of high living costs when many are just able to keep shooing the wolf from the door, a higher tax on water might make some hard-pressed folk, in the interests of economy, forget all about the grand old institution of Saturday night.

Certainly small boys would have a stronger argument to offer to their parents against washing behind their ears, except may be once a week. We can see an angry little boy glaring at his mother, and shouting "spend-thrift" as she insists on making a thorough job of the detested operation. To get back to more serious vein, we suppose the rate will be fixed so that people would have to pay about the same as at present for a normal use of water. It would be the water-wasters, and those who use extra water for special purposes that would have to pay the extra charge.

Coffin was found guilty Aug. 5 in the Gaspé resort town of Percé, Que. of the murder of Richard Lindsey, 17, of Holidayburg, Pa. and sentenced to be hanged Nov. 26.

Actor Robert Mitchum Fired

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)—Actor Robert Mitchum apparently pushed a man into San Francisco bay and promptly lost his job as star of the motion picture "Blood Alley," Warner Brothers said Wednesday.

Lee Ferrero, publicity man for the studio, said Mitchum was ousted by co-producing Robert Fellows after pushing George Coleman, the film company's transportation manager, from a gang-plank. Ferrero said the actor was released "for action detrimental to the making of the film."

William A. Wallman, director of the picture, was quoted as saying the company has $2,500,000 budgeted for "Blood Alley" and he isn't going to risk the chance of having horseplay spoil his plans.

Outstanding Dr. Albert Schweitzer 80 Tomorrow

PARIS, (Reuters) — Dr. Albert Schweitzer, one of the outstanding humanitarians of modern times, will be 80 on Friday.

His birthday will be an occasion for world celebration. In a career unparalleled in his generation, he has made profound contributions to the arts, literature and thinking of his age as well as to the physical betterment of mankind.

He will spend the day without fanfare in his hospital at Lambarene in French Equatorial Africa, famous figure only as an extraordinary local patriarch and healer.

With him will be his wife, Helene, four years younger than Schweitzer. She left Paris Tuesday by plane for Lambarene, carrying pine branches from little Günsbach village, where he spends his vacations in the heart of his native Alsace.

In nearby Strasbourg, orators and musicians will proclaim Schweitzer one of the great men of modern times—a distinction already acknowledged by his winning of the Nobel Peace Prize three years ago and by other honors.

REVERENCE FOR LIFE

Of the doctrines which made him famous Schweitzer has written: "To everyone, in whatever state of life he finds himself, the ethics of reverence for life do this: They force him without cessation to be concerned at heart with all the human destinies which are going through their life course around him and to give himself, as man, to the man who needs a fellow man."

At 80, Schweitzer was principal of the theological faculty and professor of religious philosophy at Strasbourg when he surprised his friends by renouncing a distinguished and manifold career to study medicine so that he could become a doctor missionary.

He qualified as a doctor and surgeon in six years. He and his wife sailed for Africa on Good Friday, 1913, and eventually pitched camp at Lambarene, where there was no other doctor within a 500-mile radius.

Within the next 30 years the Lambarene establishment grew to cover more than 200 acres, numbered about 80 buildings with more than 200 beds, and included a maternity ward, a mental asylum and a leper colony of about 250.

Nfld. Surveys Storm Damage

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Fishermen around the storm-battered shores of eastern Newfoundland poked dejectedly through twisted timbers and surf-washed rubble Wednesday trying to survey damage, still unestimated, but mounting.

Huge waves, propelled by an undersea storm, tore through scores of fishing villages along the east coast during the last three days, gradually dying Wednesday, and leaving in its wake the worst mess fishermen can remember.

Two washouts occurred on the railway line. Despite the mounting damage there have been no reports of death or injury.

Acting Premier H. L. Pottle said Wednesday the storm situation would be fully studied with a view to assisting stricken fishermen.

Russians Claim More Records

MOSCOW, (AP)—Russian women speed skaters, who claim to hold all the current world records, continued to set new marks Wednesday, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

The latest record breaker is Tamara Rylova, who skated 1,000 metres in one minute, 33.4 seconds. The old mark, also held by a Russian girl, Khliada Chitchegeleva, was 1:36.3 Tass said seven other Russian girl skaters also bettered the old record.

Miss Rylova Tuesday claimed a new world record for 600 metres of 45.6 seconds.

The records were set at Almaty in central Asia, where the Russian women are skating against rivals from the peoples democracies of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, East Germany and Romania.
