Winters Suggests More Help In Furnishing Food To Needy

PARIS (Reuters) — Canadian Trade Minister Winters says countries other than food-exporting ones should share the responsibility for providing food to underdeveloped nations.

Addressing the sixth annual ministerial meeting of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development here Winters said:

"Other member countries must play their part, for example through the provision of finance for shipping services, either through the world food program or under special arrangements."

He emphasized that this year Canada had "an increased food aid program, including the provision of 1,000,000 tons of foodstuff, mainly in the form of wheat, to help meet the India emergency food crisis."

Winters reminded ministers of the vital part played by wheat sales in the balance of payments for Canada. "When we give food as aid, we are foregoing sales," he said.

The need to increase food production in developing countries is the long-term solution, Winters continued.

Thus Canada would give "the highest priority to requests from developing countries for such technical and capital assistance related to agriculture or fisheries."

He recognized the need for more aid, but added: "Our own taxpayers, although motivated by humanitarianism, are anxious to know, and have a right to know, that their monies are being spent to the best advantage."

Winters finally stressed the need for adapting aid terms to the needs of developing countries. He welcomed the work to be carried out by the OECD development assistance committee, which deals with the problem of aid to developing countries.

American Mariner IV Healthy After Two Years In Space

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — America's ancient mariner — Mariner IV—is nearing the two-year mark of a perhaps endless voyage in space, still healthy after its first billion miles.

"It reports its condition to earth three times a week," a spokesman for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said here, "although its voice is kind of weak."

Weak is an over-statement. Its signal is one billionth of a billionth of a watt.

"The craft transmits with a 10 - watt transmitter," said the spokesman. "Bu the strength dwindles across 206,000,000 miles in space."

That's how far Mariner IV is from earth as it approaches its second anniversary today. It has travelled more than 1,000,000,000 miles since it was launched Nov. 28, 1964, in a vast elliptical orbit around the sun.

TOOK PICTURES OF MARS

Its prime mission was to approach and photograph Mars. It skimmed to within 6,118 miles and radioed the first close-ups of the Martian surface—largely destroying ideas that intelligent beings live there. Some form of life, probably microbial, may, however, exist on Mars, scientists say.

But that didn't end Mariner's story. Sientists, by using a new 210-foot atenna at Goldstone, Calif. have been able to monitor many of the 575 - pound spacecraft's electronic subsystems and scientific instruments.

They found that an intense solar storm — coinciding with spots on the sun—caused a slight reduction in the power-generating capability of the spacecraft's solar panels, "something between six and 11 per cent," the spokesman said.

Scientists said that next summer the craft's 530-day orbit around the sun will bring it within 30,000,000 miles of earth.

NOVELIST ARRESTED

LISBON (Reuters)—Luis Monteiro, Portuguese novelist and playwright, was arrested Friday for suspected crimes against state security, a police spokesman said Monday. Monteiro had been arrested a few years ago but later released without being prosecuted, the spokesman added.
