MR. AND MRS. RUSSELL G. RAMSAY

"I'll Walk Beside You" Is Sung At Wellington United Church

Wellington United Church was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday, October 19th, 1963 at 2.30 p.m. when Rev. W. B. MacPhail performed the ceremony uniting in marriage Shirley Leona Barlow, daughter of Clayton Barlow and the late Mrs. Barlow of Wellington, and Russel Glen Ramsay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Ramsay of Belmont Lot 16.

The altar was adorned with vases of dahlia and mixed autumn flowers. The organist, Mrs. Greeta Barlow accompanied Mrs. Millar Craig as she sang "I'll Walk Beside You" before the bride entered the church and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The bride given in marriage by her father, was wearing a floor length gown of white nylon organza over taffeta featuring a full skirt with appliques of Chantilly lace and accented by a large bow at back centered with a cluster rose of nylon organza. The fitted bodice was fashioned with scoop neckline and designs of glittering sequins. The long lily point sleeves were sheer organza. Her elbow - length bouffant veil of scalloped nylon tulle was held in place by a pill-box of sheer organza trimmed with sequins and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses and white carnations entwined with ivy. Her only jewellery were tiny cultured pearl earrings, a gift of the groom.

Gladys Barlow was maid of honour for her sister. She wore a street length gown of Romany Blue sheer nylon over taffeta. The fitted bodice featured scooped neckline and shirred cummerbund at waist. Her headpiece was a short veil of blue nylon tulle held in place by a rose of the same colour as her gown. She wore white gloves and satin shoes dyed to match her gown and carried a nosegay of white carnations tinted with blue.

Eleanor Barlow, sister of the bride, and Miss Kay Ramsay, niece of the groom, as bridesmaids wore hot pink dresses identical to that of the maid of honour. Their headpieces and shoes matched their gowns and they carried nosegays of white carnations tinted with pink.

Little Leona Miller, niece of the bride, as flower girl was a charming in her dress of blue nylon taffeta with overskirt of nylon chiffon. The skirt featured a wide cummerbund tied with large bow at back. She wore a crown of blue shirred nylon net, white gloves and socks, black patent leather shoes, and carried a small nosegay of white 'mums and forget - me - nots tinted with pink and blue.

Robert Fletcher was best man. Robert Barlow, brother of the bride and Wendall Birch, ushered the guests to pews marked with large white satin bows.

Mrs. Ramsay, mother of the groom, wore a black double knit dress with red accessories and a corsage of red and white carnations.

For a reception at Birch Hill Lodge for 75 guests, the bride's table was centered with a three-tier wedding cake made by Mrs. Roland Miller, sister of the bride, and decorated by Elmer Hardy of Freeland. Lighted tapers in candelebra and vases of mixed flowers completed the table setting.

The best man called upon Mr. MacPhail to propose the toast to the bride to which the groom responded.

Mrs. Roland Miller circulated the guest book.

For a honeymoon trip to New Brunswick and Maine, the bride chose a three-piece double knit suit in cranberry red, white wedding ring hat and gloves, black shoes and purse, and a corsage of white carnations.

Out - of - province guests included Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Christian, Bristol, Conn.; Spurgeon Barlow, Amherst, Mass., and Mrs. Gerald Thompson, Moncton, N.B.

Previous to their marriage the bride and groom were tendered a miscellaneous shower in Wellington Station Hall.

The newlyweds will reside in their new home in Belmont Lot 16 where the groom is farming.

MARY HAWORTH

Mother's Wild Tantrums Symotom Of Instability

Dear Mary Haworth: What effect will a mother's temper tantrums have on a child as he grows up? This mother is very moody and at her worst, her disposition ranges from tantrums to hysterics.

She screams, cries, beats her fists upon whatever is near, stamps and pitches things.

Her husband is very stable. He gives their child a great deal of love and attention and tries to remove the child from seeing or hearing her at such times. But the child is getting older and this can't always be done. Also the father isn't always around when these scenes erupt.

She refuses psychiatric help or help from the Family Service which has been suggested. I am greatly concerned about the child's welfare and if the mother won't help, what else can be done?

I happen to know that she reads your column and I am hopeful that your answer may persuade her to take stock of herself and get specialist counsel, as none of us has been able to persuade her. Sincerely R.F.

Dear R. F.: Temper tantrums and hysterics, as the usual thing, in one's childhood or in adult years, are symptomatic of emotional imbalance in an infantile personality.

Thus the tantrum thrower you describe has two strikes against her, on the score of personality health suited to her age and status as wife and mother.

In stamping, yelling, pitching things, etc., when displeased, regardless of the impact on her child, she advertises the fact that she hasn't matured much beyond the infantile level of squalling self-centerednes. And, to complicate matters, that she is neurotically domineering in a hostile, sick, self-pitying way.

It would take an analyst to decipher the ratio of in antilism to neuroticism that constitutes her particular blend of intemperateness.

But this we know for sure: A mother is the most pervasively, indelibly powerful influence on a child's development. Thus it follows that this ungoverned woman is currently making an emotional cripple of her child, preparing him to be a problem character later on, the long shadow of whose cumulative misfortune will haunt her to her dying day. There will be no way she can halt or undo the harm she has wrought if she continues to misbehave as described.

As to what can be done to apply the brakes, if she flatly refuses to seek help for herself, I would say the answer to that depends upon the nature of her disorder, and upon the courage and decisiveness of her husband — who is responsible for her welfare as well as the child's.

If she continues to raise the roof irrationally, her husband should have the good sense and fortitude to consult medical and legal authorities, concerning the advisability of providing first-rate therapeutic treatment for her in a custodial hospital.

Reception At Svend's Inn Follows Kensington Vows

An autumn wedding was solemnized by Rev. Louis Callaghan in the Church of the Holy Family, Kensington, in October, when Irene Frances, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Campbell, Indian River, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Allison Gregory, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Laughlin, Kensington, in double ring ceremony. The bride's brother, Billy served the nuptial Mass. The sanctuary was decorated with baskets of gladioli and cut flowers and guest pews were marked with white satin bows and colored autumn leaves.

Mrs. Edgar Hickey was organist and accompanied Sharon Campbell, cousin of the bride, as she sang the hymns, "On This Day O Beautiful Mother"; "Oh Lord, I am not Worthy"; and "Mother At Your Feet is Kneeling".

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a floor length gown of white nylon organza over satin, fashioned with a fitted bodice, long lily point sleeves and full bouffant skirt. Her fingertip veil o tulle illusion was held in place by a pearl and rhinestone studded tiara. She carried a cascade bouquet of Topper roses and wore a pearl necklace and earrings, gift of the groom.

Mrs. J.E. Devine, sister of the bride, as matron of honor and Helen Laughlin, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid were identically attired in red peau-de-soie sheath street-length dresses with bell-shaped overskirts, matching headdresses and shoes and carried colonial bouquets of carnations.

Urban Laughlin, brother of the groom, was best man, and ushers were Clarence Fraser and Byron MacDonald.

Little Karen Devine, niece of the bride, as flower girl wore a white organza dress with red sash and headdress to match. She carried a basket of white and red pom pom mums. Her little brother, Kevin, was ring bearer.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Svend's Inn, Kensington, for 65 guests. The bride's table with its artistic arrangements of lighted tapers and mixed flowers was centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom.

Assisting the bridal party in receiving the guests the bride's mother wore a green double-knit wool dress with pink carnation hat, matching accessories and a corsage of pink frenches-carnations. The groom's mother wore a two-piece green embossed silk dress with white feathers hat and accessories. Her corsage was white feathered carnations.

Urban Laughlin was toast master. Father Callaghan said grace and proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom responded. A telegram was read which was received from the bride's aunt, Eunice Shea, Toronto.

After the reception the guests left for the home of the bride where the music by James Borsto and Rozita Hickey, and dancing was enjoyed before the departure of the newly-weds to various parts of the Maritimes and the New England States. For travelling the bride wore a capri blue wool dress topped by a winter-white chinchilla coat, black velvet hat and black and white accessories. She wore a corsage of candy-striped carnations.

Prior to her marriage the bride was tendered a miscellaneous shower at her home. A post-nuptial shower was held at the Sherbrooke School auditorium.

The bride is a teacher at Indian River School and the groom is on the office staff of M.F. Schurman, Ltd., Summerside.

Young Adults Have "Ellen" As Speaker

The first meeting for this season of Cornwall Young Adult Group was held on Wednesday evening, Nov. 13th, in the Christian Educational Centre of the United Church.

The worship service opened by singing "Take Time to be Holy". The scripture lesson was read by Olive Barrett. An inspiring message on prayer was read by Vera Proud. Mr. Walls then led the group in singing and this part of the meeting with the singing of "What a Friend We Have in Jesus".

Members were privileged to have as guest speaker, Mrs. George Dixon, whom we all know better as the author of "Ellen's Diary". Her talk was on "The Adventures of Writing" and was interesting and informative. Mr. Walls then thanked Mrs. Dixon for taking part in the program.

In the absence of the president and vice - president, Mr. Walls conducted the business period. The minutes of the last meeting and also of the summer social were read and approved. Roll call was answered by 11 members. Three members of the group offered to accompany Mildred MacLean to the Rehabilitation Centre to teach Sunday School for the Sundays up to Dec. 1st.

The acting president commented on the success of the rally held at Park Royal United Church on Nov. 2nd. It was hoped that the new executive, which will be appointed at our meeting, would make plans for the coming season to encourage attendance and promote an interesting program for the year.

It was decided to hold future meetings the third Monday of each month, however, we will meet in the church basement on Monday, Nov. 25th, following the church service to be held in Clyde River Presbyterian Church, which will take the place of our worship service. Lunch committee for that evening will be Barbara Lowther, Imogene MacDonald, Jean Kitson and Mickey MacPhail. The treasurer's report was given by Wanda MacPhee and the total funds on hand are $46.58. The meeting was then adjourned and lunch was served by the committee in charge.

Calendula And Cornflowers Make An Autumn Bouquet

"Ah-h-h!" one of the little herd offered, stretching herself luxuriantly in the straw of her bed this morning. "They may sing if they like about the joys of wandering on a foreign strand but for me, 'East, west, home is best'!"

"Well said" a stable-mate smiled.

"It's not that I didn't enjoy our quarters there at the Atlantic Winter Fair how could I when they were the last word in stabling, and all so clean and new? It's just that I'm tired."

Her neighbor's grin changed to a yawn.

"Dear me" he sighed, "I am too. That was a long road we went, and came."

"It was" she nodded. "And I was happy, yes extremely so, to hear at last, example piping us up the lane to home!"

"It was good to get down from that van and feel the earth underfoot, and get back once more to our stables."

"Would you like to come there again?" she questioned.

"Not today — that's for sure" he chuckled. "But I expect that when the time for it again rolls around, I'll have a yearning to go. But there'll be a lot of water go through the spillways in the dam, before that day dawns!"

"Oh, not so many" she said. "The months will slip by. Sow and reap and gather in — there's little more than that to a year."

"And the older one grows" he nodded, "the faster they fly!"

"Ah-h-h!" she yawned widely. "I'll just have to nap again. How did this one do? James inquired, stopping by the stall. "Now, not bad" the younger farmer replied, "even better than I myself had judged she would."

"Aye" James commented. "I considered her fair-good, from the first."

"An overcast, dampish day, this one was. Calm and without spirit, as though it marked time awaiting a bracing wind to blow.

Peter appeared in the doorway at mid-morning, young eyes a-shine.

"They got here!" he announced.

"Who?"

"The kittens. Tabby's brought them to the back porch!"

"I expected them to come before this Alex smiled. "It's funny how kittens always love to come there."

A late bouquet from the border, one of the family brought in today. An attractive one of shades blending prettily, the gold and the blue —" Some day soon" we said to James, "we must bring home spruce boughs to cover, when a hard frost strikes, the more tender perennials about."

"And what's this that you are doing" we inquired of a lad today.

"This?" he echoed, brows wrinkling. "Why I'm trying to make out my Christmas list. It's time for it now, you know."

And high time, the old clock warns, for us to enter the Bedtime Road.

Until tomorrow — — Diary— Good-night.....

Legion Auxiliary Plan Married Couples Dance

BORDEN — The Ladies Auxiliary of the Borden Legion have presented a cheque for $120 to the P.E.I. Retarded Children's Association. This was announced at the regular meeting held at the home November 8, and is the second annual donation.

The president Mary Sutherland opened the meeting with one minute silence for departed members. Roll call was answered by eight members.

An Invitation from the Kensington Auxiliary to attend their next meeting was accepted. The president gave a report on the provincial command executive meeting she had attended in Charlottetown. The sum of $10 was voted to the Provincial Command Disaster Fund for veterans who have been victims of fire and are in need of assistance. It was decided to hold a married couples dance Nov. 30, Mary Sutherland and Sadie Warren to see about obtaining the hall and an orchestra. Members agreed to hold card parties, the first of a series of four to be held Oct. 20. These will be a combination of Auction 46 and cribbage

Roll call next month to be answered by an exchange of Christmas gifts and a tea towel donation for the kitchen.
