INTERESTING LETTER FROM BOSTON.

The Recent Visit of Sir Charles Tupper.

CANADA'S GRAND OLD MAN GETS A SPLENDID RECEPTION.

Banquetted by the Canadian Club—Big Meeting in Tremont Temple

Boston, March 16, 1900.—Last week might properly be called "Canadian week" here. The presence of Sir Charles Tupper, who spoke to five thousand British-born people, mostly provincialists, in Tremont Temple, Monday evening, brought together a large number of prominent Canadians. Sir Charles has been feted and feasted as no Canadian has ever been before. Boston simply showered him with her kindness and hospitality. His many old friends were rejoiced to see the veteran looking so well, although the weight of nearly eighty years are pressing him down, the marks of time sit lightly on mind and brow. Some of Sir Charles' old friends, formerly of Cumberland County, N. S., men prominent in business and professional life, recalled the days when they sung the praises of the party and stood for the principles which Tupper expounded and which gave to Canada the National Policy. Those days witnessed the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway, that great highway of commerce and the foundation of Canada's future greatness and prosperity. No living Canadian in public life today did more than Sir Charles Tupper to accomplish this great undertaking. It brings two oceans nearer together. It links Montreal and Vancouver by a band of steel. The value and importance of the C. P. R. to Canada can only be realized as the future unfolds. Herein profit for the peoples of all nations, where thrift and industry offer a sure reward, intelligence and patience the foundation of happy homes, will a full realization that the blessing of liberty, justice and equality will always prevail. The names of Tupper and Tilley and Macdonald stand sponsor for the great highway of commerce, and the wisdom of that policy is undisputed by both parties to-day.

Sir Charles came here to speak on the war in South Africa, the proceeds to go to the widows and orphans of the British soldiers in that country. Monday afternoon he was banquetted by the Harvard Canadian Club, Cambridge, numbering about seventy students of British birth, including Professors McVane and De-Sumicarat. President Elliot, Professors Norton and White were also present.

Tuesday afternoon Sir Charles was the guest of the Canadian Club, at the Bellevue Hotel, Boston. Nearly one hundred of the leading men, business and professional in and around Boston, had gathered to honor the distinguished guest. The affair was one of the most brilliant social functions ever participated in by Canadian-born residents. Among the number I noticed, Dr. George M. Mattart, Dr. E. J. Kier, Mr. A. E. Mills, of A. E. Mills & Co., Mr. W. E. Staver, agent of the Bank of Nova Scotia in this city, and your humble servant, from P. E. Island. Mr. Henry Whitney, of the Dominion Coal Co., was also present. Sir Charles was the principal speaker. He touched on the relation of the country and Canada, and pleaded for broader reciprocity. In referring to the war in South Africa, Sir Charles Tupper said all that England wants, in her "great political entanglements," is the perfect equality which the United States promises and observed.

But the great meeting in Tremont Temple was the event of the week. Nearly five thousand persons were present, while hundreds were unable to gain admission. The meeting was a tremendous success. The enthusiasm was something intense. Sir Charles, when he arose to speak, was given a magnificent reception, every person in the great hall rising. He spoke for nearly an hour, in a clear full voice, establishing the facts up to the outbreak of hostilities between Great Britain and the Transvaal. England, said the speaker, is fighting for the liberties of the human race, for the advance of civilization and the lifting up of all mankind—she is fighting the battle of the people, for the principles of justice and equality. During Sir Charles' address not a single unfriendly interruption was heard. The meeting was in thorough sympathy with the speaker. When the house rose to sing "God Save the Queen," the spectacle was as imposing as it was remarkable—occurring in a great American city. The great auditorium blazed with a thousand jets, balcony over balcony fringed with rows of happy smiling faces, looked down on a thousand waving Union Jacks. On the stage some thirty veteran soldiers of the Queen seemingly stood guard, their bright uniforms and accoutrements flashing beneath the globes of light. To the right of Sir Charles sat fifty nurses of the Red Cross, decked in white aprons and caps. The nurses took up a collection which brought to the South African fund an additional nineteen hundred dollars. The Patriotic South African Fund now reaches $12,000, all contributed by British-born people. Two instalments of $5,000 each have been forwarded to the Lord Mayor of London.

The gallantry displayed by the Canadian troops in South Africa is especially gratifying to resident Canadians here. Their fearlessness and dash, their passionate loyalty, their unexampled courage and their devotion to the cause of human rights, have won the admiration and respect of the whole world. Whether marching over arid plain beneath a burning sun, or rushing the mountain side beneath the stars of night, or crossing the sluggish river beneath a treacherous fire rained by their fallen comrades, they push on to victory or death, the same undaunted, heroic Canadians. This is the spirit of free men, the spirit which gave Britain so many great victories in the past, and that same spirit cannot be quenched as long as a single Anglo-Saxon lives.

The result of this war will cement the colonies to the Mother Country in an indissoluble bond. Their blood has mingled in a common stream, and when the principles of truth and justice are re-established in South Africa, the old Union Jack, the symbol of freedom and civilization, shall fly from the wave-washed shores of the Cape to the land of the Pharaohs.

General Cronje and his fellow captives embarked for St. Helena yesterday. He will have a chance to look out on the "sad and solemn sea" through the same windows which met the gaze of the great Napoleon. There he will learn of England's mercy and justice as he has tasted of her prowess and might.

The new war loan of $150,000,000 is a striking evidence of Britain's vast resources. This gives an idea of what could be done in a long and bloody war with any of the great powers. Three hours after the bonds were issued, the whole amount was subscribed for twenty times over. The Bank of England has taken nearly the entire issue. I notice the Bank of Montreal gets $5,000,000.

The Hon. J. G. Schurman, President of Cornell College, is by common consent, P. E. Island's most distinguished son abroad. His appointment as Chairman of the Philippine Commission by President McKinley has given him an international reputation. His exhaustive and remarkable report, and his recommendation to President McKinley as to the form of government for the Philippine Islands, were accepted and approved. The new commission will sail for the east in June to put President Schurman's recommendation into operation.

I had the pleasure of listening to Mr. Schurman the other day before the Massachusetts Republican Club at Young's Hotel. He was one of the invited guests, the other gentleman was the Hon. White-law Reid, editor of the New York Tribune. Mr. Schurman can lay no claim to oratory, but he talks in a cool earnest manner believing what he says and having the faculty of imparting that belief to others. President Schurman is in great demand as a public speaker in all the large cities of the Union. He is regarded as an authority on all matters affecting the government of our new possession in the East. Should President McKinley be re-elected a Prince Edward Islander will represent the United States at the Court of St. James.

ISLAND SOLDIERS IN AFRICA

Pte. McRae Writes to a Friend in Earncliffe.

Mr. John Tweedy, of Earncliffe, received the following letter from his friend Mr. Fred B. McRae, dated Belmont, January 24th:

DEAR JOHN,—I intended to write you before this but always neglected to do so. If we had the facilities that people have at home there would be many more letters mailed than there is under existing circumstances. You can sit down at your table or desk, and with good stationery put what you like on paper. I lie down on the sand in the camp and with what-utensils. I have so far managed to carry with me struggle through as best I can, for there are no chairs or tables here. I would have no paper or envelopes now were it not for the fact that I carried them with me from Canada.

Well, John, this is a strange country and lots of strange things are to be seen. ostriches, centipedes, tintantulars, tortoises, etc, roam around among the tects, besides lots of strange birds and animals out on the veldt and up on the hills. There is a farm house about every 5 or 6 miles, and each farmer has five or six thousand acres. If you were here you would make a fortune even faster than on the Island. Milk is 12 cents per quart, eggs 36 cents per dozen, and everything else in proportion. The farmer or his sons or wife never lay their hands to any work Kafir labor is so cheap and good.

There are lots of chances here to coin money if a person were not in the service. As it is I make lots of money besides my pay. Money flows like water here, as no one attaches any value to it. "Kill the Boers and save your own life," is the only motto here. Sometimes it is pretty hard to accomplish both. I dare say you will be surprised when I tell you that, after this trip, I will have no use for a wife, unless it would be merely to look at, as I can cook and wash equal to any lady. We have to wash our clothes quite often, and take our turn at cooking. The rations we get every day are as follows: 1 lb bread, 1 lb meat, fresh beef or mutton (always prime)—except when on march when we get canned meat, potatoes, onions, salt, pepper, sugar, coffee and tea, coffee for breakfast, and tea for supper, jam three times a week; thus, with a little milk we buy, and a few other luxuries, we get along first-class as far as food is concerned. The Canadians live in about 80 round tents; when we go on the march from one point to another the ammunition tents, cooking utensils and rations are put in to general service wagons and Scotch carts which are hauled by 175 mules which are teamed by Kaffirs. Last week I was out with Colonel Babington's and Pilcher's flying column into the Orange Free State. This was the first armed invasion of the enemy's country. We had to get ready for action twice, but instead of it being the Boers it proved to be another British column. Once we were on the verge of opening fire when the mistake was found out. It was very exciting, and we were very much disappointed when we found there was to be no fight. We stayed all night at a Boer farm house. The owner is one of the Boer leaders. We took everything possible, about 90 head of horses and cattle, a transport wagon with 16 head of oxen to haul it, a new buggy and span of horses, a wagon load of valuable furniture, a new bicycle and various other articles of less value. I was lucky enough to get some precious stones; some are diamonds, two are moonstones, and others I don't know the names of. I am going to keep one till I have occasion to use it. I am going to get one of Kruger's gold coins to make the ring to set it in. Before leaving the house we burned it down. The owner was very rich and kept Boer arms and ammunition. Two companies of Canadians are now on towards Douglas, and we hear they are having a fight. There was a great battle fought where we are camped, and I have a great many interesting things to take home; fear I will not be able to carry them all. I suppose there is lots of ice and snow on the Island, and no doubt you will enjoy the fire. It is the very reverse with us, the heat is terrible from 10 until 4 in the afternoon. At night you can sleep as well outside as in camp, except when it rains. There is a great drought on at present, eight months without
