MR. AND MRS. LOUIS D. GAUTHIER St. Dunstan's Basilica, City Setting For Autumn Wedding

The marriage of Constance Marie Cullen, daughter of Mr. J. E. Cullen, Charlottetown and the late Mrs. Cullen, to Louis Daniel Gauthier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gauthier took place at St. Dunstan's Basilica, Charlottetown.

The nuptial mass and double wedding ceremony was performed by Mgr. Patrick McPherson. The servers were Roger and Elaine Gauthier, brothers of the groom. Organist, Mrs. Joseph Dugan, played the nuptial mass and accompanied the soloist, Virginia MacDougall.

The bride given in marriage by her father, chose a floor length gown of nylon organza embroidered with lace and tulle. The shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a pearl hair net. She carried a cascade of red roses, with rose bud streamers.

The maid of honour was Mrs. Ellen MacMillan and the bridesmaids were Helen and Esteroary Noonan of Charlottetown. They wore identical stretch length dresses of French pink peau de soie, with matching headpieces of tulle. Rayoyle Gauthier, flower girl, wore a white nylon dress with tulle and lace. She carried bouquets of white and pink mottled carnations.

Usher, Leroy Gauthier, brother of the groom, was best man. William Edward Reeves and William MacMillan ushered the guests to seats marked with white and blue satin bows. For her son's wedding Mrs. Gauthier chose a navy blue gown with a silk sheath dress, with white accessories. Her corsage was white feathered carnations.

A reception for 90 guests was held at the Royal Canadian Legion, where the bride table was centered with a three tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Joseph Cullen, uncle of the bride, was master of ceremonies. The toast to the bride, to which the groom responded, was given by Mgr. Patrick McPherson. Card Gauthier circulated the guest book.

Following the reception, the couple left for a honeymoon trip through New Brunswick, Cape Trail and Sydney. For traveling the bride chose a three piece navy blue and a white linen suit with white accessories and corsage of white feathered carnations.

Price to their marriage the bride was attended by a delicate lace shower by Mrs. Ellen MacMillan and Mrs. Joan Gauthier, at the home of Mrs. Gauthier.

Out of town guests were: A. J. Cullen, Toronto, Mrs. Greg McNeil, and Mrs. Gerald McNeil, Mrs. Gerald Murphy and Ann MacDonald all of Sydney, N.S. and Mrs. Leda Doyle, Moncton, N.B. (Photo by C.D. Mackay)

ELLEN'S DIARY Autumn's Muted Colors Accent Wooded Hilltops

We put away the veranda's chairs this afternoon and other articles of summer use that were put about the veranda, that after some strange out, we passed, passing notion of a pair of lips had been laid on my face, less in the garage through the summer, though only in a slight stage of decay. The pottery, although too, we stored it on the lawn each summer and as has been covered now by such small ones past the toddlers age as could reach young hands to splash in the water than by our visiting birds. Not that our feathered friends ever needed to quench their thirst there, with dew-drenched flowers, cups to drink from in the garden, and the stream running near.

And all the time Autumn was busy on the farmlands, muting now the orange shades, accenting the crimsons, along fence wood and in the absence of sunlight which was fatal to day, the unharvested fields were more ambered than gold. And from a hilltop, in a sign of harvest completed on another farm, we could look off to the Island of plowed fields to the Glimmer of sunlight, though mostly clouded or even misty, the day was. And we recalled that last evening, some people had been including blades of grass in his diet, and the sun had been as we said "driving water" as it went down waxy behind the autumn hills, one day to harvesting today, one of our farmers offered this morning, taking stock of wind and sky.

"Looks as" another agreed. "So the harvesting machines remained unused, and the others of the farming saw service instead...There is that about the farming. When one endeavour must be suspended because of some whim of the weather, another can be taken up, at least there is no time left to be spent in reaping, no in waiting for the day to pass quickly.

There came "the crashing" of a barn. All at once, it could hear the low hum of the cruiser. We saw water carry a small black object, and heard the speaker presently scattering the lapping water. It strikes the back of the little truck and the strobe-lights indicated that a fence somewhere was about to be strengthened or repaired. A quiet day - this One of light fulfil breezes, and scented One that we fragrances, that it puts up woods' paths were fading, and the golden-rods along the stream, by westerly winds were now past their fresh gold in bloom.

"We must harvest the dahlias!" we said to Alex. "One of these days."

"Some sunny day" he nodded. "In silence the morning came. In silence the day goes. No star is there tonight to guide it, nor is there a moonbeamed path to follow."

"It's fairly dark yet, Ellen. But it may get stars shortly. After all it wasn't a bad sunset, was it? Remember the red sky - a 'windy sky', some would call it. We may have a nice day tomorrow." James says, come in from a visit to the houses at Rob's.

Good-night. --- Diary --- Good-night.

MARY HAWORTH An Inresponsible Wife An Infantile Husband

Dear Mary Haworth, What can I do about a disreputable law who doesn't wash her dishes from one week to the next? Nor does she clean up her house. The place is always a terrible mess.

My son asked me to straighten her out. I tried; I even offered to help with the cleaning but she refused me.

I told my son to talk to her mother. He did. Her mother said if Joe doesn't want her, she may come home (to mother's) but she is essentially depressed; or to put it plainly, emotionally sick.

Thus, the sound reaction of a responsible next-of-kin (the role of the spouse in marriage) would be to help her to the attention of a first-rate medical diagnostician, also to a psychiatrist's attention. If the situation seems baffled, to decipher, if possible, the basis of her melancholy. And equally important, to

IDA BAILEY ALLEN Cream Vegetable Soups You Can Put Stock In

CREAM soups are made in two ways - with or without soup stock. If the latter is used it should be chicken or veal broth. The flavoured base of the soup may be of cooked vegetables. In any case the soup is really nothing more than a combination of equal parts of foundation white sauce, with a cup of light cream or half 'n' half, and broth with a sufficient quantity of cream to give it a rich adequate seasoning. The latter is absolutely essential. The latter is absolutely essential. The latter is absolutely essential. The latter is absolutely essential.

ADDITIONAL PROTEIN As a garnish cream soup contains quite a large quantity of milk and as it can always be poured over a hot meat, it is upon one or two beaten eggs just before serving, it should be served only in light meals lacking in protein. Whipped cream should be used only as a garnish when the remainder of the meal is deficient in fat.

At luncheon or supper, cream soups may be served in small bowls, marmites, or bouillon cups. At dinner they are usually served in soup plates. Cream soups are a little minced parsley, dill or fresh frozen chives are suitable garnishes. Measurements table: recipes

BASIC RECIPE FOR REAL CREAM SOUPS
1/2 c. boiling water or chicken or veal broth
1 tsp salt
1/2 tsp pepper
1/2 tsp instant or grated onion
1/2 tsp sugar
2 c. packed down of raw vegetable desired, fine-chopped or put through coarse kind of food-chopper before measuring
1 qt. heated whole milk
1/2 cup butter
2 tbsp. room-soft butter or margarine
1/2 cup milk
1 c. light cream or half 'n' half
1 c. Combine water or broth, salt, pepper, onion, sugar and vegetable. Simmer 15 min. or until vegetable is tender. Puree if desired. (Don't use a blender.) Add milk; bring to boil. Stir in flour and butter cream together with 2 tbsp hot milk. Heat egg light; stir in cream. Stir into boiling soup; continue to stir-heat but do not boil.

CREAM OF CUCUMBER SOUP: Follow basic recipe with these exceptions - use 3 c. cream of cucumber and 1 thin-sliced peeled onion slow.

simmered until clear in 2 tbsp. butter or margarine; use only 2 c. milk (instead of 1 qt.) with 1 pt. chicken or veal broth, when nearly done, add 1/2 tsp. powdered flour.

CREAM OF ONION: Follow method for making cream soups using 2 c. chopped peeled mild fresh or canned onion. Dust with 1/2 tsp paprika.

CREAM OF ASPARAGUS: Follow general method for making cream soups using 2 c. sliced shaved from asparagus, or mixture of frozen or canned asparagus and frozen beef or carrots. Add 1/2 tsp nutmeg or mace.

TOMORROW'S DINNER Cream of Cucumber Soup
Croustons
Broiled Lamb Chops
Braised Seasoned Broiled Eggplant
Sizzling French Fries
Green Tomato Pickle
Apricot Compote Lady Fingers
Coffee or Tea Milk
The Chef's Lamb Chops With Sesame-Seed Bread

Dress up the service of broiled lamb chops of any cut by serving sliced hot on lettuce or sautéed round slices of sesame-seeded eggplant. To prepare, brush slices with not-wet French dressing. Cover evenly with sesame seeds. Let stand 10 min. before broiling. Then cook on both sides. Top each with a broiled chop. Garnish: Parsley or sprigs of mint.

teach the family how to help her get back on the beam of well ordered living. It may be that she and Joe married too young, in terms of adolescent age and overall unpreparedness to carry the responsibilities and taxes of the married state, which includes paying bills, embracing matrimony, doing without the variety of companions that one takes for granted in footloose years, and so on.

Also Joe may contribute heavily, if unwisely, to the demoralized atmosphere that he blames on her, by neglecting to include in marriage that includes family in character - that are impatient unassuming, arbitrary, self-centered and the like.

In appealing to you to "stratagem" the wife, I definitely disclose that he's not yet a man in his own right, and that he leans on you, as a spoiled child on his caretaker, to go out and fight his battles or solve his problems for him, if he meets with obstacles.

Whether he is under your thumb or tied to your apron strings, I see no clue from your narrative. But that is a question that he should investigate thoroughly with specialist help, in order to try to discover what's wrong with his marriage, and with himself as the largely responsible party.
