

WOULD BE FIRST TO CANADA

Pope Plans Expo Visit, Vatican Source Reveals

POPE PAUL

VATICAN CITY (CP-AP)—A reliable Vatican source said Saturday Pope Paul has decided to visit Canada next year during the Montreal world's fair.

The source said the dates of the visit have not been fixed yet, but that the Vatican already has begun such advance planning as gathering information on possible flight arrangements.

The visit would be first by a pope to Canada.

In Montreal, a spokesman for Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, Archbishop of Montreal, said no official word had been received by the cardinal indicating the Pope intended to visit Canada.

And Pierre Dupuy, commissioner-general of the fair, commented that rumors have been circulating and rumors are rumors. "That's all I can say at this stage."

An Expo 67 spokesman said an invitation for such a visit would have been made by Ottawa and so far, fair officials had not heard of such an invitation being sent.

In Windsor, Ont., External Affairs Minister Martin commented that he knew nothing of the reported visit.

CALLS IMPROBABLE

(Reuters news agency quoted a Vatican spokesman as saying it is improbable the Pope plans to visit Canada for Expo 67.

But Reuters noted that Vatican sources in October, 1965, said the Pope had ordered "absolute discretion" so soundings for his future journeys could be impressed by plans for an inter-faith pavilion planned for the fair.

At the New York 1964-65 world's fair, the Vatican set up its own pavilion and sent from St. Peter's Basilica one of the Roman Catholic Church's priceless treasures, Michelangelo's Pieta Statue of Mary and Christ.

At the Montreal fair, Roman Catholic, Methodist, Baptist, Anglican and other faiths will occupy a single pavilion.

The Pope was said to have informed his apostolic delegate to Canada, Archbishop Sergio Pignedoli, of his decision to visit Canada several weeks before the archbishop went to South Viet Nam last month on a fact-finding mission for the pontiff.

In Ottawa, a radio station quoted Archbishop Pignedoli as saying he had not discussed such a visit with the Pope when he was in Rome but talked only of Viet Nam. Informed of the Ottawa report, the Vatican source reaffirmed that the Pope definitely plans the trip to Canada.

Ever since Pope Paul made history with his trip to the Holy Land in January, 1964, his desire to travel to other countries to help bring his church more fully into the life of the modern world has been obvious.

Soviet Union Shift Of Emphasis Is Noted On War In Viet Nam

By HENRY S. BRADSHAW
MOSCOW (AP)—Shifts of emphasis in the Soviet position on Viet Nam are being studied by diplomats here for hints of Kremlin willingness to try to arrange peace.

Taken at their most extreme interpretation, the shifts might mean that the Soviet Union now is moving cautiously toward setting up a settlement, with North Viet Nam's approval.

Clues pointing this way might be read into speeches in recent days by Leonid Brezhnev, Communist party general secretary, and Premier Alexei Kosygin.

But this is far from certain. At the other extreme, the shifts could be interpreted simply as tactical responses to American statements, lacking any deeper significance.

TAKES TOUGH STAND

The no-significant-change school of analysts was supported Sunday by a Soviet-Polish communiqué. In effect, it reiterated Hanoi's tough position dating back to April, 1965.

This includes demands for a halt of U.S. air raids on North Viet Nam, an American withdrawal from South Viet Nam and a long-range settlement dictated by the Viet Cong.

This position is unacceptable to Washington.

Shifts of emphasis from the basic Communist position have been noticeable long enough to suggest a possible connection with two recent developments.

They are the checking of Communist offensive action in South Viet Nam by the massive American forces and the "great cultural revolution" that has shown China to be an unstable and possibly unreliable ally for Hanoi.

After these developments became obvious, Premier Pham

Van Dong of North Viet Nam and his defence minister secretly visited the Soviet Union for talks in August.

Then the Soviet Union began a series of bilateral talks with its East European allies. They will culminate this week in a Soviet bloc summit meeting in Moscow.

Perhaps these events are not directly related in a way that shows a sequence of developments leading to the shifts of emphasis. Diplomatic analysts cannot be sure, but they are intrigued.

Some of them suggest this tentative interpretation: Hanoi decided the war cannot be won outright. With China both unstable and refusing to facilitate aid deliveries from other Communist countries to Hanoi, the North Vietnamese government decided that a settlement would be better than continuing to absorb losses.

But any rush toward a settlement would weaken the Communist negotiating position and so there now is a cautiously slow movement, these analysts claim.

Maybe Kosygin offered a clue. He said Thursday that the Vietnamese war would have been stopped if China had co-operated with Communist aid efforts.

Brezhnev in a speech Saturday said that to remove the main obstacle to better Soviet-American relations, the United States must stop air raids on North Viet Nam, "stop the aggressive war against the Vietnamese people, respect not in words but in deeds the independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity of other countries and peoples."

Brezhnev omitted a clear demand for a U.S. withdrawal and a Viet Cong-dictated settlement, although these reappeared in Polish-Soviet communiqué.

All things considered, there was quite a lot left of the old tin lizzy buried by the sentimental Andrews because he couldn't bare to see someone alter its classic lines.

JUST AS IS

"Most collectors would give their eye teeth for the chassis on one of these old cars," said

Versteeg. "But we'll probably put it on display just as it is because it would cost too much to clean."

"It was like one of our children coming home," said a representative of Ford Motor Co. which wasn't about to miss such an opportunity.

Andrews buried the car in his back yard in 1965 after he could find no one who would promise to preserve it intact.

He offered it to a son-in-law, William Morris Sr., now 65, but Morris said he planned to put a sport car body on it.

Old Perry apparently couldn't bear the thought.

He died in the 1930s and it's probably a good thing he wasn't here Saturday to see what mother nature did to those classic lines.

But it didn't make any difference. Everybody had a high old time.

FREE DOUGHNUTS

Besides Ford, an auto-parts maker showed up with free coffee and doughnuts and little-lapel stickers that said, "happy digging." The Model T Club also showed up.

U.S. Senator Robert P. Griffin, a Republican in a close election race, also showed up to pump some hands.

Saskatchewan PCs Are Informed Dief Expects To Remain Leader

MOOSE JAW (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Saturday he expected to remain leader of the Progressive Conservative party "for some time to come."

Speaking to about 400 persons at a rally after the Saskatchewan Progressive Conservative party convention, Mr. Diefenbaker said "as long as I am in this position and I have health and party support, the leadership will not be turned over to any small group whoever they may be."

He referred to critics within his own party as "small groups who go about the country acting as custodians of the human soul."

On the recent Liberal party convention at Ottawa, Mr. Diefenbaker said the Liberals had fallen into the hands of powerful interests, and referred specifically to Finance Minister Sharp who, he said, "is the pampered pet of power."

Diplomat Will Propose Moving UN From N.Y.

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The idea that the United Nations should move out of the United States will be revived this week in the General Assembly's budgetary committee.

Ambassador Jamil M. Baroudy of Saudi Arabia said Sunday he will suggest to the committee that they consider transferring UN headquarters to Europe—preferably to Switzerland.

He expects to speak in the 119-nation committee today or Tuesday. He told a reporter he would urge the delegates to think twice before giving Secretary-General U Thant a go-ahead to plan another building for the present headquarters grounds.

Baroudy, a 61-year-old UN veteran, said he had been thinking about making the speech for a year or more as other delegates came to him with complaints about life in New York City. He said he had decided to do it even before 19 American Zionists invaded the Syrian UN Mission Friday, prompting a protest from the 62-nation Asian-African group.

That said Saturday he would tell the U.S. it must safeguard the representatives and the missions of other UN members in New York.

PROMISED AMBASSADORS

That made that promise to three ambassadors who gave him the protest from the Asian-African group.

A UN spokesman later announced that Thant had asked for a meeting on the subject today with Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg, head of the U.S. mission, who already has apologized for the incident and signed charges against the intruders.

Viet Cong Mine Fired In Saigon

SAIGON (AP)—The Viet Cong set off a mine near a bus stop for U.S. servicemen in Saigon today, killing an American soldier and an aged Vietnamese woman.

Six other American servicemen and two Vietnamese were wounded by the homemade Claymore mine, apparently set off by a timing device.

The Claymore, which can be pre-aimed, went off about the time American servicemen from three nearby enlisted men's billets start to gather at the bus stop.

It was the first attack at or near an American billet in Saigon since April 1, when the Victoria officers' billet was attacked by the Viet Cong with bombs and machine-guns. Three Americans and three Vietnamese were killed and 113 Americans and 30 other persons were injured in that attack.

Johnson Leaves
On Tour Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—After a final flurry of domestic activities, President Johnson sets off today on an historical 25,000-mile journey through the Far East.

Johnson plans to visit six countries during his 17-day jaunt. It will be the first time an American president has set foot in Australia, New Zealand, Thailand and Malaysia, as well as American Samoa. The other two countries on Johnson's list, the Philippines and South Korea, were visited by President Eisenhower in 1960.

It will be Johnson's first trip outside the Western Hemisphere since he became president in 1963 although he did visit 34 countries as vice-president under John F. Kennedy.

The seven-nation Manila conference also is the first multi-nation summit conference in Asia to be attended by a U.S. president.

HAS BUSY SCHEDULE

The Oct. 24-25 Manila meeting, to deal with issues of war and peace in Southeast Asia, is the core of Johnson's trip around which he has arranged a bustling itinerary.

His first destination is Honolulu. At Honolulu, Johnson heads into a busy round of speeches and visiting with crowds and VIP's.

At dawn Tuesday he is off to Pago Pago where, during a brief refueling stop, he tours the island and sees native dancers. Then it is on to Wellington, New Zealand, for a crammed 24 hours including a television address, and so on around the circuit, including a call on U.S. soldiers near the north-south Korean border before returning to Washington via Alaska Nov. 2.

Mrs. Johnson will be with her husband much of the way, but also will make side tours of her own.

Threats Heard On LBJ's Life

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Australian newspapers reported today two threats to shoot President Johnson when he visits Australia this week.

The Sydney Daily Mirror says a man telephoned its office and said he would "blow Johnson's head off" during the president's motorcade through the city Saturday.

Asked why, the man said he had lost a 19-year-old son in Viet Nam.

The other threat was reported by an Adelaide newspaper, The News. It says a man telephoned its office Sunday and said he overheard a group of men plotting to shoot the president.

Four Factors Noted Against Present Site

Soviet premier, he complained that the United States infringed upon the rights of some UN representatives, especially African and Asians, and suggested that the headquarters be moved to Switzerland, Austria or the Soviet Union. He made the suggestion in the 1960 General Assembly's policy debate.

Baroudy's take-off point is a request from Thant for a $150,000 appropriation to finance an architectural and engineering survey that would produce plans and cost estimates for a new UN building up to 32 stories.

The UN secretariat, with more than 4,250 people, has outgrown the present 29-storey secretariat building and the UN children's fund and development program have to rent offices in a nearby commercial block for $671,000 a year. So Thant proposes to put up a second secretariat building on the headquarters grounds by 1971.

Body Found In Ont. Lake

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP)—A woman's body was recovered Saturday from nearby Lake Couchiching close to the cottage of a wealthy Toronto widow, who disappeared three years ago.

Minnie Ford was last seen near her suburban Toronto home May 18, 1963. An extensive search, extending as far as Florida, was conducted after Mrs. Ford's disappearance, but no trace of her was found.

Schooner Survivors Search
Discontinued Off Labrador

HALIFAX (CP)—A search for possible survivors of the small coastal schooner Sandy Point off Labrador's south coast has been discontinued.

The coast guard vessel Montcalm, a helicopter, and an Albatross aircraft from CFB Greenwood searched the area off the Labrador coast near the Spotted Islands Saturday but without success.

The air-sea rescue centre in Halifax said the search has been suspended "for the time being" but should further leads develop they will resume the hunt.

The two-nation, 33-foot schooner sailed from Cartwright, Labrador, Oct. 2 with a cargo of scrap metal for St. John's, Nfld. She has not been heard from since.

On board were Lester O'Brien and his wife of Moncton, and three Newfoundland residents, Captain James Crockett of Bay Bulls Ed Hollett of St. John's and John Pyles of Marystown.

Wreckage and pieces of clothing were found washed up on the shores of the Spotted Islands off Labrador's south coast Tuesday.

(Mr. O'Brien is well known in Charlottetown where he has been frequent visitor for a number of years in connection with the operation of his firm, O'Brien Iron and Metal Co., Ltd., Lower Prince Street.)

Baby Delivered Alive After Mother's Death

MAGNOLIA, Miss. (AP)—A doctor said he delivered a healthy baby at a hospital here Sunday more than one hour after its mother died—a feat he and other medical experts considered "impossible."

Dr. Robert E. Drake delivered the six-pound, four-ounce boy by post-mortem caesarean section one hour and 20 minutes after he had pronounced the mother dead at her home. He said the mother could have been dead as much as an hour before he first examined her.

Dr. Dan W. Beacham, associate professor of gynecology and obstetrics at Tulane University medical school in New Orleans, said it would have been "impossible" for the baby to have lived that long if the mother's blood had stopped flowing.

Beacham said a baby would normally die within 10 minutes, 15 at the maximum, in such a case.

FELT HEARTBEAT

Dr. Drake said when he discovered the baby's heart beating "I felt the mother had to be alive. But after all other tests showed she was dead, I checked to see if she would bleed. She didn't. If she didn't bleed, she's dead."

Drake, whose specialty is ophthalmology, said he went to the house Saturday night after the hospital received a report that Mrs. Fanelia Anderson, about 25, had died at her rural home.

"At the time," he said, "I didn't know she was pregnant. After I got to the house, I found out she was more than eight months pregnant."

Drake said he pronounced the mother dead at 11:40 p.m. but discovered the baby's heart still beating. He said he took the body to the hospital and delivered the healthy baby at 1 a.m. Sunday.

He said the mother had died of a brain hemorrhage.

Dr. Drake, asked about Dr. Beacham's comment on the birth, said: "I'm glad to have an authority such as him say it could not happen."

"My experience in this case proves wrong what I had been taught in medical school. It may help others to save a baby's life if they learn of this case."

Bus-Train Crash Toll Reaches 20

MONTREAL (CP)—Guy Boucher, 15, of Dorion, Que., died in hospital Saturday night of injuries suffered in the Oct. 7 bus-train collision in Dorion, Que., bringing to 20 the number of fatalities from the mishap.

A total of 19 persons, including the bus driver and teen-aged students going to a dance, died during the evening collision or shortly afterwards. More than 20 were injured.

Meanwhile, Dimanche-Matin, a French-language weekly, said it learned that a 14-year-old boy has admitted to authorities that he had lifted the barrier at the railway crossing before the collision.

CNR officials, whose freight train was involved in the collision, however, are not commenting on the possible cause of the accident pending completion of an investigation.
