CUT WHALING LIMITS

Limits on the world whale catch will be reduced for 1965-66. Last season only 6,984 of 8,000 available units were caught.

Russian Official Outlines Atlantic Area Fishing Plans

HALIFAX (CP)—A Russian fisheries official said here the Soviet Union will continue to fish the northwest Atlantic for large quantities of herring and silver hake—two species of fish that are in good supply.

Dr. A. S. Bogdanvo, director of the Soviet Union Research Institute of Marine Fisheries

Dr. Bogdanvo is the chief Russian delegate atetnding the 15th annual meeting of the International Commission for the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries here this week. The meeting, attended by 13 member nations and Japan, ends Saturday.

CANADA TAKES MOST

The Soviet Union caught 617,000 metric tons of fish in the northwest Atlantic in 1964, compared with Canada's catch of 800,000 metric tons. The United States was a distant third with 358,000 tons, and Spain fourth with 230,000 tons.

Most of the 300,000 tons of silver hake and 300,000 tons of herring taken were caught by the Soviet Union. They took 167,000 tons of silver hake and 130,000 tons of herring from Georges Banks, one of the northwest Atlantic's heaviest-fished grounds off the coast of New England.

The Russians rely little on the haddock, which is being exploited beyond its optimum sustained yield of 5,000,000 tons a year on Georges Bank. Most of the haddock are taken from the banks by Canadian and United States fishermen.

The Soviet Union increased its catch of scallops in the northwest Atlantic in 1964, but Dr. Bogdanvo said the country had a poor market for the fish. Most were exported to the United States.

The Soviet Union is raising large quantities of fish and releasing them in their lakes and rivers, he said. Many of them were salmon and sturgeon. Some of their fish-raising programs have been disappointing, however, with other nations catching the fish before they have reached maturity.

The largest single user of platinum is the electrical industry, which has found palladium, one of its elements, an excellent conductor.

Economic Front Gains Foreseen By Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said he sees "no reason for gloom or doom," and predicted solid but moderate gains for the U.S. economy during the rest of 1965.

The president also told reporters, after conferring with chairman William M. Martin of the federal reserve board and other fiscal advisers, that there are "no cross-currents, divisions or conflicts" within the administration.

The White House meeting took place amid a continuing furore over a speech Martin made June 1 in which he spoke of "disquieting similarities between our present prosperity and the fabulous twenties."

Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler said just before he accompanied Martin into the meeting with Johnson that he agrees wholly with Martin's insistence on maintaining the dollar's integrity—and also with Martin's right to declare his misgivings publicly.

In Congress, however, Representative Wright Patman (Dem. Tex.) chairman of the House banking committee and a long-time adversary of Martin, said the federal reserve board chairman should resign.

In a speech in the House, Patman said Martin has challenged Johnson's economic policy, frightened the stock market into a nosedive, and advocated what Patman called a disastrous tight-money policy.

Martin was asked after the White House meeting if he is going to resign. He smiled and said: "When and if I desire to resign, I'll let you know."

and Oceanography, said the large catches of herring and silver hake his nation hopes to take in the northwest Atlantic will have little effect on the fishing industries of Canada and the United States.

Williamson Gets 6 Months In Jail

VANCOUVER (CP) — Public relations man Al Williamson was sentenced here to six months in jail and fined $1,000 in Supreme Court for forging and uttering the "Deal Hal" letter.

Williamson, 60, collapsed in the prisoner's box when found guilty last Friday. He looked pale but stoic when sentenced by Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe.

He embraced and kissed his sobbing wife before he was taken into custody before transfer to Oakalla prison to serve the sentence.

Opening lead — jack of clubs.

Convincing an opponent that a condition exists, which actually does not, or convincing an opponent that a condition does not exist, which actually does, is a legitimate part of the game which can be helpful on many occasions.

Here is a case where a well-conceived falsecard by West resulted in the defeat of a slam which declarer might otherwise have made.

The hand occurred in a rubber bridge game. West was Phil Feldesman, well-known New York expert. He led a club.

Declarer considered the matter thoroughly and decided to pin his hopes on a crossruff. Accordingly, he took three rounds of clubs, discarding a spade from dummy, and then cashed the ace of spades and ruffed a spade. He next played the ace of hearts and ruffed a low heart, and it was on this trick that Feldesman made his false-card.

Instead of following with the eight of hearts, which would have been quite normal, Feldesman followed with the king. He was trying to persuade South that he had started with only two hearts, the K-3.

Declarer now ruffed the ten of spades in dummy and continued with a heart. This time he ruffed with the jack, since he was afraid that West might be able to overruff the six of trumps with the eight. But West followed suit with a heart and South realized too late that it would have been better to ruff low.

Nine tricks having been played, South's hand now consisted of the queen of spades and K-Q-6 of diamonds. West's four cards were the A-8-4-3 of diamonds.

Declarer led the queen of with dummy's only remaining spades, overruffing the three with dummy's only remaining trump, the ten. When declarer then made the forced lead of a heart from dummy, he could not avoid going down one. Actually, he ruffed with the queen, but Feldesman underruffer and then took the last two tricks with the A-8 of trumps.
