Pork And Beef Prices Likely To Remain High

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) Canadian prices of pork and beef will remain high through most of 1966, says Dave Adams, secretary of the Meat Packers' Council of Canada.

Mr. Adams addressed farmers here Wednesday in the Ontario department of agriculture county farmers' schools.

A price of $25 per hundred-weight is "the worst that could happen" to prices of beef in Toronto this year, he said. However, a shortage develops, prices might go as high as $30.

An apparent shortage of cows will mean a "firm market" for this manufacturing meat.

In 1965, Canada sent 450,000 head of feeder cattle, 58,000 slaughter cattle and 70,000,000 pounds of processed beef to the U.S. market, Mr. Adams said. There were no beef imports.

About 62,000,000 pounds of pork was exported to the U.S. in 1965, and 28,000,000 pounds of U.S. pork reached the Canadian market. This was an increase of nearly 30,000,000 pounds exported to that country since 1963, and an equal decrease in imported pork since that year.

There is no indication that U.S. farmers are ready to return to hog production, said Mr. Adams. There will be a strong demand for Canadian pork in that country until they do.

Per capita consumption of beef rose by five pounds last year from 1964 to about 83 pounds. Pork consumption per capita dropped about three pounds to 49 and poultry consumption remained constant at about 35 pounds.

He said beef continues to account for about four cents of each consumer dollar, unchanged from 1960. There was a slight decrease in consumer spending on pork, and poultry's share of the consumer dollar has dropped rapidly since 1959 despite rising production.

Laying Pullets Availability Seen Need For Poultrymen

By NEIL MATHESON

An establishment that would provide laying pullets on order for Island poultrymen, was suggested to the Approved Flock Association yesterday by Lee P. McIsaac, Mermald at its annual meeting held in the Legion home in Kensington.

As it is now, Mr. McIsaac explained, a poultryman sells off his mature laying hens, cleans out the house, disinfests it thoroughly and generally has to wait for months before he can raise the replacement layers from day-old chicks. If such an establishment were available to produce ready-to-lay pullets on order, the laying house could be refilled immediately and the egg-producing establishment would be back in business, it was suggested.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Edwin Black, poultry fieldman, N.B., department of agriculture, Sussex. Others who spoke included Agriculture Minister A. B. MacRae, S. C. Wright, deputy minister; Charlie Scranton, agricultural products inspector at Charlottetown, who introduced Mr. Black; Elmer Waugh, Wilnot Valley who thanked the Long River Women's Institute for a tasty turkey dinner with plum pudding; V. T. E. Lotherington, district supervisor poultry, Canada department of agriculture at Moncton; Dr. H. H. Kelly, provincial veterinarian, and Alvin MacDonald, Covehead.

President Lloyd Burns, Freetown presided.

FINANCED JOINTLY

Mr. McIsaac suggested that the establishment that would be available to provide laying pullets on order—they would be ordered perhaps six months before they would be needed in action—would probably be financed jointly by a group of poultrymen across the province who would be interested in such a plan.

The suggestion came late in the afternoon, too late for any concrete action to develop on it, but it was marked for special attention at a directors' meeting later, it was suggested by Mr. Burns.

Mr. McIsaac is known more widely in the province for his machinery business in Charlottetown, but he runs a fairly large farm establishment at Mermald a few miles outside the City, across the Hillsboro River. He has a hatchery flock of some 2,900 hens last year, for example. And he runs a herd of Angus beef cattle among other things.

The Mermald - Charlottetown farmer and businessman explained that there is money available now through ARDA, and probably some other programs, to assist in creating such developments as he suggested, if the problem is attacked in the proper perspective.

PRICE FLUCTUATIONS

Mr. Burns suggested as he opened the meeting that some form of marketing organization should be discussed. He was referring to the wildly fluctuating market conditions that left egg producers, for example, operating at a loss through a portion of last year, hitting unusually high prices during the last four or five months, only to have them plunge a week or so ago to a level that barely covers the cost of production.

Efficient flock management for maximum returns was the subject of Mr. Black's talk. Efficient management, he suggested, consists mostly of putting into practice the things one already knows.

Starting baby chicks is all important, Mr. Black told the poultrymen, though it is often not taken that seriously.

The first day of a baby chick's life, the fifth and the 19th are days of particular stress physiologically, he explained — "don't ask me why" — and the poultrymen should be particularly careful not to add any additional stress on these days.

The starting temperature is important, he said, don't overheat, and don't overcrowd — this can have lasting ill effects. Use deep feeders and do not over fill, to avoid needless waste of feed, he urged.

Annual Church Meeting Held At Harrington

The annual meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Harrington, was held last evening in the church.

Hugh Lowry conducted the worship service and acted as chairman for the meeting. Allie Carr was the recording secretary.

The financial statement was given by Mrs. A. Phillips which showed that the congregation had had a successful year. All the allocations towards the General Assembly, Synod, and Presbytery had been met.

The trustee board stated that during the year a new flue had been built and that repairs had been made to the manse also the exterior had been painted and new windows upstairs had been installed.

Mrs. J. Rodd gave the report for the W.M.S. which showed that they had had an active year that the interest among the members was high.

The Ladies' Aid report showed that the group had been very active and closed the year with a small balance.

The Young People's report was given by Lynn Rodd and Arthur Hughes. The report stated that the year had been a busy one that besides making their allocations to the Presbytery, they had taken on as their project $100 towards the organ and that for a home mission project they had helped a needy family at Christmas.

The report of the Kirk Session showed an increase in membership and that children and adults had been baptised during the year.

The S.S. report was read by Robert Roberts in the absence of the secretary treasurer which showed that the attendance had dropped during the year. The report showed a balance in the treasury.

A vote of thanks was extended to the minister on behalf of the Young People by Miss Rodd and by Bobbie Roberts on behalf of the congregation for his leadership during the year.

The meeting was brought to a close with the benediction by Mr. Lowry.

Town Firemen Answer 25 Calls

KENSINGTON — Fire Chief Bruce MacLeod in his report at the Kensington Town Council meeting on Monday night, stated that the Fire Department had responded to 25 calls outside the town limits and five within the town, not the reverse as reported Tuesday.

Mr. MacLeod said that some of these were grass fires, some were fuel fires, and in some cases the fire had been extinguished before the firemen arrived.

This did not alter the fact that the firemen were absent from their regular work, and the truck was in use from the time they left the fire hall until their return, and the firemen and equipment were not available had they been needed.
