LINES

In Memory of Miss Bridget Lantry.
Not dead, but sleeping, softly sleeping,
Resting after toilsome years,
Where nor earthly wail nor weeping
Wrings the heart with anguished fears,
Safe within His sacred keeping
In a home where flow not tears.

Deeds of mercy, great in merit,
Noble deeds as nobly done,
More than lettered pages tell it
Of the priceless crown she's won:
Souls she sought in earnest spirit
For the Great Eternal One.

Earth has heroes rich in glory;
Nations echo with their fame,
Lauds their deeds in battle gory,
Trumpets forth each mighty name;
But who heeds the simple story
Of another hero's claim?

Theirs no deeds of mighty valor
Blazoned with a nation's praise;
But, afar from earthly clamor
Struggled they through weary days
For the souls He fain would gather,—
Souls He came on earth to save.

Those the heroes all should honor,
Those the deeds that merit fame;
Earth may heed them not; but, yonder,
Heaven shall trumpet forth their name.
One has left us, may He crown her
'Mong His mightiest, high in fame. M.

SUPREME COURT.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 12.

The Queen on the prosecution of James H. McDonald vs. John McRae, indictment for assault. The Grand Jury returned a true bill.

The Queen on the prosecution of Charles Macdonald vs. John McRae, indictment for assault. The Grand Jury returned a true bill.

Donald Nicholson vs. Ephraim McKenzie. Action on account. Judgment for plaintiff for $69.18. James H. Reddin for plaintiff; Arthur Mellish for defendant.

The Queen on the prosecution of William Webster vs. James H. Cumiskey. Indictment for assault. The Grand Jury find no bill.

Before the Grand Jury were discharged they brought in the usual report regarding their visit to the public institutions. They report finding the Hospital for the Insane in first-class condition, everything possible being done to render the condition of the inmates as comfortable and pleasant as possible under existing circumstances. The building, however, is very much overcrowded and increased accommodation is an urgent necessity. They found the poor-house overcrowded and several inmates sick. One of the inmates is in the last stages of consumption, and they suggest his removal to a more suitable and comfortable place. In the jail they found with other prisoners several boys ranging in age from nine to fourteen years. In this connection they suggest that a reformatory or some other suitable place be provided rather than place boys of that age with old and hardened criminals.

The jury also submitted a list of constables and fence viewers for the ensuing year.

DEATH OF AN ISLANDER.—An exchange says: William Maher, a native of Prince Edward Island, who for the past seven months has made St. John his home, was found dead in his bed on Monday morning, in his home. The case is a peculiarly sad one, as Maher had depending upon him a wife and eight small children, who are left by his death in a state of absolute destitution. The man was an engineer by trade, and first became acquainted with St. John while second engineer on the coal steamer Coban. He is reported to have been a first-rate man and since his arrival in St. John city has been given employment on the Prince Rupert while regular men were laid up.

OBITUARY.
It is with deep regret we announce the death of Daniel A. McDonald, Orwell Cove, which sad event took place on the 7th inst., after a lingering illness of two weeks of slow fever in the eleventh year of his age. The deceased was the oldest and dearly beloved son of Donald D. McDonald. He was both gentle and kind, and his winning manners made him a special favorite with all his comrades, in whose hearts are enshrined the loving memory which it will be long ere it shall be forgotten. His funeral to Vernon River took place on Sunday the 9th inst., followed by a large concourse of people and a procession of his young fellow friends whose hearts were touched with sorrow at losing a loving friend who can never be replaced. To his sorrowing father we extend our sincere sympathy. May his soul rest in peace.
The child of our love and affection
We have laid to his long last rest.
When God made his choice it was cast
On the treasure we prized the best.
As like the snow-flake, spotless,
That falls to its source, the sea,
Ere the world had defied his spirit
We gave him back, Lord, to Thee.

ANONYMOUS LETTERS.—The anonymous letter fiend is again at work, and several specimens of his meanness have lately passed through the post office. One of these contemptible epistles intended for a young man in this city fell into the hands of his parents and caused a great deal of trouble. If the identity of the writer becomes known he will be punished as he deserves.

FARM PURCHASED.—Captain H. W. Mutch today purchased the farm of the late Michael McLeod, at Point Prim. The farm contains about two hundred acres, and brought $1670. It was disposed of at auction by A. McNeill.

Queen Victoria is outlasting all her household. Lord Bridport, who has become very infirm, will soon resign his office as Lord-in-Waiting, and it is probable that he will be succeeded by his son-in-law, Lord Hertford. Lord Bridport, who has been a member of the Royal household for more than fifty years, has been successively Groom-in-Waiting, Clerk Marshal to the Prince Consort, Equerry-in-Ordinary to the Queen, and Lord-in-Waiting.
After serious illness, like typhoid fever, pneumonia or the grip, Hood's Sarsaparilla has wonderful strength-giving power.
