BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

(By Thornton W. Burgess)

THE HAPPY BUBBLES

Bubbling joy is everywhere—
In the water; in the air.

—Peter Rabbit.

It did seem that way. It really did. The air was full of happy voices. Some were lovely, so lovely that Peter sometimes felt that he could listen to them forever. Some were not lovely at all. They were even harsh. At any other time of year they would have been unpleasant. But now there was something in them that made even the harshest of them good to hear. It was happiness, the happiness that sweet Mistress Spring always brings with her, happiness that no other season of the year knows or ever can know. There is happiness in Summer and Fall and Winter. Of course. But it is not the same kind of happiness for the happiness of Spring is of mingled love and hope and faith and the simple joy of just being alive, not to be found in such fullness in any other time of the whole year.

Peter Rabbit simply couldn't stay at home in the dear Old Briar-patch. He simply couldn't. There really was nothing to keep him in the Old Briar-patch but the fact

Yesterday's Answer

West dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

West: ♠ 3 2, ♣ K 7 3, ♠ 8 5 2, ♣ 7 6 4 3

East: ♠ 10 9 7 5, ♣ J 9 8 5 4, ♠ 4, ♣ K 10

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
Pass	Pass	Pass	4 ♣

South said later that he had considered going slowly in the bidding, but felt that with West making a vulnerable opening, it was sure that two clubs tricks would have to be lost, and therefore he had jumped directly to game.

This was sound enough reasoning, but it did South little good later: West led the king and ace of clubs and continued with the club jack. East discarded his diamond, and declarer ruffed. Then, mournfully eyeing dummy's K-Q of hearts which apparently he would never be able to reach, South drew the outstanding trumps, cashed the heart ace and the top diamonds, and led another diamond in the futile hope that West might have given up some of his protection in that suit. Actually, however, West was ready and able to take two diamond tricks, which defeated the contract.

South might have given more thought to the distribution of the opponents' hands, as revealed by the bidding and the play! East had shown only two clubs, and certainly has no more than two diamonds. Thus, South could make an excellent "swap" if he wanted to! He should have ruffed the third club with the spade eight or jack, then led only three top trumps. Now he should unblock the heart ace and lead the A-K of diamonds. If East ruffed, he would have to return a heart to dummy; if he did not ruff, South would then throw him in by leading the spade four, thus forcing the heart return.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

—Here's how to work it:

AXYDLBAAXR
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Contract Bridge

UNBLOCKING MANEUVERS

When a player is blocked out of good tricks for want of an entry, there may be a solution to his problem that is not immediately apparent. That was true in today's deal—but the declarer was not alert enough.
