

Riel's Neck in Peril.

HIS CONDUCT SINCE HIS CAPTURE ALIENATING HIS FRIENDS.

French Canadian members of Parliament who have all along been strongly in sympathy with Riel are now equally as strong in their denunciations since he attacked the Catholic Church and clergy in a published interview alleged to have taken place between himself and the chaplain who accompanied him to Regina. One of the French members states that Riel has taken exactly the right course to insure his execution and the withdrawal of all sympathy that has been shown him by his co-religionists and fellow countrymen. He can only account for the rash step Riel has taken in denouncing the Church to his desire to secure the sympathy and assistance of the Protestants, whom he believes can save his neck.

COLONEL IRVINE'S OFFENCE.

Telegraphic communication having been again established with Prince Albert, the government are now in receipt of daily advices from that point. Colonel Irvine, in charge of the Mounted Police at that station, who is charged with cowardice, has been called upon by the government for a full explanation as to his action in not following up the Duck Lake fight after he had formed a junction with Major Crozier's force, and not charging the half-breeds, who, at that point then only numbered about one hundred and fifty men. He is also questioned as to the course he followed in remaining quietly at Prince Albert when he could, with the force of 250 men at his command, have cut off Riel's retreat from Batoche after his engagement with General Middleton had advanced from his position. He is also charged with not having sent out scouts or made any attempt to communicate with the General.

THE DEFENCE.

According to reports received from him, he justifies the course he took by showing the impossibility of his advancing to assist General Middleton, which he says could only have been done by leaving the lives of those imprisoned at Prince Albert unprotected and at the hands of the rebels, whose object was to capture that point. With regard to following up the Duck Lake fight the explanation up to the present time is not satisfactory, so far as can be learned. Referring to the delay in communicating with General Middleton he says that on every occasion his scouts were interrupted. The Comptroller of the Mounted Police states that he will probably receive a full report from Colonel Irvine next week.

THE SURRENDER OF POUNDMAKER.

In the House of Commons this afternoon the Minister of Militia read the following telegram from general Middleton, dated Battieford:—

I have made prisoners of Poundmaker and Lean Mar, Yellow-Mud-Blanket and Breaking-Through-the-Ice, being the most influential and dangerous men about him. I have also White Bear, who killed Indian Instructor Payne, and Wahwanita, who killed Freemont, the rancher. My next task may be Big Bear. Poundmaker brought in the teams taken and gave up 210 stands of arms and five revolvers. I have ordered them to give up the flour taken and the horses and cattle, and I am sending part of the police to see that it is all given up. The Ninetieth has just arrived by steamer and is in camp. The rest are coming by land. If obliged to move on the Indians I propose to organize a force of mounted infantry made up of mounted police, Belton's scouts and some mounted artillery men, in all about three hundred men, and with light carts and as little baggage and supplies as possible, so as to scour the whole country and strike rapidly. I expect that Big Bear will soon give up. If he does I shall treat him as I have done Poundmaker. If he does not I shall attack him immediately.

FRED. MIDDLETON

A fond father presented his four-year-old boy with a trumpet, with which he was greatly infatuated. All day the boy tooted away delightedly, and at bedtime, when his grandmother told him to put the trumpet down and say his prayers, the little fellow said: "Oh, do; I tell you what let's do; you pray and I'll keep on blowing."

"Half-a-Crown" exclaimed Count Ramsack to cobby. "Dat was schwindle." "It's the regular fare," said the cobby, "but, seeing you're a furrier I'll take two-and-sixpence." "Goot!" exclaimed the count, "it was without possibility to sheet me."

The Sultan of Morocco has one thousand wives. Solomon only had seven hundred. But Solomon was a wise man; he knew he had enough.

Why is it dangerous to be out in spring?—Because the grass has blades, the flowers pistils, the leaves shoots, and the bullrushes out.
