School Closing Is Observed

Approximately 125 men, and women from Mt. Stewart, and surrounding districts sat down to a turkey supper in the Memorial Hall last night. The occasion was the official closing of the community school that had run through the winter months. Ida MacKay, Mt. Stewart who was chairman of the school, and of the dinner meeting, recalled that a resource group had been organized there several years ago. It had accomplished several worthwhile things, she recalled, though progress at times had been disappointingly small.

She thanked the department of agriculture—the minister Hon. Andrew MacRae was at the head table—for leadership, guidance and assistance, also for providing Mrs. Ella Ranahan of Charlottetown as a sewing instructor.

Mr. MacRae's request for a parade of models who made a dress during the school, was never complied with; but some dozen ladies stood up to show off the dresses they had fashioned and sewn during the course.

TURSE PRESENTED
A beautiful white leather purse was presented to Mrs. Harold Affleck, Mt. Stewart who was a sewing instructor. A gift was also presented to Mrs. Ranahan by ladies who attended their classes.

Mr. Dallanbach said people are the most important resource to a country and he is happy to see that fact being recognized now. This resource, the development of the people, "is much more important than natural resources which are often emphasized, he observed.

The results from schools like yours will become apparent in the years that are to come, he suggested.

Mr. Dallanbach's appointment for a year as a federal-provincial employee under an agreement was ARDA was welcomed warmly by Miss MacKay when she introduced him. "We only wish it were 10 years, she observed. The announcement had been made by Mr. MacRae several minutes earlier.

John MacDonald, department of agriculture fieldman; said "I've seen a lot happen here", but remember that you did it, he emphasized. It was what you wanted to happen, and you made it happen," Mr. MacDonald emphasized.

Rev. Donald MacLennan said this is the kind of thing that restores the initiative of the people. It is doing for yourselves, as contrasted with the trend to look to the government for so many things", he observed.

Wendell Glover, Mt. Stewart is chairman of the community school group, Charlie Morrison, Savage Harbor is vice-chairman. Both spoke briefly. Miss Ida Affleck, Mt. Stewart is secretary-treasurer.

Others heard from included Daniel Mullin, Mt. Stewart who taught drafting and blue print reading.

Mrs. Hamilton Douglas—she is out of the province at present, was the instructor in type writing. Thanks from that class were voiced by Ray Gallagher, popular Mt. Stewart merchant who had been one of the pupils. The dinner was provided by the United Church Women of the village.
