

Communists Eye Algerian Trouble

By ANDREW BOROWICZ
ALGIERES (AP) — Envoys of Communist countries are closely following the ups and downs of Algeria's post-independence political crisis.

Four teams have set up temporary shops in the Aletti Hotel where most Algerian ministers are staying. They attend press conferences and are present for the coming and going at the hotel.

This gives them an advantage over Western diplomats who operate out of long-established consulates in residential areas.

A four-man Soviet diplomatic team is the largest single group of Eastern envoys in Algeria. In addition there are Bulgarian, Yugoslav and Polish representatives. Czechoslovakia has sent several correspondents representing official newspapers and the official news agency.

All Eastern officials and journalists are thoroughly prepared for the job. They have studied in minute detail Algeria's recent history and the intricacies of political rivalries among various clans.

WEST, EAST DIFFER

Eastern bloc nations have recognized the provisional Algerian government of Premier Ahmed Messous Ben Khedda, but since the resignation and departure of Foreign Minister Saad Bouhadjar, the Communist envoys have had no ministry.

The Western powers have recognized the Algerian state but to government, pending general elections.

Communist countries already have a certain advantage in the Algeria of the future. Several hundred Algerian students have been studying in Eastern European universities. Algerian officers have been trained in Communist military academies. There are still 200 Algerians in Communist officer ranks in China.

Eastern envoys readily admit that for the time being they do not plan to compete with France for influence in Algeria. "There is no single country capable of replacing France in Algeria," one Eastern diplomat admitted.

The largest Western consulate is that of the United States, which has 12 American employees before independence. Their number has been bolstered in recent weeks in addition to the

It was announced here Thursday. The council consists of representatives from the arts, education and Commonwealth organizations to whom the festival directors can look for help and guidance.

SIX MEN TO DIE

MOSCOW (Reuters) — A court has sentenced six men to death for war crimes at Stavropol in the North Caucasus, the newspaper Soviet Russia reported Thursday. The accused were a "punitive squad" operating said to have been members of Nazi troops. The newspaper said they killed more than 170 Russians and burned and looted homes.

consulate-general in Algiers. U.S. consulates have been opened in Oran and Constantine.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Acting Secretary-General U Thant has urged United Nations member countries to impose an economic boycott on Katanga province if it refuses to rejoin the Congo.

He declared that if such persuasion by member nations should finally prove ineffective, "I would ask them to consider

"In this context, I have in mind economic pressure upon the Katanga authorities of a kind that will bring home to them the realities of their situation and the fact that Katanga is not a sovereign state and is not recognized by any government in the world as such," Thant said.

acted with satisfaction of the proposals of Congo Premier Adoula for drafting of a federal constitution with the aid of international experts to be supplied by the UN.

Thant denied last week that he had proposed any new military initiative against Thabombe. There had been reports that he had raised such a question in private talks with his 19-nation Congo advisory committee.

Thant's latest communication

But I do assert that accession of any province is no solution for the Congo's ills, that it would serve no interests other than, possibly, those of the mining companies and certain neighbors, and has neither historical nor ethnic justification.

"I strongly believe that only a unified Congo can give hope for peace and prosperity in central Africa."

LONDON (Reuters) — Peter Thomas's foreign undersecretary, said Friday, there have been cases of undue interference by Communist Chinese agents. Chinese authorities had also restricted the use of navigational aids in Chinese waters and impeded masters wishing to communicate with their principals.
