Russian Poem Expresses Hope Stalinism Finished Forever

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet poet Yevgeni Yevtushenko has written another poem imbued with hope there will be no return to Stalinism.

Morning in the City, about 80 lines long, contrasts some of the old and new aspects of Moscow. It says that spring, a difficult spring, has come to the city, confounding "those who are accustomed only to hypocrisy and cowardice."

It goes on:

"This city remembers the 'black crows' (the black limousines which used to take people off to prison).

"'Remembers the searches, interrogations and arrests.

"Look at conversations now, "People talk in an April manner.

Another passage in the poem, published in the Literaturnaya Gazeta, says:

"This city has no doubt in itself.

"It will not allow the dark shadows to loom up again.

"In the memorable seventeen (1917—year of the Soviet revolution) will be immortal.

"In it thirty-seven (1937—start of the great Stalin purges) will never be."

Yevtushenko, whose father left his mother when he was five because her own father, a lieutenant-general, had been purged, continues:

"They say to me, shaking their heads: 'You might be some kinder . . . you are somehow angry.'

"I was good. That was not for long.

"Life broke me and kicked me in the teeth."

Describing himself as a stupid pup who had cut off his own "tail of complacency," the poet goes on:

"To be angry towards falsehood—that is goodness

"I am a Communist in my nature.

"Communism orders me to be angry, and angry again

"Toward what stands in its way.

"And advise has not knocked me off the right path.

"And the past timidity is not within me.

"And—it is interesting to live when you are angry."

WELLINGTON

Miss Valerie Barlow celebrated her 12th birthday recently.

Miss Bonita Henderson is spending a brief vacation with her parents in Elmsdale before she starts her teachers course which is to be held in Charlottetown during summer holidays.

Cpl. and Mrs. Clair Brooks and young daughter of Halifax, N.S., recently visited Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Brooks, Union Corner.

Miss Frances Barlow left by plane for Toronto after spending two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Barlow and family.

Miss Janice Ryder celebrated her 11th birthday recently.

David Hashie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hashie celebrated his first birthday recently.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. JAY BECKER

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Three Notrump. North leads the six of clubs on which South plays the jack. How would you play the hand?

♠A62 ♥KQ9 ♦Q976 ♣AQ5

N W E S

♠K94 ♥J106 ♦AJ1082 ♣83

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Six Clubs. North leads the queen of spades. How would you play the hand?

♠A6 ♥AQ ♦A32 ♣AJ9876

N W E S

♠83 ♥9643 ♦KJ75 ♣KQ10

1. This is the kind of hand where you should feel sure of the result. Assuming that North has four or more clubs, the contract cannot be defeated with proper play.

Win the club with the queen and lead a heart (probably the nine). If the nine holds, attack diamonds by taking one or more finesses. Win or lose, you are sure of at least nine tricks.

If the nine loses to the ace and a club is returned, stay off once and then win the continuation with the ace. Now try the diamond finesse. If north has the king, well and good, but even if South has it, the contract still makes. He will not have a club to return if the suit was divided 5-3 or 6-2, in which case you make four notrump; or he will have a club to return because the suit was divided 4-4, in which case you make three notrump.

It would be wrong to take the diamond finesse at trick two. You would lose the contract if South has the king of diamonds plus a long club suit.

2. You can't be sure of this hand, but there is a best way to play it. Win the spade, draw two (or three) rounds of trumps and cash the king and ace of diamonds in that order. Then lead a diamond towards the jack. If North follows suit (or the queen has already fallen), the slam is in the bag.

If North does not follow suit (and the queen has not fallen), you will have to fall back on a heart finesse.

The diamonds are tackled before the hearts in the hope that a heart finesse will not prove necessary. Thus, if the diamonds are divided 3-3, regardless of where the queen is located, the slam is sure to make.

It is not wise to finesse the jack of diamonds. That play could lose the contract if South had the Q-x and North had the king of hearts.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work It:

A X Y D L B A A X E

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
