ENTERTAINMENT AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

The growing taste for the spectacular was fully gratified at the Masonic Opera House last evening. Indeed the entertainment was almost wholly spectacular. Never before in Charlotte town were there upon the boards so many performers in such gorgeous apparel. The little children were very beautiful in their picturesque dresses of white and red and white and black, and the elaborate costumes of the children of a larger growth were decidedly artistic. Those of the ladies who made the dresses must have been pleased at the effect produced as a result of their labors of love. The maypole dance with ribbons, in three figures, was performed by the children with scarcely a hitch; and most beautiful of all was the performance of the very little ones who took part in the crowning of the May Queen, and in that connection sang the song of the evening. The game "Living Whist" and the minut of the "Court Cards" were enjoyable features of this elaborate and unique entertainment. His results were commensurate with the labor, an expense in preparation is an open question. At any rate, the large audience gave repeated evidences of its appreciation and pleasure. Mr. Vinnicombe's orchestra was in attendance.

CONCERT IN ST. PATRICK'S HALL.

The fourth of the series of concerts given under the auspices of St. Vincent de Paul Society attracted another large audience to St. Patrick's Hall last evening. The programme prepared for the occasion was a capital one, and the audience was very generous with its applause nearly every number being enthusiastically endorsed. The vocal solos by Mrs. Byrne, Mrs. Blake and Miss Adele Sullivan were excellently rendered; and Mr. Dixon and Mr. Bell also sang well. All are favorites with concert-goers, and last evening's performance added distinctly to their respective reputations. Dr. Conroy made his first appearance as a reader, and was well received. His selection was in excellent taste, and it was given in good form. Miss Enid McLean's recitations were gems in their line, and were greatly appreciated by all present. Miss McPhee in her recitation showed histrionic talent of a high order. Miss Josie Barrett also recited her recitation in a splendid manner. Both young ladies take a front place among our public readers. The piano duet by the Misses Coady and McEachen was well played. The accompaniment by Mrs. J. Dixon and Mr. Blainard. The National Anthem concluded the programme. Professor Caven, president of St. Vincent de Paul Society, presided.

GRAND LODGE MEETING.

Yesterday the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T. of P. E. Island met in semi-annual convocation in the Masonic Temple. Rev. W. B. George, Grand Chief Templar, Miss M. Musie, Grand Vice Templar, A. D. Fraser, Grand Secretary, L. U. Fowler, Grand Treasurer, Miss A. E. Horton, Grand Superintendent Juvenile Temples and J. D. Stewart, Grand Marshal, were the officers present. There was also the usual number of delegates from the different subordinate lodges of the province. The reports of the officers standing the order to be in excellent form. A large number of representatives were initiated at the afternoon session. In the evening a handsome Good Templar lodge was presented the Grand Chief Templar and Juvenile Temples in appreciation of their work for the Order. The presentation was made by L. U. Fowler, Grand Treasurer, who made a neat speech, which was responded to by each of the recipients. An interesting and pleasant time for the Templars was brought to a close by the usual ceremony about 9 o'clock, p. m. The next session of the Grand Lodge will be held at Ugg in July.

MEETING IN YORK HALL.

Excelsior Branch of the Farmers and Dairyman's Association met last night in York Hall, Mr. Richard Vesey in the chair. The committee appointed to procure books for the Agricultural Library presented their report, having bought from Hazard & Moore and Geo. Carter & Co., some very choice books. Their report was received and adopted. A delegation was appointed to attend the dairy address by Cyrus Shaw, M. L. A., of New Perth, to be delivered at Millers on Saturday next at 6 p. m. Mr. J. H. Gill read a practical paper on fruit growing and drew forth a discussion which was taken part in by Messrs. Vesey, A. Brown, G. Goodkett and others. The next night the meeting will be January 30th inst., at which F. V. Vesey will read a paper on "The Growth and Feeding of Fodder Corn." A full attendance is requested.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

The Farmer says: What came near being a fatal accident happened at Cape Minnigish about three weeks ago. A young man named Martin Hustler was getting kept on the shore and left his team immediately below the cape, which is about 15 or 16 feet high, to wait until others who were loading got out of the way, as he could not pass them with the ice on the one side and the high bank on the other. While waiting a young lady came to call some men on the shore to dinner as it was about noon. Young Hustler climbed up the bank to speak to this young lady, who proved to be a veritable guardian angel to him, for as they were chatting, some tons of rock off the cape fell, killing the horse and demolishing the truck wagon.

A WORK OF ART.

Miss Chisholm, the well-known artist, has just finished a design for a beautiful dinner set of sixty-five pieces ordered by a firm in Halifax. They intend sending it to Paris where it will be copied in sets for the firm's exclusive retailing. The complete set is in earthenware on a pale blue surface, and besides this there are nine plates in different designs for the commencement of other sets. The set is very handsome, and may be seen at Miss Chisholm's studio, Morris Block, to-day and to-morrow morning.

LITERARY NOTES.

No international bugbear ever vanished more quickly than the time honored fear that China might some day break down her reserve and decide to conquer the world. Photographs of Chinese soldiers practising with bows and arrows and fighting under paper umbrellas have demolished what Japan's well-trained and equipped army has left of China's military prestige. New light on Chinese resistance and desire for peace at any price is promised from Julian Ralph's articles on China, which will appear in Harper's Magazine during the year. Mr. Ralph undertook the journey to China as soon as war broke out, and has recently returned with abundant material on Chinese life and character. His articles will be illustrated by C. D. Weldon, who worked conjointly with Mr. Ralph, and will be published as early as the preparation of illustrations will permit.

John De Witt Warner contributes to Harper's Weekly for January 19th an article which contains the results of personal inspection of sweating-shops, and marks an important advance in the discussion of the tenement-house system. In the same number Julian Ralph has an article on the troubles to which American missionaries have been subjected in China, and another important feature is Prof. W. M. Sloane's paper which accompanies the bird's-eye view of the college buildings at Princeton.

A wax cast of the face of Napoleon was made surreptitiously the night after his death by an attending physician, Dr. Arrott. It was sold by him for $15,000 to the King of Wurttemberg, from whom, some years later, it was stolen, and put on exhibition in London. Then it was secured by Napoleon III., on the payment of a ransom of $20,000, and kept with great care at the Tuilleries, until during the violent days of the Commune, it disappeared. Two reproductions of this remarkable cast, one in full face and one in profile, will appear in McClure's Magazine for February, and its story will be told by the man who had the cast in his keeping while it was at the Tuilleries, Baron de St. Pal, formerly private secretary to Napoleon III.

An intimate friend of Lincoln's, Col. A. K. McClure, has made a study of Lincoln from a quite new point of view, showing by anecdotes and letters, that during the Civil War, especially in the earlier part of it, Lincoln was commander-in-chief of the army not in name only, but in fact, and personally planned and directed movements and campaigns, and in his comprehension of military affairs disclosed the qualities of a great general. The article is to be published in the February number of McClure's Magazine.

Harper's Bazar for January 12th is a brilliant number, containing, in addition to the beautiful fashion features, a strong article by Miss Grace A. Dodge on "Women and the public Schools." In view of the recent agitation of this important subject and Miss Dodge's connection with it, a personal statement of her attitude and views is timely and interesting. A charmingly graphic picture accompanies Mr. E. F. Benson's description of "The Green Dance at Tegara," and "An evening with Tribby" indicates a pleasant way of entertaining one's guests this winter, when Tribby's star is in the Bazar's ascendant. The fashions are superb, Satins and velvets and broads, gowns and wraps elegant enough to tempt royalty, are furnished to our republican princes by Sandoz and Chapuis, their designs being from the first North models. The number has also the first part of a story in two parts, by Marion Harland, "A Fin de Siecle Prodigal."

Harper's Young People of January 15th contains an illustrated article by Rev. W. S. Rainford on "New York Boys' Work and Play." The same number contains also the following attractive features: A story entitled "A Ghostly Whaling Cruise," "Afloat with the Flag," by W. J. Henderson; "A Simple Electrical Machine," by George Ashdown; "The Girl Who Comes to New York to Study Art," by Clara B. Child; and the last instalment of "The Little Red Book," by Ellen Douglas DeLand.
