CNST. NORMAN AND MRS. CURRY

Colorful Autumn Wedding Takes Place At Montague

St. Mary's Church, Montague, was the scene of a colorful autumn wedding, when Lois Marie RN, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hughes, became the bride of Constable Norman O. Curry, RCMP, son of Mrs. Ethelyn Curry, Port Morien, C.B. and the late Mr. Curry.

The nuptial mass was offered by Rev. J.W. McCardle, who also performed the double ring ceremony. The sanctuary was decorated with baskets of scarlet and gold gladioli interspersed with bronze dahlias. Guest pews were marked with white satin bows trimmed with gold and white baby mums.

Mrs. William Campbell supplied wedding music and accompanied a special friend of the bride and groom as she sang Schuberts "Ave Maria," "Panis Angelicus", "O' Lord I Am Not Worthy" and during the signing of the register "On This Day O' Beautiful Mother".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length sheath gown of white chiffon velvet with long tapering lace sleeves. A graceful train of imported French lace fell from a matcing lace before. Her five-tier elbow length veil of silk illusion with scalloped edges was attached to a crown of lily of the valley and seed pearls. She carried a cascade of red roses intertwined with ivy and white satin. The only jewellery was a pair of pearl earrings, gift of the groom.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Patricia MacDonald, sister of the groom, as matron of honor, with Judy Hughes, sister of the bride and Beryl MacKinnon, as bridesmaids. Their semi-fitted street length dresses of gold chiffon velvet were styled with Empire waistlines with high, rounded necklines and three-quarter sleeves. Wedding ring headpieces of matching material held short brown illusion veils, and they carried matching bouquets of gold and white mums centered with bronze. The flower girl, Jacqueline Hughes, sister of the bride, was in scarlet velvet trimmed with white military braid and shirred headpiece of matching material. She carried a basket laden with red and white baby mums.

The groom was attended by Constable Wayne Hornecker as best man with Constables Dave Power and Maynard Ray as ushers, all in the scarlet dress uniform of the RCMP.

Mrs. Hughes chose for her daughter's wedding a cranberry wool dress with matching feather hat and mink stole. Her corsage was of white roses. The groom's mother wore a black and gold two-piece knitted suit with black and gold accessories. Her corsage was of pink rosebuds.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Montague Legion Home, where the tables were attractively decorated with arrangements of mixed fall flowers. The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature RCMP constable and his bride, and flanked by lighted tapers and vases of cut flowers.

Paula Condon, cousin of the bride, circulated the guest book. Rev. McCardle said grace and proposed the toast to the bride and groom, which was responded to by the groom. The best man proposed the toast to the bridesmaids. Master of ceremonies, Cnst. Ted Whalen read congratulatory telegrams from relatives and friends.

For travelling, the bride wore a blue three- piece wool crepe suit with matching hat and accessories. Her corsage was of white sweetheart roses.

Out of province guests included Mrs. Ethelyn Curry, Port Morien, Cape Breton; Mr. and Mrs. William MacDonald, Danville and Patricia Anne, Glace Bay; Mrs. Crystal Hussey, North Ingonish; Mrs. Ruth Gwynn, Sydney; Carrie Osborne, Moncton, N.B.; and Dianne Shaw, Montreal, P.Q.

Immediately following the reception the couple left on a honeymoon trip to St. Pierre and Miquelon, returning via Cape Breton, where they were guests of honor at a reception at Port Morien, C.B.

They will reside in Charlottetown where the groom is stationed with the RCMP and the bride is employed as a dental hygienist with the Department of Public Health.

ELLEN'S DIARY

The Trees In The Grove Stand In Bare Outline

October is losing her finery. Her former brilliant dress is now fading. Trees in woodland and grove, in fencerow and yard commence to stand in bare outline against the sobering autumn days. The maple in the barnyard has none of its scarlet remaining. The crimson on the wild cherries up the creek to the west, almost as pretty as their crowning white bloom of the springtime, now falls away. And even though the countryside is still goldenly beautiful when the sun shines, we find we entertain now, as one said today "That lonesome feeling," which obtains when we realize that the first glory of the month has passed away...

Sunshine after damp, we welcomed today. Not so much to catch the charm of the loveliness it creates as to be grateful that farmers. Island over could get on comfortably with the various harvestings before the Fall days should put an end to all fieldwork.

Our crop, which as James points out with a sigh "is now only a bit of hay and grain" has been harvested and stored.

"Those boys in the Road should get the roots in the cellar —the mangels and turnips" James said today. "Oh I know they are repairing a barn, getting it in shape for the stabling, and it will be good to have that done. But a day like this, summerlike you may say, well, it seems a pity to lose it from the fieldwork."

A little more grain will be sown at Alderlea, another field added to our cropping next spring, if all continues well with our farming. Recently by machine a stumpland which for some years had been included in a pasture, was magically cleared. These days it is being prepared for the plowing. Stumps are being gathered away to await the burning.

Mack, the eldest lad of the house across the lane would have enjoyed seeing this first breaking of the land, but he was missing from the scene, having gone to lend a hand at the potato harvesting on another farm. "Bring you home a piece of a pine stump, Ellen!" James repeated our wish this morning before he set out to the fieldwork. "Whatever would you want with the like of that, now that the woodshed is full?"

"To boil the new teakettle" we chuckled. And how well at the moment it bubbles and sings of woodsy places of winding woods' paths pressed down by the feet of woodland creatures, of ferny dells where, come May, the white violets will flower. And the painted ladies of trilliums put on their best gowns. A little wistful the tune is, here in the night's quiet at week's end. Hearing it we think of James Whitcomb Riley's verses — he that was a farmlad of once, who knew well the workings of its innermost heart. He too was loath to see October go. He wrote:

"I love Old October so,
I can't bear to see her go—
Seems to me like losin' some
Old home relative er chum —
'Pears like sort o' settin' by
Some old friend 'at sigh by sigh
Was a passin' out o' sight
Into everlastin' night!
Hickernuts a feller hears
Rattlin' down, is more like tears
Drappin' on the leaves below—
I love Old October so!"

Until Monday— Diary—Good night.....

GRADUATE

Mitchell-Armstrong Vows Solemnized At Cathedral

The marriage of Daphne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Beverley Armstrong, Charlottetown to Parker David, son of Mrs. Parker D. Mitchell, Lancaster, N.B. and the late Mr. Mitchell, took place on October 9, 1965 at St. Peter's Cathedral, Charlottetown, P.E.I.

The Venerable Archdeacon J. R. Davies, the rector, officiated, assisted by Rev. Canon W.P. Haigh, rector of St. George's Church, West Saint John, N.B.

The processional hymn Lobe Den Heren was sung by the congregation as the wedding party entered the church. The hymn for the Communion service was Mary S. Edgar's God Who Touchest Earth With Beauty. The organist, Susan Brenton played Wachet auf: Bach during the signing of the register and Trumpet Voluntary: Purcell for the recessional.

The church was decorated with gladioli and baskets of mixed flowers and wheat in autumn shades. White satin bows with sprays of green ivy marked the pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was dressed in a gown of ivory raw silk. The high waist line and elbow length sleeves were trimmed with antique lace. She wore a veil which belonged to her paternal grandmother and great great grandmother, made of silk net, edged with white embroidery, which fell softly over the train of the gown. A head band of pink rosebuds held her veil and she carried a spray of matching rosebuds and ivy.

The maid of honor, Wendy Armstrong, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaids, Sherrill Arnott, Joy Armstrong, cousins of the bride, Heather Armstrong, sister of the bride, Helen Faye Barker and Helvi Thomas were gowned alike in burgundy silk dresses. Their over-blouses with white lace edging at the waist had scooped necklines and short sleeves; the matching A-Line skirts were full length. The bridesmaids wore headdresses of burgundy silk petals and pale pink net. The maid of honor wore a wreath of white chrysanthemums in her hair. The attendants all carried long stemmed, ivory centered white chrysanthemums tied with ivory ribbon.

The best man was David Case, East Riverside, N.B. and the ushers were Michael Armstrong, brother of the bride, Robert Tilley, nephew of the groom and Keith Dow, Fredericton, N.B.

The bride's mother wore a double-knit dresden blue suit with black chiffon and velvet picture hat. Her corsage was a pink gladiolus. The groom's mother chose a garnet red suit with matching hat. Her corsage was a cream orchid.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Charlottetown Hotel. John McFarlane, Rothesay, N.B., proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom responded. Mr. Armstrong introduced the wedding attendants, and the groom proposed the toast to the bridesmaids. The best man, who was master of ceremonies, responded to this toast and proposed a toast to the bride and groom as a couple. Telegrams were then read.

For her honeymoon, the bride wore a double-knit suit of blue-green heather mix, with accessories in shades of brown. She carried deep peach talisman roses and wore a gardenia. The bride and groom made their getaway in a lobster boat.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell will reside in Sackville, N.B. where Mr. Mitchell is a Faculty meber of Mount Allison University.

Out of province guests came from New Brunswick, Halifax, Vancouver, Montreal and Senneville, P.Q.

MARY HAWORTH

Mother Unfolds Grievance Against Her Son's Wife

Dear Mary Haworth: Disturbed by your answer to DK's letter, defining "respect for parents," I would like to give my views.

I am having similar difficulties with my son's wife, who contests his loyalty to me.

Before Bob married Dora, he and I enjoyed a rich full relationship, sharing cultural interests, as my husband's tastes run in a different direction.

We aren't well off, and Bob's higher education was financed by a school loan program. But I saw to it that he had extra-curricular (very expensive) music and art lessons. Also I sacrificed in various ways so that we could attend many cultural functions.

When he married I vowed not to be an interfering mother-in-law and warmly welcomed Dora into the family, though I felt he should have been better established. Now, however, friction grows and I am becoming ever more heartbroken.

Though Bob works long hours, I insist that he visit me daily, no matter how late, as I don't want him to be sorry after I'm gone that he shunned his duty to me. Dora resents these visits, as she doesn't see too much of him.

She is an excellent housewife and mother. Also, she works part time to pay off Bob's school loan, which she feels he should have paid off before marriage, by denying himself extra-curricular luxuries. But I think she realizes her cultural shortcomings and resents our mutual interests. As a companion, she leaves much to be desired.

Weekends she invents places to go, to prevent his visiting me. Why is she so selfish and inconsiderate? Surely a few minutes aren't that important.

She is constantly nagging and arguing with my son. And she barely associates with me nowadays. I've told her to see a good family counsellor and get her anxieties straightened out. After all, she has a whole life ahead. Was I right in this?—S.A.

Dear S.A.: My first reaction to your letter, here condensed, was that you had to be kidding. It reads like a tongue- in- cheek script on "How to be a marriage wrecking mother-in-law while protesting your innocence of wrong-doing."

Or another suitable script title would be: "Vampire Mom charges son's badgered wife with wanting him to be a man, and trying, against Mom's wishes, to help him become one."

If you are serious about wanting to know if you did right in advising Dora to see a family relations counselor for reasons stated, my answer is that your suggestion, in the circumstances, was outrageous, unjustified, blind-as-a-bat busybodyism.

It is you, not Dora, who needs straightening-out, on the score of how to behave in the problem-situation which Bob precipitated, when he ventured to marry thus involving his wife in a fight to the finish with you, a totally selfish, consumingly jealous mother who never meant to share him with any other woman.

You are quite as dishonest, psychologically, as you are greedy. For instance, your insistence that Bob pay you a daily visit, no matter how late the hour, is a spiteful demonstration, of can - and-mouse control over him, a way of punishing him for being married and of getting Dora's goat, by implying that she's second fiddle. Yet you claim, with ghastly mock piety, that in taking this tack you are trying to spare him remorse after you're dead!

Assuming that Bob is helplessly vulnerable to your special brand of ruthless manipulation of his sensibilitis, what you are doing, unfortunately, is driving him crazy, gradually, meanwhile taking your self along that same road with him. My advice is, cut it out. Stop, look and listen; turn back from your destructive drift.

Get firsthand family relations counselling help for yourself, in learning how to act your age and be your husband's wife, not your son's would-be sweetheart and soul-mate.—M.H.

WMS Holds Oct. Meeting At Clinton

The president, Mrs. Horace Paynter, Clinton, was hostess to members of the Myrtle Read Missionary Society for the October meeting, which opened with the theme "God's Power in the Early Church" and prayer.

The secretary, Mrs. Lorne Crozier, read the minutes and the members responded to roll call with a verse of scripture.

The president read an interesting article on Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Ralph Moase invited the members to her home for the November meeting.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

A LOOK INTO THE FUTURE

"Kaye" McInnis

What will the home of tomorrow be like? Here are some ideas on how our homes will look perhaps 20 or 30 years from now—or less. We thought you might enjoy reading this.

Lamps will be cordless. They will automatically turn on when you enter a room, and then turn off automatically when you leave the room.

You won't have to worry about closing windows anymore when it rains. Windows will close electronically by themselves when rain starts.

Walls will be one-way transparent — you'll be able to see out the whole length of the wall space — but nobody will be able to see in.

Some decorators feel tables will be recessed into ceilings and then lowered electronically when needed.

Chairs and sofas will be recessed into walls. When you want one — you just push a button and out it comes into place.

These chairs and sofas will have adjustable legs that will automatically raise or lower for tall or short people.

These are great ideas to think about, and no doubt they'll all come true, but meanwhile, if you want some present down-to-earth furniture values for your home, we are ready to serve you with the best there is in the world today — for your home right now.

Call in today an dhave a talk with our decorators here at Crockett & Storey, 134 Kent St., they are at your service without cost or obligation. Open Fridays until 9 p.m.

No-Bake Cheese Cake For Harried Hostesses

If you are really creative and love to cook, you will make desserts from scratch for your family and guests. If you are in a big rush, you will buy cake or cookies, ice cream or sherbet and serve "as is", or made into an ice cream cake; or you will settle perhaps for cookies from the baker and a fresh fruit cup.

CREATIVE MIX

If you are creative and also in a hurry, indulge your creativeness and save time by using a packaged dessert mix.

Today, we are starring a new and delightful no- bake cheese cake, now on national sale. It can be varied in many ways, all quick and easy. Here is our newest version:

Measurements are level

STRAWBERRY NUT CHEESE TORTE

2 pkg. No-Bake Cheese Cake Filling (includes graham cracker crumbs and cheese filling)
1 c. chopped pecans
6 tbsp. sugar
½ c. (1 stick) margarine, melted
3 c. cold milk
12 fresh strawberries, halved, or half thawed frozen strawberries

Combine and mix graham cracker crumbs from pkg. with pecans, sugar and margarine. Press one-third of crumb mixture into bottom of 8" springform pan. Reserve remaining crumb mixture.

Pour cold milk into 2-qt. mixing bowl. Add Cheese Filling (with pkg.). Beat at low speed with electric mixer or rotary beater until smooth. Beat 3 min. more at medium speed. Pour half this filling into crumb-lined pan. Spread this with one-third of reserved crumb mixture; pour on remaining filling. Dust with remaining reserved crumbs. Chill at least 1 hr. before unmolding. Garnish, strawberries. Serves 6 to 8.

SUNDAY DINNER
Chilled Pineapple Juice
Roast Boned Leg or
Stuffed Shoulder of Lamb
Flaky Rice Ropped with Butter-Fried Raisins
Tossed Salad of Cooked Limas.
Chopped Pimientoes,

TOMORROW'S OVEN DINNER

Sliced Tomato Salad Platter, Vinaigrette Dressing—fish Fillets Baked in Milk (previously columned), Shrimped Baked Potatoes, Baked Quartered Sections Butternut Squash—Cored Apples Stuffed with Orange Marmalade and Baked, Served with Orange Marmalade Hard Sauce (see Chef)— Coffee or Tea, Milk

SHRIMPED BAKED POTATOES ..
(Nice also for a Luncheon Entree)

6 large white potatoes for baking, washed
2 tbsp. room-soft butter or margarine
1 tsp. seasoned salt
¼ tsp. pepper
1 large egg, beaten
one-third c. half 'n' half or milk
1 (No. 1) can shrimp
2 tbsp. fine-minced parsley
6 shrimp for garnish (reserved)

Bake potatoes in hot oven, 425 degrees F. allowing 45 min. to 1 hr. according to size. Cut off lengthwise slice from side of each potato and scoop out all pulp, then mash. (Reserve potato skins). Beat in butter, salt, pepper, egg and milk or half 'n' half.

Drain canned shrimp. Rinse thoroughly; reserve 6 whole shrimp for garnishing. Mince remaining shrimp and add to potato mixture. Spoon this filling into potato shells; dust with parsley. Perch a shrimp on each potato half. Brown 15 min. in a hot oven. Serves 6.

THE CHEF'S ORANGE MARMALADE HARD SAUCE

Into a 1½ pt. bowl, measure 1 stick (½ c.) room- soft butter. Stir until smooth. Alternately, a little at a time, beat in 2 c. sifted powdered sugar, 3 tsp. boiling water and 2 tbsp. orange marmalade. Refrigerate before using. Serves 6.
