Tourist Trade Value Could Hit $10 Million

A change in advertising formula this year has resulted in more positive reservations by summer visitors, but return of fewer "coupons" asking for information is being noted, director of the Travel Bureau, told the P.E.I. Tourist Association semi-annual meeting Wednesday.

This theme was enlarged on by Hon. J.D. Stewart, minister of tourist development, when he briefly addressed the members at dinner at the Charlottetown.

He said the few coupon returns really meant that fewer requests were being received from children who simply wanted to obtain the free literature. On the other hand a greater amount of advertising in Time Magazine was aimed at an adult reading population and was already paying dividends.

Mr. Stewart said the government could do only so much in the way of persuading tourists to come here. It was up to the tourist industry to persuade them to come back.

Mr. Fraser noted the tourist industry was worth $9,500,000 to the island's economy last year and present trends and normal increases pointed to a hike in value this year to over the $10 million mark.

He remarked on the ever increasing number of cameras coming here and said this could be expected to continue. Mr. Fraser also stated greater emphasis was being placed on entertainment for the summer visitors.

In this connection he particularly mentioned the new wildlife park at North Rustico, a continuation of the Highland College and the Shaw Festival scheduled to open this summer.

During the afternoon business meeting of the Association Mrs. W. Rodd remarked that many tourists were already here and last weekend several guests at the motel operated by her and her husband were disappointed in not being able to visit Confederation Chamber. She also noted the Travel Bureau had been closed and stated it was impossible for operators to help lengthen the tourist season if principal attractions were not available.

Civil Service Federation President Speaks In S' Side

SUMMERSIDE — "As far as possible the pay of civil servants should be favorable to the wages of good private employee standards," said Claude Edwards, national president of the Civil Service Federation of Canada, at a public meeting in Summerside last evening.

"Thinking in great length on civil service pay determination, before a gathering of more than 150 at St. Mary's Hall, Mr. Edwards told a board under the direction of the national body which has the job of gathering statistics and analysing them in an effort to make recommendations in regard to future civil service pay standards.

He said that before the end of the year the government should have established a new desirable wage standard in the various wage classifications.

"We're not looking for anything other than what is just and reasonable," he said in connection with wage differences in a connection with a collective bargaining program.

Mr. Edwards said that a pay standards in relation to shift differences were being studied, but that it was a difficult problem to figure out the proper amounts and deal with shifts should get the greater pay.

He gave as an example of a shift that should be paid 10 per cent more than the regular shift from 4 p.m. to 12 midnight, because they were unable to carry out their regular social life and felt that they should be paid extra because of this.

Mr. Edwards was introduced by Earl Cannon, and other head table personalities were Ken Braemar, provincial president; Sinclair MacLeod, eastern field representative, CSF; Ray Rayner, district council president.
