

Fulton And Smallwood Have 'Friendly' Talks

By IAN MACDONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer
ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Premier Smallwood told reporters he had a pleasant and friendly discussion with federal Justice Minister Fulton here Thursday.

"We didn't meet for the purpose of making decisions and no decisions were made," he said. "It was an exchange of thoughts and ideas."

Mr. Smallwood did not mention the specific issues discussed. "We talked on a range of Newfoundland topics—all the issues that have been issues in the past several months."

The premier said he hoped relations would improve between the Newfoundland and federal governments.

HOUSING DISPUTE
Mr. Fulton told reporters earlier in the day that a provincial dispute over the St. John's housing dispute will be settled shortly.

Mr. Smallwood said the justice minister isn't completely up to date on the subject. "I would say that a solution is not so immediate." He did not elaborate.

The federal government has withheld control of 192 federal-provincial housing units from the St. John's housing authority and given it to Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Mr. Smallwood said the move was made because the provincial government would not appoint two Progressive Conservative party members to the authority. Mr. Smallwood leads a Liberal government.

As a result a $35,000,000 municipal scheme which would provide about 1,200 building lots for this accommodation-starved city has been delayed and the Newfoundland government has taken suit against the federal government.

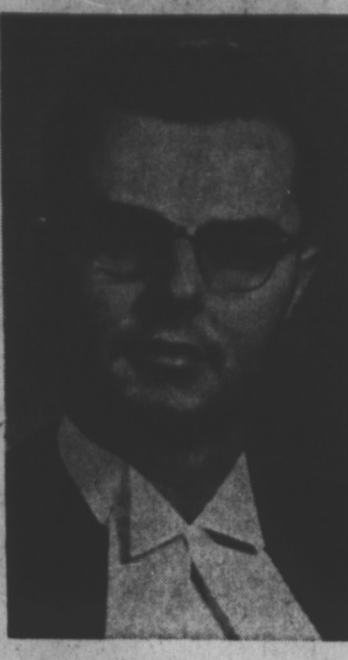

REFER TO IWA STRIKE
Mr. Fulton also told reporters that later events proved it was not necessary to send RCMP reinforcements to Newfoundland at the peak of a strike called by the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) against the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company at Grand Falls.

"If that is so," the premier asked reporters, "why did we have to send 50 or so members of the Newfoundland Constabulary into the area?"

Mr. Smallwood said he has a lot of respect for Mr. Fulton. "He's a man of good quality."

Mr. Fulton could not be reached immediately for comment on the talks.

The justice minister came to Newfoundland to address a Newfoundland Board of Trade dinner Thursday night.

Erring Ring Comes Back

PASSIAC, N.J. (AP)—The ring that liked being lost now lies the ring that likes being found.

Last Friday Mrs. William Gear had said with great resignation: "I guess the ring just likes to be lost. I don't expect to get it back."

The roving ring, a wedding band, was lost in 1914. It was found in 1958 by Mrs. Gear's sister and returned as a 44th anniversary surprise.

But a bunch of boys stole the ring from the Gears' pet shop last week. They told arresting policemen they lost the ring in an amusement park.

A janitor read of the tale of the ring after finding it in a city park.

Mrs. Gear and her truant ring were reunited Monday. The ring is going on a chain she'll wear around her neck.

Charges Decided On Vandalism

HALIFAX (CP)—The Halifax county school board decided Wednesday to instruct RCMP to lay charges in connection with weekend vandalism at junior high school in suburban Armdale.

School board chairman George Burris said results of police investigation into the vandalism were given to the board. They were dealt with at a special meeting. Police said two juveniles were charged.

From the mountain tops we can see directions and goals as we cannot see them in the valleys, but it is only on the lower levels that the dream can be turned into reality.

Moses received the law on the Mount, but when he came down to join the people whom he was to lead, he found them worshipping the golden calf.

Many have been disillusioned in the same way. But no true man accepts degradation as his destiny.

The place that Christ wants to fill is beside him in the services of the common day, giving the cup of cold water to the thirsty, and carrying the loaves which Christ has multiplied to the hungry—both the starved bodies and the yearning souls of the people.

RELIGION AND LIFE

BY VERY REV. GEORGE C. PIDGEON, D.D., LL.D.
First Moderator of the United Church of Canada

BARGAIN A BARGAIN
... EVEN TO JACOB
There is an arresting flashback in the thirty-fifth chapter of Genesis. The old patriarch, Jacob, suddenly recollects something he had long forgotten and decides promptly to do something about it.

Jacob had left home under a cloud. He had taken advantage of his brother, Esau, and had incurred Esau's deadly hate. Once we heard a young preacher call Jacob "a mean sneak" and in his treatment of his brother he had been just that. He had to flee for his life.

The first night away from home is a bitter one for any home-loving boy. For Jacob it was peculiarly wretched.

He was alone in the open wilderness which he abhorred. His conscience was in revolt against what he had done. He was afraid of the future, for, as he looked forward, dark clouds filled the sky with lightning flashes breaking through here and there.

Sheer exhaustion compelled him to lie down with a stone for a pillow, and in the troubled sleep that followed, Jacob had the vision of Bethel in which God appeared to him and assured him of a place in His great design.

Jacob answered with a vow, for Jacob, even in his religion, had an eye to business. So "he vowed a vow, saying:—

"If God will be with me, and will give me bread to eat and raiment to put on, so that I come again to my father's house in peace, then shall the Lord be my God; and of all that Thou shalt give me, I will surely give the tenth unto Thee."

So it came about that centuries later a wise man among Jacob's descendants wrote:

"When thou vowest a vow unto God defer not to pay it; for he hath no pleasure in fools: pay that which thou hast vowed. Better is it that thou shouldst not vow, than that thou shouldst vow and not pay" (Ecclesiastes 3:4-5).

Jan McLaren, in one of his novels, reports one of his favorite characters saying that vows belonged to the Old Dispensation and had no place in the New. Yet we, in the New Dispensation, do make vows in the most solemn moments of our lives.

There are our marriage vows when two young people pledge their faith to each other. The happiness and fruitfulness of married life depends on the two keeping

DENIES REPORT
LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio Thursday described a British newspaper report that Russian troops had entered Afghanistan as a "ridiculous anti-Soviet fabrication aimed at aggravating the situation in the Middle East."

The Daily Telegraph said Monday that Soviet army units moved 60 miles into Afghanistan and took up positions astride the main road leading from the Afghan capital of Kabul to Iran.

TIMELY NOTES ON FUR TOPICS

At the New York Auction Company sale last week, mink was very strong and 21,197 U.M.P.A. dark mink skins were 100 percent sold with prices advancing ten percent over January levels.

In the above sale, new season's high prices were established with males reaching $93 and $45 for females. Both lots were shipped by Arthur MacArthur of Wisconsin. The official report described the sale as "terrific". The finest mink factories and dealers were present to purchase a collection of good quality. The room, at the U.M.P.A. sale, was an impressive one. It continued by far the most important houses in New York City, including the biggest fashion firms.

MUSKRAT SEALS
At Soudack fur auction sale in Winnipeg last week, muskrat was very firm, with demand from European, Eastern Canadian and local firms. Practically 100 percent of the offering changed hands.

Select lots brought $1.60 to $2.00 and many lots changed hands at $1.40 to $1.44.

The Western Canadian raw fur auction sales, which took place last week in Vancouver, reported a brisk demand. Muskrat brought much higher prices; a collection of wild mink was completely sold, with average lots of Yukons and N.R.C. brought $16.00 to $17.00, and Coast types brought $10. to $11.

Some 25,000 dark and mutation mink are included in the catalogue to be sold by the Hudson's Bay Company in Montreal on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Here are some of the items: 25,000 dark and mutation mink; 1,500 silver fox; 1,500 red fox; 50 blue fox; 5,000 cross fox; 7,500 white fox.

A note in a recent edition of "Women's Wear Daily" has the following: Fur bearing animals are found in most countries of the world, but the bulk of world production is concentrated in the United States, the U.S.S.R., Canada, and a few other areas.

OSLO MINK
The Oslo, Norway, fur auction will take place on May 23. They have an offering of 9,000 dark mink; 13,000 pastels; 9,000 sapphires; and smaller quantities of silver blues and other mutations. A total of 700 fox pelts will be offered, of which the majority are blues.

In Nebraska, U.S.A. trappers continue to make a good living. Last year they took 112,538 fur-bearing animals. Mink brought the best price, averaging $11.50 for 11,000 pelts. Beaver averaged about $5.50 for some 8,000 pelts.

Duncan Steek has a column in the latest issue of "Women's Wear Daily" giving retailers hints on how to protect themselves against shoplifting. He begins with the following statement:

WHOPLIFTING
"Fur losses are expensive losses, and it is rare that furs can be recovered, unless pelts are indelibly marked. Keep an eye on cars parked near the store in which people are sitting for any length of time, and even mention the fact to the policeman on your beat. Gunmen often wait just before closing, when the store is empty, before staging a holdup. Don't put all your trust in burglar alarms; thieves are very clever at boring through walls, by-passing alarms which cover windows and doors. One retailer lost $100,000 in furs when thieves over a week-end, bored through three cinder-block walls to get at stored furs. Another trick is to bore through a ceiling, which usually isn't wired for alarms."

"Beware of fights starting in your store, or of rambunctious children; they may be attention-getters to take you away from garments which later are missing. Beware of beautiful women; she may divert you (if you are a man while an accomplice goes to work on your stock. Only show one or two garments at a time: it is not always possible to remember all of them, if you bring them out".

Manned Planes Said Necessary

MONTREAL (CP)—Manned interceptors will have a place in air defence until technicians can come up with a missile that thinks, the famous "legless ace" of Britain's RAF said Thursday.

Douglas Bader, who rose to group captain in command of a Canadian squadron during the Second World War, was a guest at the opening session of the Royal Canadian Air Force Association's annual convention.

He also told delegates that Canada will continue to be air-minded because aircraft will play a vital role in opening up the "absolutely staggering" mineral wealth of the Canadian north.

PILOTS STILL NEEDED
Asked whether he thought the new missiles have numbed the days of the fighter pilot, Mr. Bader, now employed by a British oil company, replied with an emphatic "no." "The thing about an automatic device is that it can't interpret. You and I can."

"Suppose a squadron is coming to attack Vancouver or Montreal and you send up missiles to intercept them while they are 200 miles away. These supposing the squadron leader decides to change or divide his formation. What does the missile do?"

Only the human intellect "can deal with an emergency," he said.

The former Spitfire pilot, who rejoined the RAF in 1939 after an aircraft crash in 1931 forced amputation of both legs, praised the work of the association—particularly its contributions to the air force benevolent fund which helps dependents of airmen killed in accidents in both peace and war.

He was connected with the vandalism. Mr. Burris said damage has been estimated at $500. Earlier the estimate was $1,000. Several classrooms, teachers' rooms and the principal's office were damaged.

Police said the boys allegedly involved were 13 and 12 years of age, both grade six pupils at the school. The report indicated that most of the damage in the school was done with hatchets taken from an industrial arts class.

Stamp Design Like Woman
OTTAWA (CP)—Azellus Denis (L—Montreal St. Denis) said Wednesday in the Commons a new Canadian stamp design reminds him of a woman sitting on her heels, picking up a banana.

Amid laughter, Postmaster-general William Hamilton said he is sorry to see aspersions cast at the first stamp designed in Canada by a woman. Mr. Denis had completely missed the significance of the design, which portrays a "symbolic woman" tending a tree over which a globe is poised.

Fresh waves of laughter occurred as J. W. Pickersgill (L—Bonavista—Twillingate) asked what a "symbolic woman" is. Commons Speaker Roland Michener said he better not let Mr. Hamilton run the risk of replying.

The new stamp was designed by Mrs. Helen Bacon, a Toronto housewife, to commemorate development of the Associated Country Women of the World, an international organization founded by Mrs. Alfred Watt of Collingwood, Ont. It includes various Canadian women's organizations.

The stamps went on sale Wednesday for the first time at Stoney Creek, near Hamilton.
