Sr. Citizens' Night Held By South Winsloe WMS

A special senior citizen's night was the aim of the South Winsloe W.M.S. Auxiliary when it met at the church on Thursday evening, June 11. The president presided. Ten members answered roll call with a verse of scripture and there were seven visitors.

A circle of prayer opened the meeting and was followed by a worship period led by Mrs. Orville Turner. The project for the past month was the visiting of the W.M.S. Associate members as well as some non-members and shut-ins by a committee of two.

A warm invitation was extended to the June meeting and some literature was left at these homes. Mrs. Kenneth Coles and Miss Alice Hill kindly sang two beautiful numbers, "How Great Thou Art" and "Whispering Hope" at different points in the program.

Two inspiring poems were read by Mrs. Dan Coles.

The group read in unison chapter 5 from the General Epistle of James, where the verses were on prayer were given special attention. After a short prayer, the president gave a meditation on the power of prayer. Referring to several Bible verses, the leader pointed out that all are to bring all things to God in prayer and that there must be faith, and trust that prayers will be answered according to His will.

A lunch was served and the singing of "Abide with Me," brought an evening of true fellowship to a close.

MR. AND MRS. R.A. ADAMS
Double Ring Ceremony Unites A Happy Couple

Baskets of mixed flowers created the floral setting for the pretty wedding on May 14 at 2:30 in the afternoon at the Summerside Presbyterian Church, when Norma Lucille, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Bridges, Richmond, became the bride of Robert Lamont Adams, son of Mrs. Maudie Adams and the late Mr. Claude Adams of French River and Summerside.

Rev. J. Donald MacKay performed the double ring ceremony. The wedding music was played by Mr. Raymond Pleau, who accompanied Mr. Charles Craig, who sang "I'll Walk Beside You" previous to the ceremony and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her floor length wedding gown of bridal satin, styled with a fitted bodice, scalloped neckline and full skirt ending in a short train. Her full length veil was held in place by a crown of lace and pearls and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Anita Bridges was her sister's maid of honor, while Miss Phyllis Bridges, sister of the bride, and Miss Mary Adams, sister of the groom, were bridesmaids. Little Marlene Bridges, sister of the bride, was flower girl. They wore identical gowns of white embroidered taffeta.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Read "Values Of Life" By Toronto U. Professor

"I wish, Ellen, we had that last grainfield sowed" James remarked a bit anxiously at breakfast. "Not that those showery days aren't a blessing," he nodded, "but it would be good to have all the grain in. Then we could get to work at the mangels. By rights they should be in the ground by this."

Dampish, the island weather has been of late. But a letter from the Prairies today said, "It's very dry here. We are using spray on the garden and lawn all day long. Our humidity has been less than twenty all Spring. We had too a snowless winter which didn't help the drought conditions. However the grain is coming up nicely though it will soon need rain."

And from the Canadian coast where spring came early and good another housewife wrote, "we had our first garden-strawberries today at lunch. I believe we will have a fine crop of them if the deer will just leave them for us. They are quite bold here—sometimes they come right down to the lawn."

There is an abundance of wild strawberry blossoms up the wood road, on sunny banks and amid the crinkly green of the sweet fern there. Trilliums too, in plenty are amongst the company of shy woods' plants in flower beneath the new-leaved maples. Like gardens the woodlands are lovely spots now. We were not alone there this afternoon. A squirrel scolded from a shiny fir bough.

"Woman, what brings you here?" he questioned testily. "To gather leaf-mould for an African violet!" we smiled. "Oh!" he exclaimed with an answering twinkle. "And besides, everything's so lovely everywhere in the open now—fresh and clean."

"In this sun-after-rain" he nodded.

"We need open spaces" the May letter of the Royal Bank a good friend kindly sent, reminds folks. "Open spaces provide fresh air and health but they also provide the restful inspiration that nature gives to most of us. When we are in her domain, nature has a way of soothing our fretfulness and easing our worries."

Hours in the woods or parks may write no exciting saga. They may be eventless. There is nothing to write home about except how the sunlight is green-filtered and cool with the breath of falling water; how the trail follows the stream up and up, over fallen logs, with the summons of the hidden waterfall luring you on. Or you may tell how, when you were thirsty, you drank from cupped hands at a spring bordered by trillium; and about the chipmunks that gambolled in the pine needles at your feet. And yet such a letter home conveys the sense of a chain of life continuous and rich with the ages.

"If we confine ourselves to our buildings, we are losing more than we know. The late Professor E.J. Urwick, head of the Department of Political Economy at the University of Toronto for ten years wrote a book which he called The Values of Life. He said in it: "We are losing the

Water Safety Conscious Red Cross Urges Measure

This is National Water Safety Week. Recently, it seems almost every week is dedicated to observing something and we wonder if all this spotlighting of special subjects is necessary.

Why not go back to the time when a week was nothing more than seven days of living?

No doubt some of these "weeks" we could do without. But when we consider this particular one, we realize that focusing attention on the need for caution in and on the water could mean the difference, for some of us, between days of living and a tragic death. Last year, almost 1000 Canadians met death through drowning.

Therefore the Canadian Red Cross Society urges everyone to become water safety conscious, and to learn the rules of conduct at beaches and on boats and to practice them diligently at all times.

It is the sincere hope of the capacity for wonder, the power to see and feel the miracles of life and beauty around us, without which our souls are half-empty and real fullness of life is denied us.

And tonight in our first sight of it, the young June moon lends more magic if that could be, to this delectable lilac and apple blossom time.

Until tomorrow—Diary—Good-night.
