

JOHN M. KEARNEY

John M. Kearney, Ph. C., of Dartmouth has just joined the Elliott-Marion Co. Ltd., as an associate. Started two years ago as a medical specialty organization, this all-Canadian company has already marketed a number of fine products which have met with ready acceptance both by the medical and the pharmaceutical professions.

Mr. Kearney was born in Milton, N. B., where his father still owns a retail pharmacy. After completing three years of science at St. Francis Xavier University John entered Dalhousie University and graduated from the Faculty of Pharmacy in 1932. During the past three years, he has been a medical service representative with one of the major drug firms and is well-known in medical and pharmaceutical circles.

He resides with his family at 11 Slayter Street, in Dartmouth, N. S.

N. S. Premier Wants More Traffic At Maritime Ports

Nova Scotia's Premier Robert Stanfield said yesterday in Charlottetown, the annual value of Canadian overseas exports and imports not routed through Canadian ports in 1955 was $350,000,000. He urged fellow Atlantic Premiers to join him in seeking Federal action to get more traffic moving through Canadian ports, especially St. John and Halifax.

He told the Atlantic premiers conference. "There is no good reason why 92 per cent of the number of rubber tires, 60 per cent of the number of automobiles, 84 per cent of farm equipment by value, 48 per cent of electrical apparatus by value should have been exported from Canada via non-Canadian ports."

He said the ports of Halifax and Saint John, N.B., are not fully utilized even during the winter when they are Canada's only ice-free outlets on the Atlantic. "We find on inquiry that vast quantities of cargo are imported and exported via United States ports. We should insist that companies who derive their prosper from the Canadian market make every effort to ship their imports and exports through Canadian ports."

AN INDUCEMENT
Importers from Commonwealth countries shipped almost entirely through Canadian ports; they had the British preferential tariff as an inducement. Some similar incentive should be given Canadian exporters and those importing from non-Commonwealth countries.

Mr. Stanfield also suggested an Atlantic research organization to help governments and industry get the most out of the region's natural resources.

RELIGION AND LIFE

MESSAGE OF CHRIST IS OUR GOSPEL OF HOPE

We hear a great deal these days about peace. The new masters of the Kremlin are proclaiming their love of peace for all the world to hear. They cannot but know that when Russia talks of peace every other nation, even China, thinks of Hungary as an illustration of what Russia means by peace.

And to the idea of peace as Russia has established it in Hungary the whole world answers "No!"

One of the best known passages of the Bible is found word for word in two of the prophets; we do not know whether one copied it from some unknown source. The prophets Isaiah and Micah are contemporaries — Micah a peasant, Isaiah an aristocrat. They agree in the doctrine which the prophet Amos had taught before them, that God as a moral Being, requires justice, mercy and truth in His people. The passage to which both prophets give a prominent place comes to its climax in Isaiah chapter 2 verse 4:

And they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.

Nearly three thousand years have passed and that dream is still only a dream. The reason why is that men have ignored the condition on which it is given. Here is the condition: Recognition of the God of Israel as the God of all the earth, hearkening to His teachings and obeying His laws.

Israel's unique contribution to the thought of mankind was her discovery of God as the living God, just and merciful in His dealings with men and active in establishing justice and mercy in all the dealings of men with men.

It is a fact of history that when a nation of such refuses to acknowledge God they also reject His laws with Him. When a nation's policies are not founded on principles of righteousness that are universal and eternal, its rulers cannot be trusted.

There is no rocklike principle governing their actions; their own interests are their ultimate concern, and what those interests demand, they will do. A nation must have some authority beyond itself to whom it looks up and whose will it obeys before the interests of others are safe in its hands. THE VISION International relationships today are among the most convincing examples in history of the truth behind the vision we have quoted.

It is a common idea among us that man's scientific discoveries are far more advanced than the development of his moral character. But these discoveries have not outgrown man's aspirations. There are scientists that are leading the world in these discoveries and inventions and who are most emphatic in their demands for a new morality for their control. Undoubtedly this is one of the sources of the new interest in religion and the new return to the church.

The outstanding example in our time of "Beating swords into plowshares and spears into pruning hooks" is the development of atomic energy for peaceful purposes.

Humanity will never forget Hiroshima — the use of the greatest scientific discovery of mod-

Calls Greenland Campaign The Smallest And Strongest

At this moment war is a possibility even though it would involve mass destruction on a scale undreamed of in the past. And it is a possibility because a slavery worse than even such a conflict is threatening many races. But the would-be world conqueror is more afraid than these whom he wants to subdue, and he, too, pleads for peace.

Therefore, the interests of mankind are turning in another direction. Atomic energy which has been developed for destruction, can be turned to production, and is being so turned by many of the greatest of our age. This is providing means for some of the highest services man can offer to man.

GOD'S WILL
The call to those who believe that the realization of the prophet's vision is God's will for men, is to give themselves with new devotion to the extension of the knowledge of God. A noted columnist has recently traced President Eisenhower's passion for peace to his religious convictions. She quoted his statement that "there can be no such thing as a victorious side any global war of the future" and added that his conviction "is bolstered, and, we think occasioned, by a profoundly religious view of life." He thinks not only that another war would be humanly disastrous but also religiously and morally wrong. To awaken in our people everywhere this belief that God's will is our peace and the fomenting of strife is sin against God is the most urgent necessity

LONDON (Reuters) — The smallest and strongest campaign of the Second World War—that's how an author describes a battle in Greenland's Arctic wasteland. David Howarth tells of the battle for weather stations fought in the half light of the Arctic between 19 Germans and nine Scandinavians with their six Eskimo sled drivers. His book, The Sledge Patrol, was published Monday.

Reports from the Greenland weather stations were vital during the war, both to the Allied convoys and to the German submarines which went out to sink them.

When the Germans overran Denmark, the Danish government of Greenland operated the weather station for the allies and set up a sled patrol to keep the Germans out.

During the summer of 1942, however, 19 Germans landed and began transmitting reports in German code.

BATTLE JOINED
They were discovered the following spring and battle was joined between the German force which had modern weapons, and the sled patrol, which had mastered the Arctic but had only hunting rifles.

The Eskimos could not understand why one man should kill another, and this feeling gradually spread to the Europeans. Only one man was killed and the Germans later claimed it was an accident.

The Germans captured the patrol's dog teams and destroyed a radio station. The Danes suffered incredible hardships in making their escape south to warn their commander.

The German commander was captured and when spring came the Germans retired to their base. It later was bombed by the Air Force and the men were taken back to Germany.

For the rest of the war, Allied shipping receive accurate weather reports while the Germans did not.
