BEF PROSPECTS

Lower average prices for slaughter cattle in 1964, are also predicted in the Ontario Farm Business Report. Beef prices in the United States are expected to be under pressure from increased supplies.

WELL DRESSED

Generally farmers have not distinguished themselves as dressers, but it is interesting to note that in the Old Country the clothing manufacturers federation rank farmers above journeymen, tailors, and dressers.

J.P. (JIM) McCloskey told me an unusual story when I called recently at the McCloskey home which is near the North River at Lot 65.

A man named Dollar ran a mill, perhaps 100 years ago, in the hollow at Emvayale where the McCloskeys lived later until they returned to the district and his warm friend and neighbour, Pat McCordie, was urging him to become a Roman Catholic.

The subject will be land tenure, the holding of property by individuals. It is a subject which is important to farmers, for farm property changes in this generation, as fathers retire and sons take over.

The program will be recorded on location, at the Richmond Farm Forum, at Drumbo, Ontario. This group has a lengthy record of vigorous discussion and community action and should provide an interesting hour of farm opinion.

Strange Developments Follow Death

JIM McCLOSKEY'S grandfather, also named Jim, bought the old mill along with his brother-in-law, after Dollar's death. It was not long afterwards that a strange and eerie development occurred.

The mill was covered by a water wheel that had to be operated by hand. It was closed or turned off to stop it. But the wheel would start up on its own.

The mill was built at the time by Patrick McCloskey, Jim's father, who had come home from the United States for that purpose. They took Dollar and his spirit was meant and the bottle was buried in a spot over across the mill.

Prowlers Worse Than Ghosts

JIM HAD gone to Denver City, Colorado in 1903 and had gone to work in a lumber mill operated by an Island man, George MacPhee. He had a good time there until one day he was killed by a prowler.
