REMEMBER, PLAY SAFE

Careful 'Sunday Driver' Can Be Highway Threat

Too many 'Sunday' drivers feel they are good drivers because they seldom if ever drive faster than 40 miles per hour. And yet they can be the direct cause of as many of the accidents we see as the speeder.

In these modern days people are no longer content to creep along at that speed on highways which the government may have travelled at 60. The result is the Sunday driver manages to pile up a whole string of cars behind him because they are unable to pass in safety. But sooner or later there will be one driver finally lose his patience and temper and take a chance on passing—and too often someone dies.

If the average driver has a legal obligation to observe the speed laws then the Sunday driver certainly also has an obligation not to prevent him from driving at the legal rate. When the slow driver deliberately—and he or she does do it deliberately—holds up traffic then that driver has to accept the consequences of his or her action. And the Sunday driver is too often encountered on Monday and Tuesday and every other day.

Today's hint: Do not be selfish; move with the traffic flow or take a back-road no one else wants to use.

Caution Urged As Driving Bad

ALBERTON — Snow started falling yesterday afternoon in Western Prince County causing extremely dangerous driving conditions last night. Slippery highways resulted in two accidents last evening and a number of vehicles were reported in the ditch.

About nine o'clock Mrs. Blanche England, Alberton, was taken to the Western Hospital for observation, following an accident at Cascumpec, in which her car was in collision with a transport truck driven by Claude O'Meara, Alberton. Damage to the vehicles was minor.

Earlier in the evening a cow was struck and killed by a station wagon driven by Erskine Skerry of Alberton South. The animal was owned by Claire Matthews.

Alberton detachment of the RCMP reported dangerous driving conditions at a late hour last night.

Lowering temperatures resulted in some drifting with about two inches of snow in the area.

Should Halloween Be Abolished, Some Farmers Think It Should

O'LEARY — "Hallow'en should be abolished" was one of the suggestions made Thursday night at the annual meeting of the Prince County Federation of Agriculture.

Midway through the meeting, held in O'Leary, those present were formed into five discussion groups, to consider matters of general interest, that might be brought to a higher level.

Two of the groups favored doing away with Halloween altogether due to rowdiness and damage to property while the remaining three groups thought it should be restricted to smaller children and more strict penalties be given for property damage.

Rhodesian government, travelled with Smith to the Mediterranean talks also was reported to have aroused suspicion in certain circles.

The leader of the Negro parliamentary opposition in Rhodesia, United People's party head Josiah Gondo, criticized the talks because they do not include Negro representatives.

There also was a second burst of complaint from neighboring Negro-ruled Zambia, whose foreign ministry Thursday denounced the meeting as a sell-out.

"It is difficult at this point to forecast the immediate future of this company.

"It would now be premature to speculate publicly on what the company or the government will do in the light of these circumstances. However, because of the public investment in the plant and the ships arrangements have been made for the supervision of the plant and equipment if the plant should remain closed. Several alternatives remain available to insure the continued operation of this plant next spring."

Premier Campbell said that in the vicinity of 200 persons will be out of work as a result of the closure of Gulf Garden Foods Limited. This includes wage earners at the plant and the crews of the dragger fleet.

Professor Schwarz Lectures On Germans

By IRA BALDERSTON
"The outright glorification of militarism, fashionable in various German circles after World War I is virtually absent after World War II," Professor Dr. W. J. Schwarz, of Memorial University of Newfoundland, told a group of people attending his lecture at Montgomery Hall last night. His topic was "War and the German Mind."

"The extreme ethnocentric attitude towards the war that reached its peak during the Third Reich abruptly came to an end in 1945," Dr. Schwarz stated.

He went on to say that "The entire group of writers who rose to national fame by means of the support, given them by Nazi authorities, has almost completely disappeared. Some older Conservatives, like Winger and Salomon are still writing but they have greatly modified and moderated their tone."

NEW GENERATION
"The new generation of German writers is composed predominantly of persons who stand firmly on the traditions of the 'other Germany,' and on the Western traditions of democracy, and to a certain extent, of Christianity," Dr. Schwarz stated.

He further stated that "The years following the first World War were marked on one side by a rich cultural life and on the other by waves of violence, assassinations, political crisis and economic fluctuations, German philosophers, poets, scientists and politicians of this period received recognition throughout the world. Compared to this period, cultural life in Germany after World War II appears to be rather stagnant, in some fields at least."

Professor Schwarz pointed out that on the other hand no secret military or semi-military organizations have disturbed public security, as was often the case in the Weimar Republic.

In dealing with language in Germany, Professor Schwarz said, he supposed the question of Langemark would never be settled. "Those who could settle it are the students who died at Langemark, and they cannot speak. About the manner of death of the soldiers, of the sixth army at Stalingrad, however, as the decisive battle of World War II, there will be no disagreement because we possess the testimony of these soldiers in the form of their last letters."

The speaker was thanked for his inspiring talk by Dr. A. I. R. Galloway, head of the modern language department at Prince of Wales College.

3,100 Carloads Of Potatoes Have Been Moved So Far

MONCTON — More than 3,100 carloads of Maritime potatoes from this year's crop, have been moved already by Canadian National for domestic consumption, and for export from New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. It was announced today by E.J. Healy, operations manager for CN's Maritime Area.

A steady stream of potatoes has been rolling off Prince Edward Island. Between August 1 and December 1, there has been a 10 per cent increase over the same period last year.

The potato traffic is handled at a time when demand for heated roofers and insulated box cars is high. Traffic from the continent's fruit belt moves at the same time, and close co-operation between the shippers and railway, play a vital role in getting cars where they are needed, when they are needed, says Mr. Healy.

Maritime potatoes have been handled this fall with cars from as far away as the Niagara Pa-insul supplementing the Atlantic Region's own car fleet. They are marshalled at Montreal and roll into the region in blocks of 25, 50 or 75.

Potatoes for export have been moving via CN through Summerside, Saint John and Halifax. One hundred and fifty reefers loaded with apples for export through Halifax, now on their way to the Atlantic Station will carry Maritime Potatoes back to markets throughout Quebec and Ontario.
