

Spoiled Sweet Clover Leads To New Treatment

TORONTO, June 21 (AP)—Spoiled sweet clover pointed the way to a treatment for thrombosis in humans, a paper today to the conference of the Chemical Institute of Canada declared.

It happened this way: About 30 years ago, scientists found that spoiled sweet clover could cause a hemorrhage disease in cattle and that this was caused by a chemical named dicoumarol. Chemists isolated dicoumarol and today its anti-coagulating effect on blood is proving valuable in combating thrombosis.

The paper was presented by L. B. Jacques and Dr. J. W. T. Spinks of Saskatoon.

Says Fuchs Knew All Atom Secrets

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—Klaus Fuchs, the British atomic spy, knew all the top secrets not only of atom bombs but of the hydrogen bomb.

How much this man, who says he gave his information to Russia, knew is revealed by William L. Laurence, New York Times science reporter, the only newspaper man given access to all the atomic secrets. Laurence tells the Fuchs story today in the Saturday Evening Post.

Before the first atom bomb, Laurence was at Los Alamos, New Mexico, talking to Dr. Hans A. Bethe, who headed the theoretical

U. K. Agricultural Mission To Canada

OTTAWA, June 20, 1950—Headed by Sir William Ogg, director of the experimental station at Rothamsted, England, and consultant director of the Commonwealth Bureau of Soil Science a party of six eminent United Kingdom agricultural scientists and administrators will tour Canada this summer as guests of the Canadian Department of Agriculture.

Scheduled to land at Quebec June 27, the party will be accompanied by Dr. W. F. Darke, agricultural secretary to the U. K. High Commissioner in Canada, across the country and back until they leave Montreal August 24.

This is a return call for the visit of Canadian agricultural scientists to the U. K. last year and is part of a postwar movement towards the vital and continuous interchange of ideas related to the scientific and organizational aspects of agriculture.

Besides Sir William Ogg, the party will include Dr. D. P. Guthrie, director of the Rowett Research Institute, Aberdeen; Professor W. H. Ellison, University College of Wales, Aberystwyth; J. H. Anderson, National Agricultural Advisory Service, Cambridge; W. H. Senior, assistant director of education and research of the Department of Agriculture, Scotland; Professor Ewen M'Ewen, University of Durham.

During their tour of Canada they will study the most recent developments in Canadian agriculture and visit the most outstanding agricultural institutions of this country. For instance, their itinerary includes an airplane trip over Prince Edward Island from Charlottetown, guests of the provincial government, an extended tour of the great St. Mary's dam and canal system from Leithbridge. They will also visit representative farms from coast to coast, manufacturing and packing plants, experimental farms and stations, universities and agricultural colleges, provincial and federal government buildings, offices and personnel.

heat of the midday glimmers over the countryside, one is aware that in this month of June "then if ever, come perfect days." "Yes," James said, "we just may get rain out of this. We're commencing to feel the need of it. I'm thinking the haying won't be the heavy chore of some years. Reckon," he smiled whimsically with uneasy visions of some of his prophetic words coming true, "farmer's won't be leaving it to waste on the fields this year—and neither will the straw be left in neglected heaps. I've farmed a good many years, and I've never seen any crop—no matter how good, that could be wasted. No, sir, there's usually a call for any surplus—in time. There are plenty of lessons for farmers in the Scriptures but none better than that of the fat years and the lean ones. No, there's not too much promise of hay at present but given some rain it would be surprising the 'cut' it would give." "It would need more than one shower!" Mr. C. offered drily. "One shower!" James echoed, "as things are, we could do with days of it!"

At Alderlea, it was a busy week that led us up to the end of our cropping. For the farmers there was the drilling and sowing of the acreage of mangels and turnips, the preparation for and planting of the potatoes and binding these busily together, periods at the fencing. The housewives must attend to the set-cutting, the house-work, the sitting hens, ends of gardening, lend their presence at the milking, hold occasional pails to the calves... and sometimes loiter precious minutes away, lost to the delight of the month at hand. Pard, white dog of ours left on a recent evening to take over other herdings and guardings on another farmstead at a distance. And at times since, James' whistle or call to him comes to our ears... then a silence. Pard will not again answer his summons. And above and beneath on every hand these days lies the rich beauty and delight of the June month, the color and fragrance born of it, to enjoy and remember. And delighting in the successive glories of hill and vale, of sun and sky, with the poet we may say:
