Submarine Cruise Exciting Experience For Islanders

BY RALPH CAMERON

The Golden Dolphins, emblematic of officer status in the United States submarine service, were pinned on Miss Estelle Coady, Miss Gold Cup and Saucer, in a personal presentation by Lieut. Cmdr. R. R. McKechnie, USS Sea Owl, Saturday.

The brief and private ceremony took place in the captain's cabin where the submarine was down under Northumberland Strait during one of the series of dives made Saturday.

Approximately 25 Island guests including Lieut. Gov. W.J. MacDonald, former Lieut. Gov. T.W.L. Prowse, Capt. L.E. Prowse, City Councillors H. E. Hyndman and Arthur Wright, and Insp. Arthur Wright, and Insp. A.S. McNeil, RCMP, were aboard as guests of the commanding officer.

The submarine, a veteran of many naval engagements with Japanese craft, has many well-erned honors as a result of sinking enemy destroyers, submarines and other vessels during the Second World War.

During the special cruise Saturday Lieut. Cmdr. McKechnie also presented the golden dolphins to His Honor Lieutenant Governor MacDonald.

FIRST SUB TRIP

The guests were lined up on deck as the sub manoeuvered away from the jetty Saturday morning and when the ship was underway were broken up into small groups and taken on a complete tour of the sub. For many of them it was their first time on board a submarine and for others the first time they had ever been on board while a sub was diving.

Guiding each group were officers or petty officers who obviously know their ship intimately by as they explained in detail the various operations. Most of the questions directed by the guests concerned the torpedo tubes which intrigued all of them. A few others, possibly with an eye to certain eventualities, were primarily concerned with escape facilities. They were easily reassured by their guides.

A submarine is a small world unto itself and despite its overall length 'small' is the truly descriptive word. Crews of destroyers and frigates may think their quarters are cramped, but in a submarine everything is packed into such a compact space that one guide suggested if his guests could find a spare foot of space on board to let him know and he would use it as a locker.

FANTASTIC MEAL

One of the unforgettable memories of the cruise is the wonderful noon meal served the guests. The bill of fare was fantastic and could only be equally by the excellence of the food and the superb manner in which it was prepared and served.

It has been rumored that messing on a submarine was superior to not only that of other ships but other services. Yesterday proved the rumors correct. Crew members said it was policy on their ship to maintain an 'open refrigerator'. They are welcome to help themselves at any time to anything from steaks to desserts.

Perhaps too something the special guests will remember for a long time was the showing of a genuine friendship and hospitality not too often encountered. This was true of everyone from the commanding officer on down the ranking line. Chiefs and Petty Officers and seaman alike were all delighted to answer questions or help in any way. Obviously it is a happy ship.

In an open letter to the citizens of Charlottetown and all the province Lieut. Cmdr. McKechnie told briefly of the crews experiences while in this port. He wrote while the sub was returning from the cruise Saturday afternoon and expressed regret that only the limitations of space forbade having all Islanders aboard at the time.

However, he noted his ship had been open to visitors and said several thousand had taken advantage of the chance to see a submarine for the first time.

APPRECIATION VOICED

In closing the captain said: "May we again express our appreciation. The parade was magnificent. We think we contributed to the color and smartness. The races were spectacular, and were enjoyed by all. Most important your hospitality and kindness are unexcelled".

Coming from one whose own kindness and hospitality were almost breathtaking it was a tribute which will not soon be forgotten.

One almost unnoticed event in the great Gold Cup and Saucer Day pageant was the presentation to the featured girls of a beautiful mechanical pencil in the form of a torpedo. The lead is produced or retracted by turning the golden propellor. The girls were especially proud of this one of the many honors which came their way.

The Wardroom of the Sea Owl will carry with it at least one souvenir of its call at this port. Saturday Inspector MacNeil presented Lieut. Cmdr. McKechnie with a plaque bearing the crest of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

G'town Probable Location Of New Large Fish Plant

Rumors circulating last week indicated that a huge $3,000,000 fish processing plant might be established in the Georgetown area of this province. Some of the rumors give rise to the belief that the plant will be a subsidiary of a large Northern European firm.

While nothing, whatsoever has been released officially by provincial government sources, it is believed the resources section of the department of industry has been working on the matter for some months and is now prepared to make an announcement of the plans.

Large scale development of the province's fishing industry has been in the wind for some time. Fisheries Minister Leo Rossiter has authorized preparation of a brief that will request federal financial assistance in expansion of the industry.

Premier Walter R. Shaw has already indicated that an important government announcement will be made early this week. Several cabinet sessions were held in the past week, believed to be in connection with industrial development.

Search Planned For Descendants

Island Shorthorns Praised By Judges

Quality was high throughout the livestock show which closed at the Provincial Exhibition here Friday afternoon, but the Dual Purpose Shorthorn cattle excelled all of the rest in so far as drawing almost unreserved praise from the show judge is concerned.

In most other cases the judge was reserved in his praise and "the tops were good" or "there is an improvement since I was here last" was the extent of his restrained enthusiasm.

But J. C. (Bill) Bennett of Fredericton was enthusiastic in his comment on the milking Shorthorns that appeared before him in the show ring.

"The cattle are unusually strong, several classes had no tail enders. The entire show is strong with very few tail-end cattle" was a sample of the way the New Brunswick department of agriculture man commented on the animals that paraded before him.

No single animals drew any more enthusiastic approval from any judge than did the grand champion male Hereford. Owned by Gordon Matheson of Hunter River. He drew warm praise from veteran Hereford breeder B. B. Warnica of Barrie, Ontario. He was later named best beef bull of the show.

Best individual in the Angus breed the judge indicated, was Irving MacDonald's "Black Bird of Progress" that was named best beef cow in the show for the second year in a row.

One of the better beef sections in the show was a quarter of Scotch Shorthorn bulls in the senior class. All four were rated as particularly strong by veteran ringside observers.

There were outstanding animals in all of the breeds but in many cases judges faulted some of the animals at the tail end of the classes.

Some of the classes were unusually large and the Holsteins had the largest entry list with their attractive Black and White cattle that are making such headway cross the country. Fieldman E.P. Jarvis said there are more new breeders in this province this year than ever before.

Surprisingly good quality was seen in some of the draft horses that were shown, and this in spite of the fact that in most cases the horse's place on the farm has been replaced by mechanical monsters that consume gasoline and oil, instead of the hay and oats the farmers of other years used to keep their power units operating.

One throw back to former years was noted in Friday's judging. The Guernsey and Ayrshire breeders took their cattle outside to be placed in the judging ring . . . so when the other failed for a time in the big Coliseum which Scotch Shorthorn Judge Don Hutson called the best show ring in Eastern Canada.

The death of John R. Edwards of Fredericton, N.B., occurred suddenly at Charlottetown, early Sunday morning, Aug. 18, while on a visit here. Mr. Edwards was employed with Rawlston Purina Co. prior to his transfer to Fredericton about five years ago where he was salesman for a feed company for the Maritimes.

He was in this province to attend the wedding of his niece Miss Myrna Coles to Everett Johnston at Milton Anglican Church Saturday evening.

He was the son of Mrs. Chester Edwards of Hampshire and the late Mr. Edwards. Besides his mother he is survived by his wife, the former Georgie Willis of Hampshire, one daughter, Faye 16 and son Alan 12, also two sisters, Mrs. Wendell Wood, Charlottetown and Mrs. Verner Coles, Milton.

Child Injured When Hit By Car

SOURIS — Richard Jennings, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Jennings of Souris, suffered minor injuries when he was struck by a car on Church Street Saturday night.

It is believed the young lad ran in the path of the 1962 Dodge driven by Lynn Roach of this Town. He suffered a cut lip, bruised knee and minor shock.

The accident happened about 7.45 p.m.

ANGLICANS

Bayne; Bishop J. W. Sadiq of Nagpur, India; Bishop D. M. Goto of Tokyo, who spoke in Japanese and was translated; Bishop R.R. Roseveare of Accra, Ghana, and a parade of scheduled lay and clerical speakers from the congress audience.

One of the supporters on the floor of the 2,000-strong session, Bishop G. N. Luxton of Huron, Ont., proposed an immediate vote on the general.

But several delegates jumped up and British layman John Lawrence, editor of the interdenominational journal Frontier, protested strongly that the congress should not be required to make a "snap vote."

Archbishop Coggan, the chairman, agreed to give delegates more time to consider the plan and said it was better to wait in the hope of getting unanimous approval.

The congress of bishops, clergy and laity representing some 44,000,000 Anglicans has no policy-making power, but any resolutions it passes are likely to have a strong impact on the church's future action.
