MPs Await Proposal On New Ferry Service

CAPITAL BUREAU
OF THE GUARDIAN

OTTAWA — Prince Edward Island members of parliament will want to know a good deal about the economics of the situation before supporting a proposal for a third P.E.I. - mainland ferry service.

Questioned here yesterday, Hon. Angus MacLean and Heath Macquarrie, members for Queens, were cautious in their approach to the proposal.

"It is difficult to comment without some specific proposal, and the federal government has not been approached directly as yet," Mr. MacLean pointed out. "What support the proposal would get will depend to a large extent on what kind of a case they can make."

The fisheries minister said he was in favor of anything that would help the industrial and tourist business of the Island, and he said it was possible there woud be enough traffic to warrant a third service.

He pointed out that the Wood Islands service operated in the summer to serve the eastern end of the Island, however, the eastern end was more or less adjacent to the heavy industrial areas of Nova Scotia and Cape Breton.

He doubted that a similar situation existed in New Brunswick, opposite the western end of P.E.I. In addition, the population was heavier on the eastern side.

SOME DOUBT EXISTS

Mr. Macquarrie said there was some question about the status of the harbor at Buctouche, and whether it could serve auto ferries.

"Naturally, we will follow this matter with interest, but we will want to know how the two provincial governments feel about helping to subsidize the service," Mr. Macquarrie said. "It's really a matter of economics, and we will have to wait and see what the details are."

Dr. Orville Phillips and Mrs. Margaret Macdonald, the other two Island MPs, are both visiting on the Island and were not available here for comment.

S'side Area Will Have 6 Mail Carrier Walks

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU
OF THE GUARDIAN

Official word was received from Ottawa Thursday by Post Master Charles Peters that authorization has been given for the establishment of six letter carrier walks in Summerside. There will also be two supervisory letter carriers for the area, which includes St. Eleanor's.

However, it is emphasized that 80 per cent of the householders must have mail-receiving facilities installed in their homes — either slots or boxes — before the service will become a reality.

WILL CO-OPERATE

Mr. Peters said it is the hope of postal authorities that householders will co-operate in having these facilities installed right away, in order to expedite the inauguration of the carrier service.

Two deliveries will be made, daily, to the business houses, and one to the homes, Mr. Peters stated.

It's understood the majority of St. Eleanors residents favor the service, and if they accept it, their present post office would become a sub-office of the Summerside post office.

Before the letter carrier service will commence, it will be necessary for St. Eleanors streets to be given names and residences numbered, among other details that are expected to be finalized shortly.

The call box service will be maintained at the Summerside Post Office Mr. Peters added, for the convenience of those who wish to pick up their mail, as before. However, it is anticipated that most residents will take advantage of the long-awaited service, which may possibly be installed within three or four months.

City Trio Carries On After Skip Is Barred

When the Elizabeth Macdonald rink of Charlottetown copped the Silver 'D' competition at Summerside Thursday night, skip Mrs. Macdonald was among those absent.

Mrs. Macdonald was in the curling rink, but she wasn't permitted to skip her rink because of word received by Mrs. Irene Silliphant, president of the Prince Edward Island Women's Curling Association from the Dominion president.

SUFFERED INJURY

The mixup dated back to last Monday when Mrs. Macdonald injured her leg in her first match. The injury was such that she was no longer able to curl, but after much consultation, and by a majority vote of the representatives of the various Island clubs, and by authority of the referee-in-chief, Gerry Hayes, Summerside, it was agreed that she (Mrs. Macdonald) be allowed to skip her rink without throwing her stones.

Representatives of the Canadian Women's Curling Association were contacted on the matter, but they appeared to be of the opinion that the affair was purely a provincial one and should be settled by P.E.I. curling authorities.

The matter seemed ended until Thursday when word received by Mrs. Silliphant banned Mrs. Macdonald from skipping her rink. As it turned out, her companions, Mrs. Sally Rodd, Evelyn Goss and Mrs. Nora Macdonald went on to retain the crown they won a year ago at Charlottetown. The triumph sends them to Regina for the Dominion 'D' championships.

Last night the three curlers had a busy time of it. Mrs. Rodd threw four stones and Mrs. Goss had to sweep these tosses. After that hardship, she was back throwing her own two. Nora MacDonald skipped in the absence of the banned skip.

President Explains Ruling Forcing Skip To Retire

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU
OF THE GUARDIAN

Fear that a rules technicality would lead to the disqualification of the Elizabeth MacDonald curling rink led to the decision to bar Mrs. MacDonald from competing in Thursday's championship curling final, Mrs. Irene Silliphant, president of the Provincial Curling Association, told The Guardian - Patriot yesterday.

BECAME CONCERNED

Mrs. Silliphant said that she became more and more "concerned" as the MacDonald rink, playing all week with its skip able to do nothing more than call the shots, moved toward the championship. She was afraid that after the title had been won the MacDonald rink might be disqualified from competing in the Dominion bonspiel because of a technicality contained in sections two and five of the Dominion rules.

Mrs. Silliphant said she interpreted these rules as meaning that if a skip of a team is unable to throw her rocks, she should retire from the ice.

To clarify the position, and to prevent embarrassment for all concerned, Mrs. Silliphant wired the Dominion president, a Mrs. Youngson, in Regina, Sask., for an official ruling.

PRESIDENT'S RULING

The president ruled that sections two and five should be observed, and that Mrs. MacDonald should, if unable to curl, leave the ice.

Earlier in the week, Mrs. Silliphant said, following the injury to Mrs. MacDonald, an RCAF rink, which had been defeated by the Charlottetown quartet, protested, basing their protests on sections two and five.

The Island executive met on this matter and allowed the MacDonald rink to continue to play, and overruled the protest.

So-ed Program Opens In S'side

SUMMERSIDE — The first in a series of six So-Ed programs was held Thursday at the Elm street school auditorium and was pronounced a success although attendance was below the expected number.

Members of the executive stressed that the rather low attendance was a result of a combination of circumstances beyond the control of members, but that this would not happen in the future.

About fifty members registered and attended the dance which followed.
