

N.Y. Yankees Score 3-2 Victory Over Red Sox

(Associated Press) Alie Reynolds, the strong-armed Indian right-hander, assured New York's Yankees of at least a tie for the American League pennant today, pitching and batting the world champions to a 3-2 victory over Boston Red Sox.

The quarter-blooded Cree made certain of reaching the 20-victory mark for the first time in his big league career by hitting a single with two out in the top of the ninth inning, to snap a 2-2 tie and drive in Irv Noren with the winning run.

In the National League, New York Giants clinched second place with a two-run, ninth-inning rally which downed Boston Braves 3-2. Reliever Hoyt Wilhelm, taking over in the ninth for starter Jim Hearn, was credited with his 15th victory of the year.

Noren opened the ninth by coaxing a pass. It was only the second walk of Sid Hudson, who went all the way, allowing nine hits to absorb his 13th loss against 10 victories.

A sacrifice by Gil McDougald sent Noren to second and a long fly by Billy Martin moved the base runner to third. Reynolds singled over shortstop Johnny Lipton's head, Noren, scoring easily.

The victory increased the Yankees' first-place margin over the idle Cleveland Indians to 1 1/2 games and made it impossible for the Yanks to lose the championship during the regular playing season.

The only possible chance for the Indians to win the flag is to capture their two remaining games, both in Detroit, while the Yankees drop all three of their games to the Athletics in Philadelphia. Then Cleveland would have to win a one-game playoff from New York.

It was a great day for the 34-year-old Reynolds, who a year ago this week pitched a no-hitter against the same Red Sox to clinch the Yank's 1951 championship. Allie, loser of eight games, yielded eight hits, walked three and fanned eight to increase his league leading strikeout total to 161. His previous best season was in 1947 when he won 19 games.

The Yankees were forced to overcome a 2-0 lead built by Boston during the first four innings on home runs by Hoot Evers and Ted Lepcio.

In the fifth Gil McDougald blasted his 14th round-tripper and in the sixth Mickey Mantle tripled and then crossed the plate with the tying run when Joe Collins doubled.

At Detroit, lanky Hal Newhouser, in the twilight of his 14-year-career with Detroit Tigers, won his 200th major league game—a feat only 54 other pitchers ever managed. He gave St. Louis Browns six hits in the 3-2 decision.

But only 569 fans—smallest crowd in Briggs Stadium's history—saw the 31-year-old lefthander win his ninth of the season. He has lost nine.

Only two other active pitchers have won 200 or more—Bob Feller of Cleveland Indians and Bob Newsum of Philadelphia Athletics.

The other American League clubs were not scheduled today. In a National League game to-night, St. Louis Cardinals beat Cincinnati Reds 4-3. Billy Jackson's double and Solly Hemus' single accounted for the winning run in the last of the ninth.

SHAWINIGAN FALLS, Quebec, Sept. 26—(CP)—Shawinigan Falls, Quebec, of the Quebec Senior Hockey League announced today the sale of veteran right-winger Bucky Buchanan to Chicoutimi Saguenens for an undisclosed amount of cash.

Expect Many Sportsmen At Ferry Meeting Today

Sportsmen from all over the Island, plus a substantial contingent from the neighbouring provinces have signified their intention to attend the meeting of the Maritime Wild Life Federation, which assemblies for the third annual session on the ferry at Abegweit late this afternoon.

Additional interest has been aroused by the assurance that a representative gathering of Fish and Game sportsmen from the Eastern States will be in attendance to exchange views on matters of common interest.

Mr. W. A. Fox, president of the Association will open the proceedings shortly after the first contingent from the Island side arrives on the ferry but the real activities of the session will not commence until the ship has made a crossing and picked up the delegates from New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

New officers for the ensuing year will be elected before the conference terminates.

Rochester Red Wings Win International League

MONTREAL, Sept. 25—(CP)—Rochester Red Wings defeated Montreal Royals 3-2 tonight to win the best-of-seven International Baseball League final playoff series 4-2. Rochester now meets Kansas City of the American Association in the Little World Series opening in Kansas City Saturday.

Steve Bilko's bases-empty home run in the third inning proved to be the deciding run as Jack (No-Hit) Collum and Jack Crimlan checked the pennant-winning Royals with five hits.

The Royals threatened in the ninth when Walt Moryn homered off Collum but Crimlan came in to get the last two outs.

Rochester, third during the regular season, moved through the semi-final of the playoffs with four straight over Syracuse before going on to win the finals.

It is the first time the Red Wings have won the Governors' Cup since 1939 when Billy Southworth piloted them into the Little World Series.

Maritime Pro Golf Meet At Fredericton

FREDERICTON, Sept. 26—(CP)—Some of the best golfers in the Maritime Provinces—amateurs and professionals—will gather here over the week-end for the annual Maritime Professional Golfers' Association championship.

The two-day tournament will be played at the Fredericton Golf Club.

The pros, playing for their own championship, will bring with them some of the leading amateurs from their clubs for a special invitation competition.

Kas Zabowak, the veteran shot-maker from Halifax, is the defending pro champion, having won the title last fall at Amherst. His chief competition this year is expected to come from New Brunswick's Archie Skinner of St. Andrews and Don Sinclair of Riverview. There also is a possibility that two Moncton pros—Ben McCallum and Alan Ogilvie—will be back from Toronto in time for the tournament. They were in Toronto this week for the first burary golf tournament for young Canadian professionals.

A good entry of amateurs is expected from Moncton. Ralph Harley Moncton, led the amateurs last fall and also topped the pro field. Eighteen holes will be played Saturday, with the final 36 the following day.

Ring Reminiscences

— Fights and Fighters —
(By James Fendergast)

After the great influx of gold seekers had stamped down the Yukon and built log houses and put up tents on the flat space which extends from the river bank toward the "Little Dome" (about one mile) and along the river for two miles — their dreams of Goldconda shattered, they proceeded down river. The great majority of the Argonauts were sadly disillusioned. They found that nearly all the creeks, gulches, "draws" and "pups" in the Klondike system were staked.

A "draw" is a depression in a gravel hillside not as deeply eroded as a gulch. A "pup" is a small deep ravine, so named on account of somebody's puppy dog being found hanged in one of those ravines in the very early days of prospecting for placer gold.

The polyglot crowd of adventurers from all corners of the earth gradually faded away. Most of them went the way of least resistance, which was to drift down river with the six or seven mile an hour current. Some went the whole 1500 miles to the mouth of the river where they got transportation on ocean-going steamers back to Pacific coast cities. Many others pulled up at the mouths of the numerous creeks and rivers emptying into the Yukon and prospected them in a more or less hasty manner. They found gold on practically all of them, but they didn't consider it plentiful enough to be in paying quantities and soon moved on to the outside. Most of those flat bottomed creeks were about one quarter mile wide, and the "paystreak" in them narrow and elusive. Miners have been known to sink prospect holes within inches and miss it entirely. Even Eldorado creek (tributary of Bonanza Creek in Klondike) was considered a "dud" in 1897. Some prospectors sank holes and missed the "paystreak". Some gloomy prophet, who was also a bit of a "wag" blazed a spruce tree at the confluence of Eldorado and Bonanza creeks and wrote with graphite pencil, "This is for Cheechacos and Indians". "Tree writing" and other hieroglyphics are quite commonplace at junctions in the wilderness of the north.

The famous "swap" of one Johannson of his fairly good claim on Hunker for one on Eldorado, with two shysters who got him "rum-hausen" by plying him with liquor for several days (the trading posts were supplied liquor by the Alaska Commercial Co. river steamers), is one of the dramatic legends of the Yukon.

When Johannson emerged from the soporific state induced by copious libations of the ardent fluid which dulls the senses, and found the schemers in possession of his claim, he was overcome by self-abatement and remorse to such a degree that he cried bitter tears. He found that he had no redress, that the transfer was signed, sealed and delivered. In sorrow and with the courage of desperation he said to a friend, "By jumpy" simey, I tank I go and sink a hole". And mirabile dictu! He struck gold, "proved" the "paystreak" on Eldorado. The claim is reported to have produced a million dollars.

After the excess of gold seeking adventurers became dispersed on the creeks in the Klondike and down river, Dawson City became a community much the same as any town it's size in Ontario or the Maritimes. The administration of law was in the hands of the N.W.M. Police and judges from Quebec and Ontario. Most of the citizens were from country districts all over Canada. United States citizens were given almost equal rights and privileges. They were allowed to stake and own claims. Many of the richest claims were owned by Americans. The same privileges were given Canadian and British subjects in Alaska, Americans combined their 4th of July celebration with our Dominion Day festivities and games. I heard that brotherly spirit pronounced very succinctly one evening at a Canadian Club banquet by a Riel rebellion veteran called Colonel MacGregor, when he told the Americans present, "We recognize no 49th parallel here. We're brothers all." The dances and other amusements were much the same as in Glenegary or Antigonish or Grand River, P.E.I. The Glenegary boys were real adept and musical at "calling" the square dances.

They were very apt at nicknaming all and sundry. Especially those with any marked traits or idiosyncracies. There was one A.B.C. Smith, which the versatile Charlie Settlementer, ace reporter of the Dawson News named "Alphabetical" Smith. Another prominent business man about town had trouble with the White Pass Transport Co. about a shipment of pickles. He also was the possessor of a very sour countenance as if he had just swallowed a very sour pickle. Hence the name seemed more appropriate. The Commissioner (Governor) was of a superior intellect and bearing inclined to look down the nose at less fortunate members of the "common herd". He had been a professor of English and history at Dalhousie University in his younger days. He was a very erudite gentleman, but the hot polli had no compunction in naming him "King Congdon". The alliteration perhaps had something to do with the fitness of that.

CHICOUTIMI, Que., Sept. 25—(CP)—Chicoutimi Saguenens of the Quebec Senior Hockey League announced tonight they have acquired right-winger Fernand Perreault from Montreal Royals and that centre Jimmy Moore, with whom last season, has been transferred to Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League.
