

THE CAMPAIGN.

GOVERNMENT'S RECORD.

"They promised to greatly reduce the public expenditure. They have largely increased it."

"In the strongest language they condemned a provincial debt. In five years they have added over a quarter of a million of dollars to our debt."

"They solemnly professed that they could manage our affairs without taxation. In three years they have taken from the people over one hundred and thirty-eight thousand dollars in taxes."

"They protested against the practice of borrowing money at the banks. There has scarcely been a year since they attained power, that the Province has not owed very large amounts to one or more of the banks."

"They pledged themselves not to impose taxation without consulting the people. No sooner was the promise made than it was faithlessly broken by the introduction and passage into law of four separate tax acts."

"They seriously engaged, in 1891, to devote about 15,000 dollars of the money to be raised by debentures to the repair of the Provincial building. This has not been done. The building has received no repairs."

"They loudly proclaimed, in opposition, that there was no necessity for a Commissioner of Public Lands. That official still exists, although they have been in power for over six years."

"They denounced, with one voice, Provincial deficits. There has not been a single year of their administration that there has not been a large deficit,—their deficits aggregate over $255,000, and if the taxes they collected be added, the astounding result of over $393,000 will be reached."

PEOPLES' PARTY'S MOTTO:

VICTORY WITH HONOR.

Peoples' Party's Platform

"The Provincial executive will be reduced from nine to seven."

"No public money will be expended in excess of legislative appropriations, unless in case of unavoidable necessity, such as caused by flood or sudden disaster."

"Provision will be made for a quarterly publication of revenue and expenditure."

"The office of Commissioner of Public Lands will be abolished and the duties assigned to the Attorney General."

"The present ferry system will be reformed with a view to greater economy of expenditure without diminishing efficiency of accommodation."

"A reform in the administration of the Surrogate and Probate court will be effected."

"A radical change will be made in the administration of the Public Works department, so that the money now wasted can be saved to the Province."

"The present system of taxation will be so changed that it will operate with even-handed justice, and not bear oppressively and unfairly on any class of taxpayers."

"Economy will be practised in every department, and taxation will be kept down to the lowest possible limit."

"The efficiency of the Public Service will be maintained, and revenue and expenditure will be made to square as nearly as possible."

"No further increase of the public debt will be permitted."

"There will be considerable reductions in the expenditure of the public money, and the resources of the Province will be safeguarded and husbanded by every legitimate means that can be devised."

NEWS NOTES.

A fresh attempt on the part of the Sultan to secure Germany's support of the retention of Thessaly has met with a refusal and the advice to conform to Europe's wishes on the subject.

An incident typical of the situation occurred at Constantinople on Tuesday. During the panic caused by the salute fired in honor of the jubilee of Queen Victoria, the Mussulmans trooped into the streets armed with bludgeons and asked the police whether the Greeks or the Armenians were to be attacked.

The Brazilian Government troops have attacked the fanatics who hold the town of Canudos and forced them to retire to their entrenchments. Skirmishes continue, and though the troops are victorious in these they have been unable to wrest the town from the fanatics. The government has negotiated a further loan of £4,000,000 to meet war expenses.

Miss Madeline Pollard, who was plaintiff in the sensational suit against ex-Congressman W. C. P. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, and who disappeared after the trial, which resulted in a verdict in her favor for $15,000 damages, is living in London. She is apparently in good circumstances and is studying with the view of engaging in literary work. She intends to make England her home.

An ex-consable tells the people of England about the Northwest Mounted Police. He concludes as follows:—"The force is both military and civil, it is a combination on the march of mounted infantry, artillery, transport, commissariat, ambulance, and both in camp, and barracks and on the trail every man is prepared to cook, fight, carry despatches, drive a team, or instruct a young horse at a moment's notice. Adaptable as sailors, well fed, well clothed, well paid, overflowing with energy, lean, brown and hardy, these troopers are the very pick of the world, and, curiously enough, a very large proportion are English gentlemen from the army, the Universities, and perhaps, the Peerage. An adopted name and the uniform covers many a romance which has stirred society; and in the ranks may be found some of the most extraordinary adventurers of the age. To anybody who knows the inner life of our frontier cavalry in South Africa, Australasia and Canada the average novel is flat. The man who has served in what Mr. Kipling wisely calls the Lost Legion finds this sordid, prosaic, ugly town unbearable and longs to get back to the full-blooded life, the gorgeous color, the stirring adventure, the hardships, the risks, the daring of the wide spaces beyond the last fence. For to know the full glory of manhood one must go to the frontier."

THROUGH PARISIAN SPECTACLES. A correspondent of the Paris Matin, who attended the jubilee naval review and made several trips on steamers for the purpose of learning British opinion of the visitors and warships, sends a vivacious summing up of his experience.

He says: "How they detest the Germans! They abstained from a single cheer before the Kaiser's cruiser and remarked with disdain her ancient construction. Coming to the superb Japanese cruiser, the crowd waxed sarcastic, crying, 'Tchin, Tchin, you, you,' which the Mikado's subjects took for marks of sympathy. The Englishmen were indifferent in the presence of the Swedish, Austrian and Spanish warships, but they saluted with pleasure the Italian warship Lepanto. Finally reaching the French and Russian cruisers, they scanned them curiously, seeking to estimate their strength, and were visibly pre-occupied and impressed."

The correspondent says he was struck by the undisguised feeling shown by the occupants of the legions of craft of all shapes and sizes threading the lines of the floating citadels. He returned to Paris mouth and started on another vessel. He found the crowds always the same. They frantically cheered their own ironclads and cruisers. The women cried and waved their handkerchiefs and the children squealed, but the enthusiasm diminished when the foreign warships were passed. Then they cheered politely, but without conviction.

Catarrh

"For several years I was a great sufferer with catarrh, and at times I could hardly speak so any one could understand me. After taking a few bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla I was relieved and since then I have not been troubled with catarrh."

Two Critics of Whitman.

Eminent critics often arrive at directly opposite results, says John Burroughs in The Atlantic. Two such judges and lovers of poetry as Emerson and Lowell, for instance, hold directly opposite views about Whitman. A little search would no doubt reveal the grounds of this difference. Whitman approximated to the Emersonian type more than to the Lowellian—the type of the skald, the prophet. Lowell was a professional critic and scholar—he was of the order of the true men of letters—while Emerson suggests the sacer vates of a nation. Lowell's sense of literature as a craft, as the work of scholars, his academic pride and esprit, were offended by Whitman's rude, open air spirit and his scorn of the stock poetic.

Shall we prefer poetry in its shirt sleeves to poetry in a dress suit? All the collegian in him revolted. Lowell would read Whitman through Chaucer, Shakespeare, Dante and Harvard college, and would find that he did not square with any of the poets, or with a taste founded upon them. Emerson would read Whitman with much more individual eyes, through his appreciation of the great mystics, prophets and seers and his enormous appetite for the audacious, the independent, the heroic in life and character.

A German doctor, who has been collecting information about the habits of long lived persons, finds that the majority of those who attained old age indulged in late hours. Eight out of ten persons over 80 never went to bed till well into the small hours, and did not get up again till late in the day.

POSTPONED JUBILEE TEA

The Ladies of the Presbyterian Congregation of East St. Peter's, intend celebrating the Queen's Jubilee year by holding a public Tea, on

MONDAY, 5th Inst,

AT HEAD OF THE BAY.

The site selected is well worth seeing, as it commands the grand view of the placid waters of the Bay, which can be seen to the Harbor's Mouth a distance of nine miles, and pronounced by tourists and others so be far the most picturesque portion of the fair Isle, and certainly ought to be seen to be appreciated, clothed now as it is in its mantle of green on both sides for the entire distance above named.

The Ladies at this time not only intend to maintain their former reputation for first class teas, but, if possible, to make this "The Jubilee Tea," and as they never failed before the world fair at this time is out of the question, backed as they are by a strong and active committee, who mean business, and intend to carry out all they advertise, to the letter.

Their will be a refreshment booth on the ground, loaded with all delicacies of the season, and also a variety of cooling and strictly temperate drinks.

Galbraith's Band will be on the ground on the arrival of the Eastern express, and the sound of the "pibroch" will be heard to enliven the scene, and cheer the hearts of all lovers of music.

The amusements will consist of the Merry-go-round. Phonograph, and prizes will be given for the following:—wheelbarrow races, egg races for little girls, foot races for boys, tug-of-war for men, married against single and pipe music.

Persons found selling intoxicating liquors on or near the grounds, or intoxicated on the ground will be vigorously dealt with.

Should the day prove unfavorable the Tea will be held the first fine day following.
