By BEN WARD
OTTAWA (CP)—The new federal labor code, setting a $1.25 hourly minimum wage and 40-hour work week, will become law in seven days but its immediate effect is expected to be negligible.

Practically every industry covered by the code has made application to Labor Minister MacEachren for the temporary deferments provided.

The flood of such applications has been so heavy that it probably will be impossible to make decisions on them before the code's July 1 starting date. Industries are automatically exempted until a ruling is handed down accepting or rejecting their contention that immediate application of the code would be harmful to them.

A labor department official said Wednesday that more than 40 applications are already in some from individual companies and others covering entire industries.

BIGGEST APPLY
Among them are believed to be the railways, shipping lines, inter-provincial truckers, airlines, grain elevators and feed mills. A few of the applications have been filed by unions.

The applications cover an estimated 300,000 of the 400,000 workers whose job minimums will be controlled by the new law. It applies only to the handful of industries that come under federal jurisdiction.

The labor department has declined to make public the list of applicants on the grounds that the information would harm their competitive situation. Many of the major industries, however, had served advance notice that they would seek temporary deferments from selected sections of the code.

ALLOW EXEMPTION
The Labor Code Act approved by Parliament earlier this year provides that a company or industry may be excluded from the wage or hours-of-work sections for up to 18 months.

Most of the applications involve the hours section. It sets a regular 40-hour week with a maximum of eight hours overtime in a week, except in emergency situations. Hours may be averaged for periods of up to one year to level out seasonal peaks.

Exclusion from the minimum hourly wage is limited to companies with strictly local operations. In these cases the labor department will specify an alternate wage minimum that will apply during the exemption period.

NEED CARE
"A lot of care has to be taken in evaluating each application," Harris S. Johnstone, director of the labor standards branch, said in an interview Wednesday. "But he declined to estimate how long it might take to clear up all the applications on hand."

Other provisions of the code, apart from hours and wages, are not subject to exemption and will thus have immediate application. These set out annual vacations of two weeks with pay after a year of employment and eight paid statutory holidays—New Year's Day, Good Friday, Victoria Day, Dominion Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day, Remembrance Day and Christmas.

Wheat Carryover Figures Quoted

By KEN CLARK
OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will likely have a wheat carryover of around 500,000,000 bushels at the end of the current crop year, July 31 — more than enough to meet domestic and export commitments.

It would be the biggest closing supply on hand since the 1962 year ended with stocks of 607,841,000 bushels.

Some grain officials regard 400,000,000 bushels as the ideal carryover size in these times of strong international demand for Canadian wheat. On this basis the expected carryover is too big.

Even at that it is not regarded as unmanageably large. And if Russia should buy big again in the near future, the extra stocks would come in handy.

RUSSIA BUYS LITTLE
There is no public indication at the moment that Russia plans to change its buying pattern of Canadian wheat. The Communist country has made only small-scale purchases since its huge 238,000,000-bushel purchase in the fall of 1963.

Even if Russia does decide to buy large quantities in Canada again, a purchase on the 1963 scale appears remote.

Officials from Trade Minister Sharp down are forecasting a 409,000,000 bushel export year. And the final figure could be the second-highest in history if it surpasses the 405,000,000 total in 1959-60.

Expected exports of 400,000,000 bushels plus domestic disappearance of 155,000,000 would leave a carryover on July 31 of 506,801,000.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

QUIZ
Your right-hand opponent deals and bids. One Spade, both sides vulnerable. What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

- ♠A73 ♥AK ♣J8742 ♦AK63
- ♠QJ84 ♥K9 ♦AQ6 ♣KQ73
- ♠6 ♦AKJ872 ♣KJ9 ♦A82
- ♠K5 ♥4 ♦AQJ63 ♣AQ842
- ♠♥KQ95 ♦KQJ74 ♣AK65

1. Pass in deciding whether or not to overcall an opening bid by your right-hand opponent, the determining factor is usually the question of safety. In general, you base the decision not on the number of high-card points you have, but on the number of tricks you can reasonably expect to take if you get doubled.

Thus, in this case, while the hand has 13 high-card points and the values for an opening bid, it would be too dangerous to bid two diamonds on such a many suit. If the next player were to double, you would not be at all surprising to wind up with a deficit of 800 or 1,100 points.

The best thing to do is pass the spade bid and await developments. There is a chance that the bidding will proceed in such a way that it will become safer to compete at a later time.

2. One trump. This is the best way to identify the hand from the standpoint of both high-card values and distribution. The trump overall is very similar to the opening trump bid. It shows 16 to 18 points, balanced distribution, but well divided strength. It guarantees at least one stopper in the opponents' suit.

3. Double the hand is too strong for an overall of two hearts, and the best way of representing our strength is by doubling first and bidding the hearts later on. A two heart bid would be proper without the king of diamonds or the ace of clubs, but, having both of them, we have to do more than bid two hearts.

The double is also preferred to a jump overall of three hearts because the hand may play well at a game contract in diamonds or clubs if partner is short in hearts and has a long minor suit.

4. Two diamonds. Here we have the high-card values for a double, but as a matter of fact it is better to start bidding our suits now rather than attempt to identify the 16 high-card points. A double might result in never being able to show the two-suited nature of the hand.

5. Two spades. The cuebid of the opponents' suit is the strongest form of overall possible. We should be willing to play this hand for game in any suit partner names in response to the cuebid.

Commission to require any such warning in cigarette advertising. Its bill also would ban state and local authorities from requiring any warnings.

The bill was called up unexpectedly with only a few members present. Among those absent was Representative John Moss (Dem. Cal.), the chief critic of the legislation.

However, a colleague, Representative Philip Burton (Dem. Calif.), read a strong written dissent by Moss in which he said the restriction against the FTC and local and state authorities weakened safeguards aimed at protecting public health.

The bill provides that starting six months after enactment of the legislation each package of cigarettes sold must bear the words, printed in a color contrasting with the background: "Caution: Cigarette smoking may be hazardous to your health."

RUSSIANS BREAK GLASS
About 25 per cent of Russia's glass production breaks in shipment, complains Pravda, for an annual loss of $33,000,000.

U.S. Cigarette Bill Is Passed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill that would require cigarette manufacturers to include on every pack a warning that smoking may be a health hazard has been passed by the House of Representatives.

The house refused, however, to permit the Federal Trade Commission to require any such warning in cigarette advertising.
