Arsenault-Gaudet

Wedding Yesterday

At Mont Carmel

A marriage of wide interest to a large circle of friends was solemnized in Mont Carmel Church by the Rev. John Buote yesterday morning at nine o'clock.

The bride, Marie Yvonne, daughter of Mrs. Gaudet and the late Mr. Emmanuel F. Gaudet of Wellington, became the bride of the Hon. Joseph Wilfred Arsenault, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Arsenault of Charlottetown.

The wedding music was under the direction of Mrs. Clifford Gaudet, and the soloist, Mrs. Raymond Reid, rendered Panis Angelicus during the nuptial Mass.

Appropriate hymns were sung by the Children of Mary Choir.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with white baskets of white gladioli and the guest pews were marked with white ribbon and sprigs of fern.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. J.P. Gaudet of Richmond, was lovely in her floor-length gown of white silk velvet, fashioned with sweetheart neckline, lily point sleeves, fitted bodice and full skirt with slight train.

The groom, who was given in marriage by his uncle, Mr. J.P. Gaudet of Richmond, was lovely in his floor-length gown of white silk velvet, fashioned with sweetheart neckline, lily point sleeves, fitted bodice and full skirt with slight train.

The bride's bouquet was a beautiful arrangement of white gladioli, pink carnations, and yellow chrysanthemums.

The groom's boutonniere was a white gladiolus, a pink carnation, and a yellow chrysanthemum.

The bride's hair was styled in a classic updo, and she wore a pearl necklace and earrings.

The groom's suit was a classic three-piece suit in a dark color.

The wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emmanuel F. Gaudet.

The bride and groom were accompanied by their bridesmaids and groomsmen.

The bride's bridesmaids wore white dresses, and the groom's groomsmen wore dark suits.

The wedding ceremony was officiated by the Rev. John Buote.

The bride and groom were married in the presence of many guests.

The wedding was a beautiful and memorable occasion.

HOUSE CONTINUES

servative questions about Canada's obligations to her Allies. Defence Minister Claxton bore the brunt of the questions as the House moved through another day of discussion of the $650,000,000 rearmament program presented by the Government.

Other developments: 1. Mr. Claxton said a large-scale amphibious assault on Canada is highly unlikely at this stage and his advisers do not think the time has come to bring the army's regular airborne brigade together for the one or two months training that would be needed to fit it to fight as a formation.

2. Mr. Claxton said raising of the special force will give the army, all told, roughly the equivalent of three-quarters of a division of 20,000 men in actual but separate fighting units. This was considered better than having a single division concentrated at one point.

3. Progressive Conservative and C. C. F. members continued their calls for a House committee on defence.

4. Maj.-Gen. G. R. Peakes V.C. (PC-Nanaimo) contended that the country has not a single land fighting formation ready to take the field at a moment's notice.

5. George Hees (PC-Toronto Broadview) stressed the need to have forces ready to fight at once and attacked the Government for planning to have another period of six to eight months to build up once war starts.

6. Marie Gillis (COP-Cape Breton South) criticized the Government for scrapping the merchant marine, dismembering the air force and disposing of war materials after the last conflict.

7. E. D. Fulton (PC-Kamloops) called for legislation to enable the Government to raise fighting forces without delay if the need arose. He did not mention conscription by name but urged an act that would distribute the manpower burden fairly.

John Diefenbaker (PC - Lake Centre) said the Government should be able to say if Canada's contribution under U. N. and the Atlantic Treaty is to be manpower, industrial expansion or development of resources.

Take 2 Commons Continues - The armed forces were being kept to a "minimum" and he wondered if this meant that agreement had been reached that Canada would contribute natural resources instead of manpower. If so, the general Federal-Provincial conference this fall should be asked to draft a plan for accelerated development of such resources as iron, oil, coal and steel.

Plan Prepared - Mr. Claxton said Canada's contribution will rest with Parliament and the Government. The Government was discussing with other countries how the threat of aggression can best be met.

There was a plan that could be put into effect in the event of an emergency. But there never would be any final plan in a changing world. There would have to be a great deal of improvisation. Arrangements would have to be worked out to meet the circumstances at the time the aggression occurred.

Mr. Howe stepped in to say that committees on national resources now are studying the likely requirements of various materials. The aim was to see that war production is sufficient to meet requirements.

Howard Green (PC - Vancouver-Quadra) wanted to know what Canada's position would be if Russia attacked Western Germany tonight.

Mr. Pearson said that if there was an attack on one member of the North Atlantic group, it would be considered as an attack on all members, including Canada.

He assumed that the Canadian Government would summon Parliament and it would be up to Parliament to decide whether the attack constituted an attack on Canada. When there was an attack on Canada it was customary for this country to fight back with both men and materials.

The question of transferring existing Canadian stocks of arms to Europe was under active consideration. This would leave Canada without equipment until it was replaced.

Gen. Peakes was right in saying that the regular airborne brigade had never trained together. It was not considered at this stage that it would operate together in an emergency but that would become desirable. It has a headquarters staff and a commander.

Training Not Waste - The reserve army's training was not waste. Its strength was being increased in every possible way. The numbers of men in camp went

UP THIS YEAR

The time it would take to mobilize war divisions would be lessened as reserve training improved and active force facilities and manpower increased.

Mr. Claxton was up and down many times answering questions. These were some of the things he said:

So far all radar construction here has been done by Canada but the United States might in time help build and man radar stations here.

The navy may commission a second cruiser. It has the Ontario at sea. The Uganda in reserve.

The army's manpower ceiling is being raised from 30,000 to 45,000. Including the special force. The airborne brigade group is being brought up to "predetermined strength." The air force is after an intake of 150 air crew every six weeks.

The original plans for the number of fighter interceptor squadrons and training for air crew both are being tripled. Six squadrons will be built up to full fighting strength.

The aircraft complements of transport squadrons were being increased and it was hoped to equip a new squadron with U.S. planes.

To have an army division in being would require, in all, about 30,000 men and cost possibly $60,000,000 a year. It was not necessary at this stage. A big amphibious landing in Canada was out but the chances of a diversionary raid by air had increased to the level of an "actual possibility."

But it was considered impossible for Russia to mount any attack on the continent that could hold any considerable portion of its soil for any considerable length of time.

War mobilization now could be "very much faster" than in the past for a variety of reasons. The airborne brigade was both training others and being trained. In war, if the threat of immediate attack on Canada should disappear "and be known not to exist to the same extent that had been feared, then of course it would be available at once for service abroad."

It was no stay-at-home force. It also would be available for overseas in war as other men were trained to take its place.

TO ISSUE MANUAL ON CIVIL DEFENCE

OTTAWA, Sept. 6 - (CP) - Gen. F. F. Worthington hopes next week to end some of the confusion that exists in civil defence planning by the distribution of the Provinces of an organizational manual, detailing how the country should organize itself to meet the threat of atomic or other kinds of war.

Broadly speaking, the Federal Civil Defence Co-ordinating Council in a review today, the organizational strategy is for the Federal Government to offer guidance and responsibility for co-ordinating and guiding the efforts of each of the municipalities within their boundaries.

Gen. Worthington made this clear in the light of conflicting views by various municipalities, some charging the Federal Government and others the Provincial Governments with responsibility for directing civil defence programs in the cities and towns of Canada.

Gen. Worthington said the general organizational policy was formulated at a Federal-Provincial civil defence conference held here Aug. 24.

"We will deal with the Provinces and the Provinces will have the responsibility of guiding the efforts of the municipalities," he said.

From other quarters it was learned that some of the Provinces have indicated they will proceed on these lines and plan to call conferences of municipalities to push Provincial planning.

Meanwhile, Federal authorities are pressing ahead with their own plans to make available to the public the latest information on how to cope with incendiary attack, radiation from atomic bombing and the reception of casualties and refugees.

Gen. Worthington said he plans establishment of a special school in atomic warfare, probably at Meaford, Ont., to be made available to all of Canada. It will have a series of courses for doctors and others, to set up a core of leadership on which local organizations can build.

compliment you for the fine spirit you are showing by your example in continuing to make the fair such an outstanding success."

His Honor was followed by Mr. J. Watson MacNaught, parliamentary assistant to the Minister of Fisheries, who after complimenting the officials on the success of the exhibition, said that "we are meeting in a time when world conditions are very bad." He expressed the hope that the United Nations would be able to achieve what the League of Nations had failed to do, to bring about permanent world peace.

Other prominent speakers who assisted in the official opening were Hon. C. C. Baker, Minister of Agriculture, Hon. W. E. Darby, Attorney General, and Mr. F. C. Ramsay, representative of the First District of Prince.

Holsteins Stars - In the cattle classes the Holstein were the stars of the show and the judge, Mr. Allison Probst of Freetown, was enthusiastic in his praise of their quality and the numbers shown. He said that the tops here would have been tops anywhere. He mentioned in particular the showing of the Alma Calf Club which he said was the finest lot of calves he had seen in a long time. The classes were all well filled and in one class 19 calves were shown.

Roy Woodside of Malpeque was the largest exhibitor and had the grand champion male and the grand champion female. Mr. Alan Clow of Freetown, showing for the first time, had the reserve grand champion female and James MacNeill of Kensington, another first time exhibitor, also had several firsts. Lester and Heber Profit of Alberton were also major prize winners.

Mr. John Lewis of Freetown judged the Ayrshires and said that the exhibits showed improved quality. Mr. E. B. Toussard of St. Louis showed only one cow which was the grand champion female and Mr. Robert L. Hardy of Alberton had the grand champion male. Another large prize winner and exhibitor was W. A. Moase and Sons of Kensington.

Mr. MacLean Horne of Rosebank won all the major honors in the Guerneyses which were judged by Mr. L. W. Roper of the Federal Department of Agriculture. Mr. Roper said that the quality of the exhibits was about the same as last year.

Mr. Roper also judged the Herefords. There were only two exhibitors in this class, Mr. F. C. Ramsay, M.L.A., of Montrose, who specializes in this breed, and Mr. Claude Wood of Coleman, a new exhibitor. He showed a couple of good individuals for a start but Mr. Ramsay was the major winner. Mr. Roper said that they have some nice young stuff coming on.

Mr. Morris Deacon, of the Provincial Department of Agriculture, judged the Jerseys and he believed the quality shown was up over last year. Important prize winners in this breed were Guy Harris, O'Leary, Davis Moase of Summerside, R.R., and Jesse Mathews of Alberton.

The judge of the Shorthorns, Mr. Stewart Wright of the Provincial Department of Agriculture, de-were not better trained for showing in the ring. He said there were not as many as last year and the classes were all small. He mentioned that there were some good individuals. Important winners were Alfred Griffin, Elm-dale, Loman MacLean, Arlington, and Russell Roger, and Son, Coleman.

Horse Exhibits Good - As usual the exhibits in the horse ring drew a large crowd and Mr. Cecil Stewart of Hampshire was the judge. Mr. John Donald, Alma, and E. B. Toussard of St. Louis were the main prize winners in the general purpose horses and Mr. F. C. Ramsay was top in the showing of draft horses. Only four horses were shown in the light draft class.

In general the quality of the exhibits in the handicraft and domestic science department were of a very high order.

The number and quality of swine and sheep were on the whole very excellent in the opin-

ION OF THE JUDGES AND FULLY UP to the standard of previous years. In the poultry class there was a definite decrease in the number of exhibitors as compared with last year.

In the swine section the following were first prize winners: Registered Yorkshire boar, farrowed prior to January, 1950 - John Wallace.

Registered Yorkshire boar farrowed in 1950 - L. and H. Profit. Yorkshire sow, pure bred, farrowed prior to January, 1949 - Hudson Pridham.

Sow farrowed in 1950 and over four months - Raymond Hardy. Pair of bacon hogs - Raymond Hardy.

Mr. Hudson Pridham, Mr. Ken Campbell and Joseph O'Rourke were the top winners in the sheep classes.

Poultry which was in the opinion of the judges good in quality but poorly filled in classes, numbered among its main winners Alder Pridham, Wesley Iman, Mrs. Leigh Weeks, Brendan Wallace and Ivan Bowness.
