Dairy Farmers In Battle With State Troopers

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Angry dairy farmers battled state troopers and drastically cut the flow of milk into metropolitan New York today in the week-old strike against the federal-state strike of 3.4 cents a quart they get for milk that retail as high as 18 cents.

The resumption of a 50-year fight over the spread in price between the producer and consumer saw the city's 7,000,000 residents getting only about half their normal supply—2,000,000 quarts instead of the usual 4,000,000, of which 1,000,000 ordinarily go into cream and ice cream.

At Hammond, before a crowd of 2,500, pickets at a milk plant fought state troopers on the outskirts of Syracuse. 30 farmers beat two troopers and two truckmen, dumped 600 quarts of milk on the ground and fled. On several Ulster County farms, strikers spoiled milk with kerosene, a sheriff reported. Altogether, more than 30 strikers were arrested.

In New York city, milkmen were ordered to concentrate deliveries on homes with children; grocery stores were short; and isolated sales of 11-cent grade B were reported at as high as 17 cents. Ordinarily, the retail dealers' profit is one or two cents a quart.

The main effort to settle the trouble was made in New York where Mayor LaGuardia met with representatives of the farmers and the city distributors, emphasized the public's interest in full milk service, and urged the disputants to temper their hostilities pending a conference in Syracuse Thursday, so there would not be a serious shortage. Before the conference, the strikers' delegation guaranteed that if necessary, a minimum supply would be allowed through to a municipal distributing agency.

The strike is being led by the Dairy Farmers Union, headed by Archie Wright, former Maritime Union organizer, who claims 15,000 members. Most of their milk goes to the smaller distributors of the metropolitan market.

A larger group of farmers is organized into the Dairyman's League Cooperative Association, supplying mainly Borden and Sheffields, the two biggest distributors who cover nearly all the remaining 50 per cent of the market.

Stress Need Of Social Reform At Conference

ANTIGONISH, N. S., Aug. 21.—Economic and political democracy is the ultimate purpose of the adult education and group action movement of St. Francis Xavier University in the Maritimes, A. B. MacDonald, associate director of the university's extension department, told delegates at the opening of the 17th annual rural and industrial conference today.

Explaining the Antigonus movement for those who considered it merely an adult education movement or a co-operative movement, Mr. MacDonald described it as proposing a complete program for social change. Adult education was the basis, and cooperation the technique. Towards ownership of homes, business, and essential processes leading to economic independence and an effective voice in national affairs.

The three-day conference, sponsored by the St. Francis Xavier extension department for a review of activities and a discussion of the future policy of the Antigonus movement, was opened under the chairmanship of Rev. D. J. MacDonald, president of the university.

Welcoming the delegates and visitors, Most Rev. James Morrison, Bishop of Antigonish and chancellor of the university, voiced his appreciation at the presence of many observers from distant parts of the United States and Canada. Their interest gave encouragement to the common people of the Maritime Provinces, who were seeking to solve their social and economic problems through group action. He laid emphasis on the value of the movement in giving the people a voice in their own affairs towards future social policy.

Rev. D. P. Roberts, Princeville, N. S., outlined the problems pressing on the common people today. "We live in the midst of plenty, inefficiency of the distributive system, and the evils due in a large part to lack of moral principle in the current economy. Poverty might be a virtue but when enforced on people an unjust economic system, it was not Christian. The people were urged to work to better their lot. The intention and program of the Antigonus movement was to build a new society in which Christian principles and true democracy would be operative.

Mr. MacDonald, in the next address, felt the need of social reform was evident enough to warrant the need of a social reform that would be effected.

"Whether we like it or not," he asserted, "there will be change in the world, and it is our duty to direct it through the sound, realistic thinking of the people."

SERIOUS FIRE AT S'SIDE IS AVERTED

Blaze Causes Damage To Three-Storey Structure - Yesterday Morning.

What might have been a far more serious fire occurred in Summerside yesterday morning when the old Station Building caught fire from an unknown cause. The alarm sounded about 11.30 A. M. when smoke was seen issuing from under the eaves and it looked as if the whole building was aflame from end to end. The firemen had great difficulty in getting at the interior as there was so much smoke. The firemen had to cut holds in the roof to get at the fire. It is not known where or how the fire originated but it was well under way when discovered. The firemen did great work with two streams of water playing on the building which is about 120 feet long. It was over an hour before the fire was under control. The building was built at the time of the P. E. I. Railway in 1874 and was the original station house and is a commodious dwelling. When the new station was built around 1927, Mr. W. J. Lidstone purchased the building and moved it to the back of his property south of the railway yards.

It is a three storey building with attic and had been recently repaired and the roof shingled. The ground floor now houses Hewitts Canning Factory and at the time of the fire the factory was working full time causing job-stairs. There was no one living upstairs but the night watchman who said he had no fire on.

Considerable damage was done to the roof excepting the side and the attic were practically burned out. Damage to the factory equipment is not yet known, but Mr. Hewitt said he expected to be in operation again today. Mr. Lidstone estimated the damage to the building at about $2,000 with only a small insurance. Mr. Hewitt had insurance on his machinery. It was fortunate that there was no wind as there are a number of old buildings in that section of town which would have caught had the wind been in the right direction.
