Boys' Club Asks Use Of WI Hall

ALBERTON — Routine town business was conducted by Alberton Town Council last night with Mayor Roy Leard presiding and all councillors present. Bills amounting to $1,000 were approved and ordered paid.

A delegation from Alberton Boys Club attended the meeting to discuss the possibility of the town taking over the Women's Institute hall, a suggestion raised some time previously by the WI executive. Renovations required to make the hall suitable for use by the boys club were discussed and the matter was left over for further information from the WI.

The need for a physical education instructor was also discussed and councillors Gordon and Weeks were appointed to meet with the regional high school principal and the legion sports chairman to see what could be done to have this position filled in some manner.

Rev. Gerald Steele was asked to be a member of the committee.

The problem of speeding was brought to the attention of the council and the policeman was asked to take any action necessary to curb speeders.

Clean-up week was set for May 10 to 17.

The police report listed one charge under the liquor control act, two under the criminal code and two theft cases.

Borden Area Dump Termed In Disgraceful Condition

BORDEN — A committee was appointed to look into the matter of the community dump here and try to find a solution to what was called a disgraceful condition. It was pointed out it is a community dump, not the town dump as some persons appear to think.

The dump action was taken at a regular monthly meeting of Borden town council. Mayor Gilbert Bell presided. Councillors present were Reg McAleer, Bernard Fleming, William McIvor and John McIsaac.

The town clerk was absent due to illness and Councillor acted in his place.

The police report was given by Councillor McAleer. Fines to the amount of $498.50 were collected. A balance of $203 was not collected to date. Expenses for the month amounted to $93.33. It was decided that a banquet be held shortly to honor the Borden Nationals hockey team for the good showing during the season.

City Council Showing Concern Over Fate Of Small Businesses

Concern over the fate of small business firms in the city sparked a debate at last night's city council meeting on the possibility of regulating store hours.

Coun. Arthur Wright said many small stores were in "serious difficulty" because of the long store hours set by some of the larger firms.

These firms, he said, could stay open 56 or more hours a week, while small businesses, which, because of their small staffs, remaining open only about 40 hours, were "not as competitive as they otherwise might be."

Councillor Wright moved a resolution asking that a committee be appointed to look into the matter with a view to regulating hours of business.

Coun. John Nicholson objected that it would be useless to set up a committee to regulate store hours "if we don't have the power to regulate them."

OPEN OR WIPE OUT

Councillors Frank Zakem and Arthur Gormley said small grocery stores could not be subjected to regulations, as they "must stay open nights or be wiped out."

Several councillors said they felt it was a matter for the board of trade to deal with. An amendment to the resolution was passed adjourning voting on the proposal to a later council meeting.

Coun. W. R. MacNeill, reporting for the finance committee, said all tax bills would be out within the next two weeks. He said this was in line with an effort to collect taxes as soon as possible, thereby reducing interest payments.

Councillor MacNeill reaffirmed a pledge to keep spending in line with the city budget. "If I have any control over it, I will not allow any overspending of the budget," he stated.

Councillor MacNeill also gave notice of motion of a change in the business tax bylaw.

Council endorsed a press statement made earlier by Mayor Walter Cox with regards to the possibility of locating a marine silo in Charlottetown.

STRONG SUPPORT

The mayor noted that he had received almost 100 per cent support from the public on his stand, and suggested that finding employment for another 200 or 300 persons in the city through industrial expansion such as this would mean "all the difference in the world" to the city's economic stability.

PROVINCE'S

and the province should have more control in their application.

Commenting on the 1965-66 budget which will see the province's liabilities increased by more than $7,000,000, the premier said over $5,000,000 of this increase is in the form of a new provincial government office building. "At present," he said, "there are eight separate units housing our public services. This is an expensive operation and confusing to people who come to discuss problems with the proper department."

VALUABLE ASSET

"When this building is constructed, it should be there for 100 years or more and there will be one centre which I believe will reduce costs of operation and be more satisfactory to our people and an improvement in services."

"When that item is taken out of our projections for the next year it does not leave a very large deficit after all."

Premier Shaw said he felt the government's "forward, progressive program of expansion is bringing about desirable economic results."

"During the past year, our population has increased; clearances through banks went up to an increase of $61,000,000 and there has been a large number of new jobs opened up for our people."

ROAD BLOCKS

Pointing out that there has been criticism of "our financial provision in the form of our guarantees, mortgages and loans to promote greater prosperity," the premier said "these assertions that are couched in suspicions, fears and disaster are most unfortunate and form road blocks in the way of successful development."

"In this form of assistance, we must include education and training as these are an important part of development. Employment today places a premium on education and vocational know how. Behind any financial agreements with the government are substantial assets that provide security and protection."

"Regional high schools are an example. The government offers substantial guarantees but the property in the whole regional high school district, worth millions, is security."

"The same principle applies in industrial expansion, large and small, and basic assets must be provided in the form of security."

Stating that there may be some disappointments and some failure, the premier said, however, "the over-all picture of progress is favorable and there is now ample evidence that our plans mean greater prosperity for our people."

"Under this policy a great advance has been made, and it is our intention to proceed with our industrial program as already defined. More population and increased revenues can help solve the problem of fiscal need and improved public services."

Town Street Light System Object Of Recent Survey

KENSINGTON — Coun. D.S. Dunning, chairman of the light committee, reported at a monthly meeting of council last night that a survey had been made of the town's street lighting system. The lights were found to be adequate but poorly spaced.

It was decided to ask Henry Scales of the power company supplying the lights, to look over the situation.

The council made regulations concerning the town dump.

Dr. C.A. Coady, examining physician, reported some injuries on the body but RCMP said they did not suspect foul play. An autopsy was performed yesterday morning and an inquest has been ordered into the death. No details as to the members of the coroner's jury were available last evening.

More Than 300 See Little Theatre Comedy

By ALAN C. HOLMAN
The Charlottetown Little Theatre Guild played Sean O'Casey's "Purple Dust" to an audience of well over 300 at the Confederation Theatre last night.

"Purple Dust" is a comedy and a very difficult comedy. A lot of it is nonsense, Irish nonsense, which is difficult to follow, even when reading the play.

The Irish brogue in which many of the speeches are given compounds this difficulty. Paul Whelan, playing Jack O'Killigan, was the only one in last night's performance to really master the accent in any convincing way. Others tended to over do it or make only half-hearted attempts at the accent.

The play dealt with two Englishmen who come to Ireland with their mistresses to restore an old manor and to attempt to restore the life as it was lived when the manor was built back in the Tudor days.

The Irish workmen who are working on the restoration can see no sense in trying to revive a time that is dead and gone, they see no point in it and feel that the English would be better off building something new.

It is a story of the old versus the new and the Irish, hie new, with their desire to live life as it is, rather than recall past glories win out in the end.

GOOD IN ROLE
Dick Turpin played the part of Cypri Postes, the monied Englishman with his heart set on living life in the grand style that it used to be. Mr. Turpin was very good in this role, his natural English accent was not forced and he was easily understood by the audience, and his stage presence and movements, except for a little more thrashing around than seemed necessary at times, were quite convincing.

O'Casey has some very good lines in the play and though the audience missed some of them because the speech was a little too hurried no one had any difficulty in having a good laugh.

"Purple Dust" by the Little Theatre Guild had a cast of 12 directed by Mrs. Nellie Hughes.
