Outstanding Career Of Lt. Governor Designate

The W.J.P. MacMillan, O.B.E., K.S.G., whose appointment to succeed the late T.W.L. Crosse as Lieutenant-Governor of Prince Edward Island was announced yesterday by Prime Minister Diefenbaker, has had a remarkable career in his native Province. A study of his accomplishments indicates that he has been a leader in many fields, always with the purpose of promoting public interests in health, welfare, education and other causes to which his zeal and ability have been devoted.

Born at Clermont, P.E.I., on March 24, 1881, Dr. MacMillan was an honor student at Prince of Wales College where he earned his first class teachers' license. Realizing the difficulties of the profession and the importance of education, he became president of the Prince Edward Island Teachers Association and in 1903 at the age of 23, he organized the first Provincial Teachers Union.

At McGill University he studied medicine and won the coveted Holmes Gold Medal awarded to the student of the graduating class who has been a class leader during the course. Later in life McGill conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

After practising in Kinkora for two years Dr. MacMillan moved to Charlottetown where he has been a leader in many fields of public service as well as in his own profession.

MEDICAL CAREER

He has served the Charlottetown Hospital for forty - seven years and has been chairman of the board for a long period. He was president of the Prince Edward Island Medical Association in 1914, a member of the Medical Council of the Province for 40 years, an executive member of the Canadian Medical Association for 22 years.

Dr. MacMillan was provincial Health Officer for eight years, City Health Officer for 15, provincial representative on the Canadian Medical Council for five years, and acting superintendent of the Falconwood Hospital for several years. He also served on the Charlottetown School Board for thirty-five years.

As Health Officer he recalls that there were 75 cases of smallpox in one day in 1917 and adds that no case of this once dread disease has been seen in the Province for more than 30 years.

Dr. MacMillan was elected a member of the Board of Governors of the American College of Surgeons in 1945 after having been a fellow of the American College of Surgeons for more than twenty years. He is also a fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons for Canada and a Fellow of the International College of Surgeons which was established in 1935.

HIGHLY HONOURED

For outstanding work on the home front during the war, Dr. MacMillan was awarded the Order of the British Empire.

For outstanding service to his church and for social work in general, he was honored by his Holiness Pope Pius XII who in 1948 created him a Knight Commander of St. Gregory the Great.

But for all of his other honors it is in the realm of public life that he is best known.

His career in politics — he says he entered politics to get a grant for the Red Cross Society — was climaxed by his being made Premier of the Province in 1933 after having been acting Premier since 1932.

With such a distinguished record in his own profession it was not surprising that he was the province's first Minister of Health and Education. He served in that capacity under Premier J. D. Stewart.

POLITICAL CAREER

Dr. MacMillan's political career began in 1923 when he became a member for Charlottetown and Royalty and a non-portfolio member of the Stewart government. In 1927 the government fell but he was one of the Four Conservatives who were elected. In 1931 the Stewart Government again came into being following victory at the polls and it was then that Dr. MacMillan took the portfolios of health and education. When Premier Stewart became ill in 1932, Dr. MacMillan served as acting premier and he succeeded to the Premiership on Mr. Stewart's death in 1933.

The Lea-Campbell government held office from 1935-39 without a single Opposition member, but in 1939 Dr. MacMillan was again elected as a member for Fifth Queens and held the seat continuously until 1955. He was Leader of the Opposition until 1950.

A terrific worker, Dr. MacMillan often shouldered tremendous burdens. He was Premier, President of the Council, Provincial Secretary, Provincial Treasurer, Minister of Education and Minister of Health at the same time.

An ardent Conservative in politics and an outspoken champion of his party on many a platform and in many a debate, he gave strong and unqualified support later to the Public Health Grants, a measure introduced by a Liberal administration at Ottawa and administered in this province by another Liberal administration.

His own comment on this matter at one time was, "I was condemned by my own party and I told them I would only be a hypocrite to oppose in the Legislature the very many expenditures I had been recommending as a member of the Provincial Advisory Committee.

PRESTIGE ACKNOWLEDGED

It was a tribute to him that when the then Liberal government of this Province set up the committee to advise them on the health grants, they chose Dr. MacMillan as a member because of his outstanding ability and experience in medicine and social welfare, although he was a political opponent.

His strong support of the Health Grants "probably cost me my election in 1955," Dr. MacMillan observed shortly afterwards. "But," he emphasized, "I would do it all over again to see the improvement in hospitals, nurses' homes and general public health. I fought for those great advances all my life and I have no regrets."

His years as Premier were among the most difficult in the Provinces' history. They were in the midst of the great depression and the difficulties were increased immeasurably by two disastrous fires which destroyed the Prince of Wales College and a large portion of Falconwood Hospital within a period of two months.

He gave unstintingly of his talent and his tremendous energy to the planning for the rebuilding of both institutions. The Col-

THOUGHTS FOR OUR TIME

BY HIS EMINENCE CARDINAL McGUIGAN

TRUTH, WISDOM

On Monday of this week we here in the city recalled, as did citizens of many other cities and countries, the end of the first Great War. There were the memorial services; there was the time-honored moment of silence to honor the men who died in a war to end all wars.

What does one think about during that solemn moment? Does one recall that since that first Armistice Day, other wars have been begun and terminated, many other countless men and women and even children have been sacrificed?

Perhaps one adverts to that expression often used in the press, the "cold war," and shudders at the possibility of a change in the adjective used. Or perhaps one wonders, now that the possibility of space satellites and the strong probability of space travel has been established, whether these technical advances will divert human energies to a conquest of space or will invest human energies with a destructive power hitherto unknown in a warfare of cosmic proportions.

Whatever the future holds is wrapped in obscurity; thank God there is peace now, tenuous though it may seem. In this period of grace, as one might call it, as individuals we can endeavour to make the foundations of this peace more solid by our prayers and sacrifices; for we know that these are the means whereby we can influence the world for good.

A WARNING

However, there is a danger to be avoided in thinking of peace in terms that are not the fruit of Christian principles but of facile generalizations or even personal prejudice.

Though there is peace on the international level, there is a war constantly being waged in which each and every one of us is concerned — the war of Christians against evil. From this battle there can be no retreat, no respite, and an armistice is out of the question. This struggle, can only be terminated by death; only in death will the final verdict of victory or defeat be rendered to each combatant.

Though physical warfare has seen an advance in the type of weapons used, in this spiritual struggle the weapons are ever the same, so that one feels more confident in proposing measures that will not only preserve peace of mind, despite the constant struggle, but will also insure the successful outcome of that struggle.

It is this note of constant vigilance — "Watch and Pray" — of constant warfare— "For your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, goes about seeking someone to devour" — that demonstrates the need for acquiring and developing the moral virtues. For these virtues provide a prompt response, a sure response, an easy response to the attacks of the world, the flesh and the devil. Virtues not only provide a bulwark against sin, but initiate positive action for good.

HUMILITY IS TRUTH

Now of all the moral virtues the most fundamental is humility. If one considers this virtue merely as the opposite of pride, one misses its positive aspects, for humility is truth. It acknowledges first of all man's dependence on God, a dependence that extends to every detail of life.

Humility allows a man to recognize the source of his gifts and talents, and, more than that, recognizes the ultimate end to be served by them. Humility accepts personal limitations thus freeing the one possessing it from the shock and undue indignation at its own or another's faults.

Moreover, it is the humble man who can accept truth even at the cost of personal inclination or long-cherished prejudice. Rather than stifling his initiative, humility increases it by removing the conceited notion that the world or anyone owes him something because he is who he is. For who is he but a poor sinful and erring human who might well adopt the motto "we are unprofitable servants, we have done what we ought? Yet it allows him graciously and gratefully to accept help when he has need.

to sum up what has been said, if the world would maintain and strengthen peace, humility must become a national virtue. If the individual would be at peace with himself and others, he must cultivate humility. For "Where humility is, there also is wisdom."

FIRST PUBLIC TELEVISION

World's first public television service opened in Britain on Nov. 2, 1936.

"GET US INTO IT!"

An English artist was sketching in a slum district in London. He was at work at an easel, when a group of children appeared in front of him and watched every stroke of his pencil. Finally one of the children said, "Mister please get us into it."

People in need of any sort, in fact, all people who hear the Gospel, say in effect. "Get us into it" This is exactly the purpose of the Bible Society: to lead all men into a saving knowledge of Jesus Christ through the power of God's Word.

The Bible or portions has been translated and distributed in more than 1100 tongues, but there are still hundreds to be transferred to the printed page. We can help with our contributions through the various P.E.I. Branches. We also help when we make purchases at the Bible House in Charlottetown, where at this time will be found hundreds of appropriate Christmas gift items as well as Christmas music, program material and greeting cards. Why not call and see the colorful and fascinating display?
