Tomorrow's Promise

By Temple Bailey

Above her on the mantel shelf her silver kitten, Jerry, played with the crystal pendants of the candelabra until they tinkled like little bells. Now and then Anne would say, "Stop it, Jerry," and he would stop for a moment and flatten himself on the shelf and look down at her with his coal eyes. Then presently the tinkling would begin again and there would seem to be two silver cats at the wide mirror reflected Jerry at his play.

Then all at once in the mirror came the dark head of Garry. It was such a good looking head. Anne had to admit that. Smooth black hair, a bronze skin, a thin line of black mustache above the lip. So far Garry's looks did not differ greatly from those of many of the young men of Anne's own particular group. It was his eyes that set him apart from the others. Gray eyes, long-lashed, with an intent look that seemed to attract even while it repelled. Vicky had said of Garry's eyes, "They are as changeable as his nature."

Garry stood looking down at her. "You needn't think you can run away from me forever. I won't have it." "I don't want to run. We're always been good friends, Garry." "Don't be bromidic." He walked away, saying over his shoulder, "I'll see you tomorrow."

She called after him, but he paid no attention, and presently David came and dropped down beside her. "Going to ride with us in the morning?" "Yes." "Good. And now tell me what you've been doing to Garry?" "Nothing."

"Except to let him fall in love with you?" "I didn't let him." "Well, he's done it. And now you've got to watch your step, or you'll be marrying him."

"Because I don't want you to marry anybody. I want you just to keep on being yourself."

of drawers. The modern note was struck in shimmering draperies of pale green and pink, and in Anne's silver crystal bottles and other belongings. She bathed, brushed her shining hair, and wrapped in a warm robe went to Vicky's room, with Jerry stalking after her like a miniature tiger. A fire burned on Vicky's hearth and Vicky still dressed and waiting, said, "I thought you'd never come."

Freetown Notes

Miss Rema Crossman left on Monday morning for Moncton, N. B. where she will visit with friends for the winter months.

Mrs. Douglas Jardine of Charlottetown, is visiting in Freetown at the home of her son Mr. Andrew Jardine and Mrs. Jardine.

The friends of LAC. Norman Clow regret to learn that he is a patient in hospital in Halifax, N. S. All wish him a speedy and complete recovery.

Mr. Albert Stetson left recently on a visit to Amherst, N.S., and Toronto, Ontario. While in Toronto he will attend the Canadian National Exhibition. Mr. Stetson expects to be absent for three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Reeves, Mrs. John Heffel, Dallas and Arlene Reeves returned on Friday from Saint John, N.B., where they had spent an enjoyable week visiting with relatives there.

Miss Joan Scales and Mr. David Scales of Charlottetown spent the Remembrance Day holiday in Freetown, guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Scales.

A large crowd attended the auction sale of Mr. James Murphy at Kelvin on Thursday, Nov. 13. Bidding was brisk and the many articles offered found ready sale.

Mr. Samuel Drummond of South Freetown spent a day recently in Springfield visiting with his sister, Mrs. Angus Mathieson and Mr. Mathieson.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Burns, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Rogers and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bernard returned to their homes on Thursday after an enjoyable motor trip to points of interest in the Maritimes including the Winter Fair at Amherst, N.S.

There was a large attendance at South Freetown School on Monday evening when pictures by the National Film Board were shown. These were very much enjoyed by all present. A sale of lunches brought in a neat sum of money which is to be used in aid of school improvements.

The community of Freetown was shocked and saddened on November 15th when it was learned of the death of Mr. Frank Deacon after only a few hours illness. Seemingly to be in his usual health he attended a sale in Kelvin that afternoon. While there he was taken suddenly ill. Dr. Auld of Kensington was sent for and he had him transferred by ambulance to Prince County Hospital where he passed away that same evening.

Mr. Deacon is survived by his wife, formerly Lou Hooper of Bebedeque, two sons, Maurice Deacon of the Department of Agriculture, Charlottetown, and Dr. Allison Deacon of Shediac, N.B., also two daughters, Mrs. John Hickox of Springfield and Mrs. George Lewis, Freetown. Also surviving are two brothers, George in Freetown and Fred in Nelson, B. C.

The following officers were elected: President — Mrs. Seymour Hughes, Vice-President — Mrs. Theresa Corrigan, Secretary — Mrs. Chester Hughes, Auditors — Mrs. Henry McGuirk and Mrs. George Mitchell.

The first monthly meeting was held on November 13 at the home of Miss Theresa Corrigan, with ten members and one visitor present. The President occupied the chair, the meeting was opened with prayer, roll call was answered by members paying their fees.

Various matters were discussed, it was decided to hold whist parties at the homes of the members to raise funds.

Mrs. Henry McGuirk was appointed to take charge of ordering cod liver oil capsules for the children. Mrs. Clarence Mitchell and Miss Mary McGuirk were appointed to select a programme for the next meeting.

Mrs. Henry McGuirk kindly invited the members to her home for the December meeting, roll call to be answered by exchange of Christmas gifts, the meeting was then brought to a close and a dainty lunch was served by the hostess assisted by her two sisters Mrs. Henry Hughes and Mrs. Peter Kelly.

REGISTERED TRADE-MARK BRAND

Put Grape-Nuts on your shopping list. It costs so little — goes so far. A serving is just two tablespoons — costing less than a cent.

A Product of General Foods

2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 eggs, well beaten
3/4 cup orange juice
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
2 tablespoons melted butter or other shortening
1 cup Grape-Nuts

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, sugar, and salt, and sift again. Combine eggs, orange juice and rind, and shortening. Add to flour, beating only enough to dampen all flour. Add Grape-Nuts. Bake in hot, greased muffin pans in hot oven (425° F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Makes 12 muffins.
