

HAPPENINGS

Members and guests of the Belvedere Golf and Winter Club will attend a lobster supper and dance at the new clubhouse tonight, June 8.

Mrs. B. Earle MacDonaid, Charlottetown, president of the provincial chapter of the IODE, returned Wednesday night from attending the meeting of the national chapter in Victoria, B.C. Following the meeting she visited with her sisters and brother in Vancouver, where she met two sisters in Winnipeg.

Graduates of the Prince County Hospital School of Nursing were guests at a dinner Wednesday evening at a dinner at the Canadian Legion, Summerside, sponsored by the Prince County Association of the Registered Nurses Association of P.E.I.

One of Charlottetown's many bridge clubs held its closing session and enjoyed a chicken dinner at Shore Acres, Cornwall, this week. Nine members and a guest were in attendance. Mrs. T.J. Ling was winner of the first prize, and Mrs. F. Bonness was second prize winner. Other club members are Mrs. G. M. Holden, Mrs. J.J. Higgins, Mrs. Wood, Mrs. P.J. Keefe, M. S. Jack Saint and Mrs. A. n. d. MacLean. Three tables were in play.

Members of the P.E.I. Art Society met on their workshop night this week to mount most of the 210 posters for their monthly international poster show which will open June 20 at Montserrat.

MARY HAWORTH

Woman Forlornly Feeds On Memory Of Past Pass

Dear Mary Haworth: I am hoping you can help me find peace of mind about a situation that has troubled me for some time.

I am a wife and mother, generally level-headed, able to enjoy most everything.

A few years ago a man, an old and trusted family friend, showed me how to get along in an improper relationship. I thought at first he might be a great kidder. But then I gathered from people who knew him better that possibly he was serious.

I spent months trying to convince my husband that this supposed friend had made a pass at me, but he simply wouldn't believe it. Instead he insisted on continuing to be friendly with the man.

I then decided to consult a family relations counsellor. My husband warned me not to make ridiculous charges that can't be proved. He said I'd make a fool of myself.

Well, we agreed never to a counsellor and both talked to a counsellor and agreed never to mention the subject again.

Now, after all this time, I feel unprotected and annoyed. Have I made a wrong decision some-where?

Whereupon she replied to the apocryphal story goes: "But, Reverend, I like to think back upon that time."

The deep implication of the fact seems to be that the poor woman's life was pathetically lacking in close companionship.

Thus, during the many years she was harking back regretfully to the memory in the absence of a major departure from propriety, she was actually feeding on the memory in the absence of personal relationships in the here-and-now.

I have an idea that something of the sort accounts for your inordinate emphasis on the old family friend's philanthropic play for you (if such it was) some years ago.

The Grade A husband's disposition to ease away from the subject probably means that he trusts his wife to handle the situation and also that he realizes that men do make passes, often with an specific intention, and certainly none that last beyond the immediate moment.

If it were you, I'd forget the whole thing. Or, if that seems impossible, go over the subject with a good psychoanalyst.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Guardian.

Whereupon she replied to the apocryphal story goes: "But, Reverend, I like to think back upon that time."

The deep implication of the fact seems to be that the poor woman's life was pathetically lacking in close companionship.

Thus, during the many years she was harking back regretfully to the memory in the absence of a major departure from propriety, she was actually feeding on the memory in the absence of personal relationships in the here-and-now.

I have an idea that something of the sort accounts for your inordinate emphasis on the old family friend's philanthropic play for you (if such it was) some years ago.

The Grade A husband's disposition to ease away from the subject probably means that he trusts his wife to handle the situation and also that he realizes that men do make passes, often with an specific intention, and certainly none that last beyond the immediate moment.

If it were you, I'd forget the whole thing. Or, if that seems impossible, go over the subject with a good psychoanalyst.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Guardian.

BARBARA DUFFY ALLAN PEDDIE ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Duffy, Charlottetown, P.E.I., announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Ann, to Allan Wesley Peddie, Toronto, Ont., son of Mrs. Elizabeth and the late J. Wesley Peddie, Cornwall, Ont. The marriage will take place at the Church of the Most Holy Redeemer, July 27, 1963.

ELLEN'S DIARY

June, The Beloved Month Walks In Moonmist Shoe

June, beloved month, walks in shoes of moon-mist along foot-prints paths. Along dewy trails for feet so shod, we fancy, are immune to the damp! Up fern-leaf paths, we tread, checked light and dark, as are shady summer-trails where sunlight steals through the leaves.

A lovely lady, June—is-lavish with her gifts. Now she dresses a young miss in a fairy-gown of white, veils lightly her bonny face, as she walks a Church aisle to meet the Prince-Charm of a mingling of her dreams.

Finally, her benevolent spiritual adviser instructed her to consider the subject closed. In effect he said that by virtue of contrite confession, absolution and reform of life the ancient transgression had been cancelled out.

Weddings, births, anniversaries—these happy events the June-time gives. And so, we remember in a somber note, sad things, a moment that sorrowful parting of the ways that is occasioned by death.

This morning in our community it was a member of a class we knew in the little school down the River Road, who entered other men do make passes at his ladylike view from time to time.

The Grade A husband's disposition to ease away from the subject probably means that he trusts his wife to handle the situation and also that he realizes that men do make passes, often with an specific intention, and certainly none that last beyond the immediate moment.

If it were you, I'd forget the whole thing. Or, if that seems impossible, go over the subject with a good psychoanalyst.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Guardian.

Whereupon she replied to the apocryphal story goes: "But, Reverend, I like to think back upon that time."

The deep implication of the fact seems to be that the poor woman's life was pathetically lacking in close companionship.

Thus, during the many years she was harking back regretfully to the memory in the absence of a major departure from propriety, she was actually feeding on the memory in the absence of personal relationships in the here-and-now.

I have an idea that something of the sort accounts for your inordinate emphasis on the old family friend's philanthropic play for you (if such it was) some years ago.

The Grade A husband's disposition to ease away from the subject probably means that he trusts his wife to handle the situation and also that he realizes that men do make passes, often with an specific intention, and certainly none that last beyond the immediate moment.

If it were you, I'd forget the whole thing. Or, if that seems impossible, go over the subject with a good psychoanalyst.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Guardian.

Whereupon she replied to the apocryphal story goes: "But, Reverend, I like to think back upon that time."

The deep implication of the fact seems to be that the poor woman's life was pathetically lacking in close companionship.

Thus, during the many years she was harking back regretfully to the memory in the absence of a major departure from propriety, she was actually feeding on the memory in the absence of personal relationships in the here-and-now.

I have an idea that something of the sort accounts for your inordinate emphasis on the old family friend's philanthropic play for you (if such it was) some years ago.

The Grade A husband's disposition to ease away from the subject probably means that he trusts his wife to handle the situation and also that he realizes that men do make passes, often with an specific intention, and certainly none that last beyond the immediate moment.

If it were you, I'd forget the whole thing. Or, if that seems impossible, go over the subject with a good psychoanalyst.

Native Of Cuba Addresses CWL

The regular meeting of the Alberton chapter of the CWL was held in the Sacred Heart Church hall with 19 members in attendance. The meeting opened with prayer by the chaplain Rev. G. Steele. The president, Mrs. Mina Dunn occupied the chair.

Following the regular business of the meeting plans were made for a parochial supper to be held in the Robekah hall this evening, June 10.

Following the completion of the business session of the meeting Father Steele introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Andras Aranda, a native of Artemisa, Cuba, who is currently a member of a group of students who are spending some time in this locality. Mr. Aranda, a member of the Christian Youth Movement, left Cuba three years ago for Miami, Florida, and has recently completed a leadership course at St. Xavier University, Antigonish, N.S.

During an interesting address he explained the conditions and problems of the Cuban people under the communist dictatorship of Castro and how the Christian Youth movement is organized and working from inside the country. He encouraged the ladies to become much interested in political and social affairs of the community in order to preserve their true democracy.

He also said this involvement should know no religious or racial barriers and stressed that the Christian principles of charity and social justice are necessary for the reconstruction of a democratic Cuba.

The speaker mentioned the complacency which often exists in democratic countries towards the dangers of Communism where the feeling often exists "it cannot happen here."

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Aranda by the president. Lunch was served by the committee in charge.

And rainbows spanned the gloom. Not far away we know— They're only gone, we know, into the next room.

Years wear away. Days, dark, with heavy mist now deepening into rain. Close down upon us, and we view with pain

The spectral shadows loom— "mourning gleam! And lo, We too lift latch and go into the next room.

Until Monday — Diary — Good-night....

"Stive to be one of those someone has advised "who walk the earth with the ever-present consciousness — all mornings, mid-days, star-times—that the unknown, which men call Heaven is "Close beside the visible scene of things."

"Where bid they all?— Dear friends of yesterday, last year, and long ago Who walked with us when life was all aglow.

Whereupon she replied to the apocryphal story goes: "But, Reverend, I like to think back upon that time."

The deep implication of the fact seems to be that the poor woman's life was pathetically lacking in close companionship.

Thus, during the many years she was harking back regretfully to the memory in the absence of a major departure from propriety, she was actually feeding on the memory in the absence of personal relationships in the here-and-now.

I have an idea that something of the sort accounts for your inordinate emphasis on the old family friend's philanthropic play for you (if such it was) some years ago.

The Grade A husband's disposition to ease away from the subject probably means that he trusts his wife to handle the situation and also that he realizes that men do make passes, often with an specific intention, and certainly none that last beyond the immediate moment.

If it were you, I'd forget the whole thing. Or, if that seems impossible, go over the subject with a good psychoanalyst.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Guardian.

Whereupon she replied to the apocryphal story goes: "But, Reverend, I like to think back upon that time."

The deep implication of the fact seems to be that the poor woman's life was pathetically lacking in close companionship.

Thus, during the many years she was harking back regretfully to the memory in the absence of a major departure from propriety, she was actually feeding on the memory in the absence of personal relationships in the here-and-now.

I have an idea that something of the sort accounts for your inordinate emphasis on the old family friend's philanthropic play for you (if such it was) some years ago.

The Grade A husband's disposition to ease away from the subject probably means that he trusts his wife to handle the situation and also that he realizes that men do make passes, often with an specific intention, and certainly none that last beyond the immediate moment.

If it were you, I'd forget the whole thing. Or, if that seems impossible, go over the subject with a good psychoanalyst.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Guardian.

Whereupon she replied to the apocryphal story goes: "But, Reverend, I like to think back upon that time."

The deep implication of the fact seems to be that the poor woman's life was pathetically lacking in close companionship.

Thus, during the many years she was harking back regretfully to the memory in the absence of a major departure from propriety, she was actually feeding on the memory in the absence of personal relationships in the here-and-now.

I have an idea that something of the sort accounts for your inordinate emphasis on the old family friend's philanthropic play for you (if such it was) some years ago.

PATRICIA SHAW ALAN SCALES ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Mrs. J. Harold Shaw of Charlottetown, announces the engagement of her daughter, Patricia Kathleen, to Alan Scales, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. n. d. Ken Scales, of St. John's, Nfld. The marriage will take place Saturday, July 6, 1963 at the Kirk of St. James, Charlottetown.

HOUSEHOLD HINT

To keep brown sugar from getting hard, first see that the sugar is soft when you buy it. Then take it from the package and store it in a covered jar.

A piece of heavy black tape sewed just inside the lower edge of men's trousers will prevent their fraying.

Small tears or cigarette burns in clothing can often be mended with adhesive tape pressed on the back of the hole with a warm iron after material is pulled.

HOLD STAR THEORY Some scientists believe that the Star of Bethlehem may have been a supernova—a star that explodes up to 150,000 times its former brightness.

H. BENNETT GARR Insurance Counselling Dist. Supt. Sun Life of Canada Phone 4-8317 - 4-5453 Charlottetown, P.E.I.

MEDICAL PHARMACY here to serve you ANY hour of the day or night CALL 4-6623 for 24 hour service

MEDICAL PHARMACY Corner of Pownall and Richmond St., Charlottetown

NEW FRUHAUF USED

Trailers • Tankers • Platforms • Reefers • Low Beds • Truck Bodies IMMEDIATE DELIVERY FROM STOCK SEABOARD DISTRIBUTORS LTD

240 Bedford St. Moncton Phone 382-9556 1752 Dunbrave Drive, Halifax Phone 423-6647

MR. AND MRS. ROY LAROCHELLE White And Lavender Keynote Shades For June Wedding

St. Mary's Church, Prince Edward Island, was the scene of a lovely wedding on June 1, 1963 when Grace Antoinette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. St. Clair Paquet, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Roy John Larochelle of London, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence LaRoche, Blenheim, Ont.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Right Reverend Monsignor J.A. Murphy, who also celebrated the nuptial Mass. The altar was tastefully decorated with bouquets of spring flowers and baskets of breads and nutmeg mums adorned the sanctuary. The guests were and invited by white satin and lavender roses.

To the strains of the wedding march played by Sister St. Felix, C.N.D., the bride entered the church on the arm of her father by whom she was given in marriage. She was radiant in a gown of a shalloon organza tulle with a finely controlled skirt. It had a yellow sash neckline and long lily pond sleeves. Tiny embroidered eric gupure lace appliques accented the bodice, with sprays of came on the hip-line.

Back interest featured a fan-shaped train flowing from a large hoop effect. A pearl and crystal headpiece bore the finer tip up veil in place and she matched a cascade of American Beauty roses. Her only ornament was a diamond pendant, the gift of the groom.

During the ceremony and the signing of the register, Miss Mary Molinis, R.N., organist, rendered appropriate hymns. She was accompanied on the organ by Sister St. Felix.

A reception for 70 guests was held in St. Mary's Hall. The tables were decorated with yellow daffodils, the head table being centered with a three tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom under an arch of pink rosebuds and white bells. The parents of the bride and the groom received with the bride party. Mrs. E.C. Richardson, Detroit, Mich. Mrs. Rena Boylan circulated the guest book.

Eric MacEwen performed the duties of bestman and officiated at the champagne toast. The toast was fittingly responded to by the groom. Congratulatory remarks were made by Rev. J.J. Dumphy, Melvin McQuaid, Jim MacLean and Fred McDonald.

Numerous telegrams read by Mr. MacEwen brought congratulations and good wishes from friends and relatives who were unable to be present.

While the bride and groom cut and served the wedding cake and the bride and groom cut and served the wedding cake and the bride and groom cut and served the wedding cake.

The mother of the bride wore a natural linen three piece suit with white accessories and a pink stole, with a corsage of yellow roses.

Following the honeymoon trip to the New England States the couple will travel in London, Ont. where the groom is employed as travelling freight agent for the C.P.R.

For travelling the bride wore a natural linen three piece suit with white accessories and a pink stole, with a corsage of yellow roses.

The mother of the bride wore a natural linen three piece suit with white accessories and a pink stole, with a corsage of yellow roses.

Following the honeymoon trip to the New England States the couple will travel in London, Ont. where the groom is employed as travelling freight agent for the C.P.R.

For travelling the bride wore a natural linen three piece suit with white accessories and a pink stole, with a corsage of yellow roses.

The mother of the bride wore a natural linen three piece suit with white accessories and a pink stole, with a corsage of yellow roses.

Following the honeymoon trip to the New England States the couple will travel in London, Ont. where the groom is employed as travelling freight agent for the C.P.R.

For travelling the bride wore a natural linen three piece suit with white accessories and a pink stole, with a corsage of yellow roses.

The mother of the bride wore a natural linen three piece suit with white accessories and a pink stole, with a corsage of yellow roses.

Following the honeymoon trip to the New England States the couple will travel in London, Ont. where the groom is employed as travelling freight agent for the C.P.R.

MARY HAWORTH

Woman Forlornly Feeds On Memory Of Past Pass

Dear Mary Haworth: I am hoping you can help me find peace of mind about a situation that has troubled me for some time.

I am a wife and mother, generally level-headed, able to enjoy most everything.

A few years ago a man, an old and trusted family friend, showed me how to get along in an improper relationship. I thought at first he might be a great kidder. But then I gathered from people who knew him better that possibly he was serious.

I spent months trying to convince my husband that this supposed friend had made a pass at me, but he simply wouldn't believe it. Instead he insisted on continuing to be friendly with the man.

I then decided to consult a family relations counsellor. My husband warned me not to make ridiculous charges that can't be proved. He said I'd make a fool of myself.

Well, we agreed never to a counsellor and both talked to a counsellor and agreed never to mention the subject again.

Now, after all this time, I feel unprotected and annoyed. Have I made a wrong decision some-where?

Whereupon she replied to the apocryphal story goes: "But, Reverend, I like to think back upon that time."

The deep implication of the fact seems to be that the poor woman's life was pathetically lacking in close companionship.

Thus, during the many years she was harking back regretfully to the memory in the absence of a major departure from propriety, she was actually feeding on the memory in the absence of personal relationships in the here-and-now.

I have an idea that something of the sort accounts for your inordinate emphasis on the old family friend's philanthropic play for you (if such it was) some years ago.

The Grade A husband's disposition to ease away from the subject probably means that he trusts his wife to handle the situation and also that he realizes that men do make passes, often with an specific intention, and certainly none that last beyond the immediate moment.

If it were you, I'd forget the whole thing. Or, if that seems impossible, go over the subject with a good psychoanalyst.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Guardian.

Whereupon she replied to the apocryphal story goes: "But, Reverend, I like to think back upon that time."

The deep implication of the fact seems to be that the poor woman's life was pathetically lacking in close companionship.

Thus, during the many years she was harking back regretfully to the memory in the absence of a major departure from propriety, she was actually feeding on the memory in the absence of personal relationships in the here-and-now.

I have an idea that something of the sort accounts for your inordinate emphasis on the old family friend's philanthropic play for you (if such it was) some years ago.

The Grade A husband's disposition to ease away from the subject probably means that he trusts his wife to handle the situation and also that he realizes that men do make passes, often with an specific intention, and certainly none that last beyond the immediate moment.

If it were you, I'd forget the whole thing. Or, if that seems impossible, go over the subject with a good psychoanalyst.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Guardian.

Whereupon she replied to the apocryphal story goes: "But, Reverend, I like to think back upon that time."

MARY HAWORTH

Woman Forlornly Feeds On Memory Of Past Pass

Dear Mary Haworth: I am hoping you can help me find peace of mind about a situation that has troubled me for some time.

I am a wife and mother, generally level-headed, able to enjoy most everything.

A few years ago a man, an old and trusted family friend, showed me how to get along in an improper relationship. I thought at first he might be a great kidder. But then I gathered from people who knew him better that possibly he was serious.

I spent months trying to convince my husband that this supposed friend had made a pass at me, but he simply wouldn't believe it. Instead he insisted on continuing to be friendly with the man.

I then decided to consult a family relations counsellor. My husband warned me not to make ridiculous charges that can't be proved. He said I'd make a fool of myself.

Well, we agreed never to a counsellor and both talked to a counsellor and agreed never to mention the subject again.

Now, after all this time, I feel unprotected and annoyed. Have I made a wrong decision some-where?

Whereupon she replied to the apocryphal story goes: "But, Reverend, I like to think back upon that time."

The deep implication of the fact seems to be that the poor woman's life was pathetically lacking in close companionship.

Thus, during the many years she was harking back regretfully to the memory in the absence of a major departure from propriety, she was actually feeding on the memory in the absence of personal relationships in the here-and-now.

I have an idea that something of the sort accounts for your inordinate emphasis on the old family friend's philanthropic play for you (if such it was) some years ago.

The Grade A husband's disposition to ease away from the subject probably means that he trusts his wife to handle the situation and also that he realizes that men do make passes, often with an specific intention, and certainly none that last beyond the immediate moment.

If it were you, I'd forget the whole thing. Or, if that seems impossible, go over the subject with a good psychoanalyst.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Guardian.

Whereupon she replied to the apocryphal story goes: "But, Reverend, I like to think back upon that time."

The deep implication of the fact seems to be that the poor woman's life was pathetically lacking in close companionship.

Thus, during the many years she was harking back regretfully to the memory in the absence of a major departure from propriety, she was actually feeding on the memory in the absence of personal relationships in the here-and-now.

I have an idea that something of the sort accounts for your inordinate emphasis on the old family friend's philanthropic play for you (if such it was) some years ago.

The Grade A husband's disposition to ease away from the subject probably means that he trusts his wife to handle the situation and also that he realizes that men do make passes, often with an specific intention, and certainly none that last beyond the immediate moment.

If it were you, I'd forget the whole thing. Or, if that seems impossible, go over the subject with a good psychoanalyst.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Guardian.

Whereupon she replied to the apocryphal story goes: "But, Reverend, I like to think back upon that time."

Career School

BARBERING OR HAIRDRESSING? Screen Teaching, Unemployment Insurance if eligible, Transportation Allowance and other Benefits.

TRANS-CANADA BEAUTY INDUSTRIES LTD. Moncton, N. B.

A Fashion Item At HOLMAN'S

lovely holiday cardigan in easy washing orlon . . . buttons to neck with neat collar in a novelty knit; long sleeves with neat ribbing at wrist, also at waist . . . attractive white only, in sizes small, medium and large and only . . . 4.98.

HOLMAN'S

School Picnic Plans Discussed

Mrs. Dan Stewart was hostess to the Kilnmuir VI on June 4. The president, Mrs. A. N. MacLean, presided.

The president, Mrs. A. N. MacLean, presided. The meeting was opened by repeating the Institute Collect in Union, Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Roll call was answered by 11 members and one visitor.

Correspondence was read by the secretary. The sum of $5.00

TUCKS FOR TOPS

Stuck on sunny days in a lean sheath with easy wear. Pink, blue, yellow or a grey print.

Printed Pattern 4767: Misses' Size 10, 12, 14, 16, Size 14-16. Each fabric requires 2 1/2 yds. 35¢ a yd. FORTY CENTAS (40 cents) in items to stamps, plus a fee for shipping.

Printed Pattern 4767: Misses' Size 10, 12, 14, 16, Size 14-16. Each fabric requires 2 1/2 yds. 35¢ a yd. FORTY CENTAS (40 cents) in items to stamps, plus a