What About

That watch and clock of yours that is nearly destroyed for want of cleaning by being run too long; a few days ago a watch was left to be cleaned and on examination one of the pivots was completely worn off by long usage without being cleaned, you had better attend to yours before it is too late, and bring them to the Modern Jewelry and Fancy Goods Store.

HIS TIME HAD COME.

So Thought a Quebec Man Until Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Him of Bright's Disease

Quebec, April 23.—Narcisse Mangy, of 109 St. Anne Street, this city, considers himself an extremely fortunate man. He has come through the ordeal of Bright's Disease alive.

Bright's Disease is a extremely fatal disease of the kidney. The sufferer lingers on, growing weaker and weaker, slow, and miserably dying. Once it fastens itself upon a victim there is only one hope to save him. Dodd's Kidney Pills. But they never fail.

Narcisse Mangy says: "I have endured Bright's Disease for over five years. Doctors told me I would never get well. I thought my time had come. A friend told me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I have just finished the fourth box and am cured."

The motto of a modern young woman according to a popular author, is:—Be a man, if you can, and if you can't be as much like one as you can.

HART'S WARNING.

A correspondent of the Standard with General Brabant at Zastron, telegraphing Monday, says:

"Before leaving Rouxville on the advance northward, General Hart issued the following proclamation:

"Take Notice.—Inhabitants of Rouxville, and all concerned, that you are allowed to remain in occupation of your homes in peace and quietness, subject to your proper behavior always, as non-combatants in this war, and to your obedience to such rules as the officer whom I appoint to command here, may find it necessary to make.

"Such rules will not, however, be for oppression, but for precaution; and I hereby direct him and all troops under his command to treat you with all due respect and kindness. But if, in my absence you commit, abet, or screen any other act of hostility towards the troops of the Queen, not consistent with the honorable customs of war with regard to the behavior of inhabitants, I will in due time certainly inflict on you and this town such a penalty as will force you to regret your transgression."

Present information obtained from responsible sources, shows that at time the Republics had not less than 100,000 men in the field, including colonial rebels, and that, notwithstanding their heavy losses, and a large number of desertions, they still muster 80,000 men. The disposition of their troops is as follows: Free State, 50,000; Biggarsberg, 10,000; Fourteen Streams and Klerksdorp district, 15,000 approximately. It is now declared that before the war the burgher lists were deliberately cooked, the names of thousands of eligible recruits being withheld in order to deceive the British Intelligence Department.

Sham Antiquities.

A few years ago, in Soho, London, there was a factory for antique coppers which is probably still in operation. The legitimate business of the place was the manufacture of stew-pans and kettles, but when trade was dull in that way any sort of antiques for which there happened to be a demand was produced instead.

An old incense burner, for example, would be reproduced by the dozen by hammering over a chuck. If ornamented with pierced work, the copies would be coated with asphaltum, through which the design would be traced, when it would then be eaten out in an acid bath, saving the time which would be required to cut out the pattern with a piercing saw. The bath leaves thin edges, by which such work may be detected.

The work would then be annealed and would be permitted to oxidize and scale. Pickling with muriatic acid and salt, to produce a good coating of verdigris, would complete the job. Sometimes these "antiques" would be purposely broken and would be clumsily mended with solder or with pure tin if the piece was to pass for a very ancient one. Chiseled metal was reproduced by casting and "dubbing" over with the hammer, then pickling, annealing and bending. In such ways helmets, copper and brass castings for antique furniture and the like were made.—Art Amateur.

Horse Racing on the Stage.

In racing scenes the horses do run at full speed. They run, however, not on the fixed stage, but on what may be called treadmills, which keep the horses in front of the house for longer or shorter periods, according as they are moved quickly or slowly. A picket fence, placed between the audience and the course, not only makes the scene more realistic; it also hides the mechanism of the treadmills. This fence has contributed in another way to add to the effect by being moved in opposition to the direction of the horses and so lending to their apparent speed.

As to the sounds made by the footfalls of horses to be heard as though passing outside an interior scene, they are reproduced by the dried hoofs of dead horses or wooden imitations mounted on handles and hammered against surfaces of stone, gravel, sand or whatever the occasion may demand. They are also more elaborately manufactured by revolving a cylinder with pins protruding from the surface. These pins are arranged, like the spurs on a hand organ roller, to imitate trotting, galloping or walking when struck against other substances. If the sound of a carriage is to be added to the tramping of horses, wheels are run on sand.—Cassell's Magazine.
