On this point he was reassured by Chief Commissioner Archibald who said they were satisfied with the honesty of all the witnesses who had come before them "including your Mr. Gaffney." Mr. Archibald said the Board would give careful consideration to the presentations and assured both parties that the experts in the office of the Board would check all figures given them. He then remarked "As I said before it seems unfortunate in a case where three parties are interested all could not get together for this facility. When you have a facility adaptable to Trans-Canada Highway all should help." He then reminded those present that he had lived for some time in the Murray Harbour area and knows the district personally. Members of the Board and railway officials were scheduled to leave today for Ottawa and Montreal.
