Canadian Diplomat Puzzles, Amuses Pope At Audience

By ALAN HARVEY

ROME (CP) — A Canadian diplomat took a 34-year-old postcard out of his pocket here and presented it to a puzzled Pope John.

"This is a postcard from a certain Mr. Roncalli," said Jean Bruchesi, Canada's ambassador extraordinary to the 21st ecumenical council.

The Pope looked blank, then tapped his chest.

"You mean me?"

Bruchesi explained that the card had indeed been sent to him by Angelo Roncalli, son of a peasant family from Bergamo near Milan. He now is known to the world as Pope John XXIII.

As the Pope chuckled and nodded his head, Bruchesi explained that he received the card after a visit in 1928 to Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, where the Pope was serving as papal envoy.

Bruchesi, then a professor, had called to convey greetings from his uncle, the late Msgr. Bruchesi, archbishop of Montreal and a close friend of envoy Roncalli.

Members of the Pope's entourage laughed heartily as Bruchesi unfolded the story of the faded postcard, carefully preserved through the years.

The little scene took place in the Sistine Chapel of the Vatican Palace, where the Pope gave a historic audience to heads of missions attending the council.

In his typical way, the Pope broke precedent by leaving his throne to walk freely through the lines of diplomats, instead of having them come to him.

The Pope wore white silk robes under a red cape trimmed with ermine, and a white skull cap. When he addressed the diplomats as a group he spoke in a fluent and only slightly accented French, appearing completely at ease.

Bruchesi, now Canada's ambassador to Spain, came here from Tangier, where he presented his credentials as Canada's first ambassador to Morocco.

Dutch Prince Is Described Differing With Montgomery

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands is "bitter" about the way Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery conducted the battle of Arnhem, according to an authorized biography of the prince which went on sale here Friday night.

During the 1944 battle, the 1st British Airborne Division and the 1st Polish Brigade were decimated.

In the biography, written by U.S. author Alden Hatch, Prince Bernhard is quoted as saying "in his famous book, Monty admits that Arnhem was a failure, but I wish he had added that it was a failure that could easily have been avoided."

The prince says that before the battle, he and his chief of staff saw Montgomery and "we knew more about conditions in Holland than he did. If he had believed us, Arnhem would not have been a failure but a victory, but Monty absolutely refused to believe us."

In a chapter on The Prince and The Nazis the book says "Those who claim the prince of The Netherlands once wore the black uniform of Hitler's S.S. are right" and explains the circumstances.

AVOID EXAM

The book says that the prince and other students joined the motorized S.S. in Berlin in order to finish their studies and to avoid a newly-introduced university examination relating to the political ideas of the candidates. S.S. members did not have to pass the exam.

The book says that when they had completed their studies the prince and his fellow students "left the S.S. and severed all ties with the Nazi party."

In another section of the book, the prince says he once told the Duke of Edinburgh that the husband of a Queen "needs the hide of an elephant."

While speaking with the duke shortly after his marriage to Queen Elizabeth, Bernhard told him: "You probably do not realize what you have ahead of you."

"Nearly everything you do will be criticized. But do not be discouraged. For this job you need the hide of an elephant."

Russia Hails Council Opening

LONDON (Reuters) — Russia has hailed the opening of the Roman Catholic ecumenical council in the Vatican with a tribute to Pope John for his stand on international affairs.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said the Pope has "repeatedly come out in favor of peace, against the atomic arms race and for the peaceful solution of disputed international questions."

Stocks Show Mixed Trend

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market put on a mixed and indifferent performance last week yielding no clues as to where it may be heading.

Turnover for the week was 11,822,758 shares compared with 13,956,680 the week before. It was the smallest weekly total since 10,852,200 shares were traded in the week ended Oct. 15, 1960.

Trading volume was cut drastically Monday because of the Jewish holiday, Yom Kippur. The Columbus Day observance Friday also dampened trading. In addition, World Series baseball distracted Wall Street's attention.

The Dow Jones industrial average was off .12 at 586.47, a minor change.

The Associated Press average made a small gain for the week of .8 at 218.5.

The usual mixed bag of business and economic news backgrounded market action. Steel production showed its first weekly drop since early September and reports were of a slowdown of incoming business.

Some of the corporate news, however, was quite good. Radio Corp. and IBM reported record earnings. General Electric reported a substantial rise in profits as well as record sales.

U.S. Steel Firm Expecting Gains

CLEVELAND (AP) — United States steelmakers expect a 5- to 10-per-cent increase in their shipments this month and look for a similar gain next month, Steel Magazine reports.

The publication says seasonal losses are being offset by bigger orders from Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corp., appliance manufacturers, and miscellaneous users who have completed inventory adjustments.

Steel production is reported on an even keel. Output this week is expected to be about the same as the estimated 1,740,000 ingot tons the industry poured last week. Operations are at 57 per cent of annual capacity, which Steel estimates at 160,000,000 tons.

The publication's scrap price composite on No. 1 heavy melting grade fell 67 cents a gross ton last week to $25.
