ELLEN'S DIARY

Dusk Brings Thunderhead That Lightens Dark Hills

"We could get it in coil" James observed today of a moving... "In coil" Gage, Jamie's brother exclaimed with a chuckle...

"I know, I know" James grinned. "They rush it—don't give the hay time to make before they get it into bales or to a mow. Anything will do. And when the old white cow stands in her stall, hawking sorrowfully at a winter-morning, I know she's not miserable bodily, but in mind, she's remembering the choice hay she was used to get in her manger in her youth!"

MARY HAWORTH Everyone Being Cheated In This Bizarre Situation

Dear Mary Haworth: Married competition, as seems to be very young to a seductive husband. I have been loved and this seductive husband, overflowing with tenderness, than a shrubfall my own.

It has hurt me often, but he also have given me so much that I can only forgive, always. I discovered just recently that my wife is a naval officer's son, and that she has projects for the future which seem to include me in all his plans.

So? Who is the cheated woman? The mistress whom he is seducing in a naval officer's son, and that she has projects for the future which seem to include me in all his plans.
