Popular Sanitary Literature.

Until recently sanitary writings have been easily divisible into two distinct classes,—one severely scientific, technical, accurate, and exhaustive, but generally uninteresting to any but specialists who had devoted much study to sanitary matters. These works are valuable to students, but they are aversive to the multitude. On the other hand the books on hygiene belonging to the popular class were generally inaccurate as to facts and absurd as to inference, and much harm has been done by the false doctrines spread by them.
The American Public Health Association, a voluntary organization, comprising in its ranks physicians, clergymen, teachers, engineers, manufacturers,—in fact intelligent men and women of all classes,—has labored for years to correct the evils growing out of the old order of things, and to bring home to the people the knowledge that is needed to save life and avert disease. Heartily aided by the press, the Association has done much good work at its annual meetings held in different parts of the country. Still, only a small proportion of the country could be reached in this way. Three years ago, however, a philanthropic member of the Association, Mr. Henry Lomb, of Rochester, offered prizes for essays upon certain topics of vital importance to every intelligent person having any regard to the preservation of life and health. The subject selected and the successful competitors for the prizes are as follows: (1) Healthy Homes and Food for the Working Classes, 62 pages, by Prof. V. C. Vaughan, of the University of Michigan; (2) The Sanitary Conditions and Necessities of School-Houses and School Life, 38 pages, by Dr. D. F. Lincoln of Boston; (3) Disinfection and Individual Prophylaxis against Infectious Diseases, 40 pages, by Major G. M. Sternberg, Surgeon U. S. Army; and (4) The Preventable Causes of Disease, Injury, and Death in America, Manufactories and Workshops, and the Best Means and Appliances for Preventing and Avoiding Them, 19 pages, by Mr. George H. Ireland, of Springfield, Mass.
Although the treatment of the subjects in these essays is popular in tone, and easily understood by any one, the teaching is sound and thorough. There are no misstatements of fact and no false inferences contained in them, and while the most rigid scientific demands for accuracy are complied with, the whole matter is made clear and comprehensible to the most ordinary understanding.
Through the means furnished the Public Health Association, it is enabled to offer these valuable works at a price almost ridiculously low. They may be obtained at the book-stores, or of Dr. Irving A. Watson, Secretary, Concord, N. H., at the following rates: Single copies, No. 1, 10 cents; Nos. 2, 3, and 4, 5 cents each. The entire four essays in pamphlet form twenty-five cents, or in cloth binding at fifty cents or seventy-five cents, according to style of binding and paper.
Dr. Sternberg's Essay has been published in German, French, and Flemish, and Dr. Vaughan's in German.

Books as Companions.

A child brought up in an atmosphere of books will absorb a certain amount of culture from his very surroundings. As soon as a child has learned to turn over the leaves of a book without tearing them give him books of his own. If he cares for them at first only for the pictures, he will in time learn to love them for what they can tell him. Children should be encouraged to keep their books neatly on little shelves of their own. Very neat hanging shelves, containing from one to four shelves, can be obtained at the bazaars at from fifty cents to $1, and will be found a source of much pleasure in arranging his small library. It will also teach him to take good care of his books, which is a lesson he cannot learn too soon. The true book lover always cherishes his books tenderly, but the child cannot be expected to entertain the reverence for a good book which he possesses in later years.—E.C.

No Rose Bordered Road.

It would be well if every boy in America or elsewhere would write in his own hand with a blue pencil that there is no rose bordered road to success, and that even the man who is born beautiful and marries rich has to fight his way, says Bill Nye. The great West does not so sorely need pretty men with buckskin clothes as it does good citizens who are willing to work. Wherever the sun shines or grass grows and water runs, the young man who will give a good day's work for a fair day's wages will surely be promoted as he deserves it. It may not be funny, but it is the never-dying truth that industry, integrity and perseverance are mighty substitutes for symmetry, genius and hair.—New York World.

Total Abstinence.

Rev. Canon Willberforce thus expresses himself: "Total abstinence has the power of prolonging more lives than all the doctors in England, of saving more money than all the savings banks in the United Kingdom, and of preventing more crime than all the police in the metropolis."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain; and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind. mar 8 cod & wky

The Empress Victoria of Germany.

The following graphic description of the new Empress of Germany is taken from the New York World: The consort of the new ruler of Germany is universally admitted to be one of the most talented and remarkable women of her age. The eldest daughter of the Queen of England, she was born on November 31, 1840, and after a courtship at Balmoral, was married to the present Emperor (at that time Prince Frederick William of Prussia) on Jan. 25, 1858, at the Chapel Royal, St. James, London, proceeding immediately after the wedding to Potsdam, where she took up her residence with her husband. Although Frederick III. is a true Hohenzollern, both by inheritance and by tradition, his character has been largely influenced by the new Empress, to whom he is devotedly attached. The favorite daughter of the Prince Consort of Great Britain, she has retained all her proclivities in favor of a liberal and constitutional form of Government, as opposed to the military despotism and autocracy favored by the late Emperor and by Prince Bismarck. These proclivities, which she imparted to her husband naturally brought her into frequent conflict with the great Chancellor and with Prussian bureaucracy, who have never professed much sympathy for her whom they describe as "Engländerin." The latter returns this dislike with interest, and it has become especially embittered since the partially successful attempt made to bring Prince William into unfilial opposition to his parents. So strong is the antagonism at Berlin against the new Empress, that had her husband died at San Remo during the past few weeks, it is doubtful whether it would have been prudent for her to return to the "Athens on the Spree." Prompted by the jealousy of the German surgeons and physicians, whose incompetent services in behalf of the new Emperor have been discarded in favor of the Scotch specialists, Sir Maxwell Mackenzie, the latter and the Empress Victoria are held responsible by the Berlin public for the failure to check the malady of Frederick III.

It should be added that the new Empress is devoted to art, literature and science and that she has done much to encourage them in every direction in Germany. She is an accomplished musician, very clever with the pencil and brush, one of the best read women of the day, and a devoted wife, mother and daughter.

The Crown Prince's accession to the throne places his wife and children in a position which they could not have obtained had the late Kaiser lived longer than his son. As the widow of the Crown Prince, the Princess would have had the right of only some $20,000 a year from the Prussian Government, which, added to the $40,000 a year paid to her by the British Parliament as an English princess, would have constituted her entire income, while the Princesses would not have received more than a hundred thousand dollars apiece as their sole fortune. Now that the Crown Prince has become Emperor, his wife, in case of her husband's earlier death, will inherit the dignity of Dowager Empress and her share of the vast fortunes of the Hohenzollern family, which will probably increase her yearly income of dollars to pounds.

Aphorisms.

Our mission in life is like unto the office of a Vestal Virgin, to keep perpetually burning within us the holy flame of divinity.
There are sparks of divinity in every man's nature; yet, like the sparks of flint, they must be struck into life.
As the sun is reflected in the tiniest dew-drop while giving light into a world, so the grandeur of the All, while pervading the whole universe, is mirrored in every human heart.
Have nothing to conceal and you will enjoy the inextinguishable light of being always sincere.
Truth is like the sun; whatever darkens it is but a passing cloud.
If a truth declines in one part of the world it rises like the sun in another.
If always we speak the truth, our words will always bear an imprint that gives them currency.—Henry Byron in Open Court.

Concerning the Complexion.

When you find a soap that is pure and suits your skin, continue to use it. Frequent changes are bad for the complexion. Pimples often arise from washing with cold water when overheated.
For roughness, caused by exposure to wind, sponge the face with equal parts of brandy and rose water.
If you use powder always wash it off before going to bed.
Many persons prefer almond meal or oatmeal to soap for washing face and hands. Glycerine does not agree with a very dry skin.

TEA AT MONTAQUE.—Please bear in mind that on the 27th of June next the Tea of the season will be held at Montaque, in aid of the Methodist Church, which it is expected will then be well on towards completion. Notices of special attractions to the Tea will appear in the papers in due time. 1m—mch15
