MR. AND MRS. DEWAR L. MACDONALD

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Young Couple At Saint Paul's

St. Paul's Anglican Church in Charlottetown was the scene of a lovely summer wedding recently when Judith Miverva Harrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garth Harrison, Charlottetown became the bride of Dewar Lloyd MacDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter MacDonald, Covehead.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Archdeacon J.T. Ibbott. Mr. George Thompson, church organist, played wedding music and accompanied Mrs. A.J. Haslam, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" during the signing of the register.

Baskets of flowers adorned the church and the guest pews were marked with white satin bows and orange blossoms.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in a model floor length gown of white tissue faille. The full skirt was caught up in tiny bow knots and the fitted bodice featured a square scalloped neckline enhanced with alencon lace and seed pearls. The long sleeves tapered to points over the wrists. Her bouffant veil of French silk illusion was held in place by a pillbox headdress of seed pearls and rhinestones. She carried a cascade of yellow roses entwined with ivy and wore a pearl necklace given her by the groom.

Miss Ethel MacDonald, sister of the groom, acted as maid of honor and Miss Norma MacLeod was the bridesmaid. The maid of honor wore a gown of yellow flowered organza and the bridesmaid, a street length gown of yellow organza with bouffant skirt and fitted bodice. They wore yellow rose headdresses and carried nosegays of tinted, white carnations.

Mr. Gordon Vessey was the bestman and the ushers were Kenneth MacDonald and Ronnie Babineau.

Mrs. Garth Harrison, mother of the bride, wore a beige lace sheath dress with a mink stole and a green flowered petal hat and beige accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations. Mrs. MacDonald, mother of the groom wore a printed white silk dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Mrs. Brenton Hudson, grandmother of the bride, wore a navy printed silk dress with white accessories and a corsage of red carnations. Mrs. G.H. Harrison, chose for her grand-daughter's wedding a pink brocade jacket dress with black accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. John MacLennan, great grandmother of the bride, chose a navy print dress with navy accessories and a red corsage.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the Charlottetown Hotel, where little Miss Helen Harrison, sister of the bride, had charge oof the guest book. Mr. Frank Bryon proposed the toast to the bride, which was responded to by the groom.

For travelling the bride chose a printed silk dress with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

The young couple willl make their home at Covehead where the groom is a prospective farmer.

ELLEN'S DIARY

The Week's End Comes With Bustle Of Activity

Come to the cares of the haying now, are the folks of this farm; come to its work: the mowing and saving; come too, to regard more intently the weather, on its account, noticing this and that sign and token of the season; taking advantage of such wind and sun as favors its progress; respecting that reminder which advises us to "Make hay while the sun shines."

This afternoon took our farmers off to a spell at the baling, though James twisting more than one wisp of sample from this and that windrow there, deemed it "No more than fit yet, to be baled." " And when will my turn come to help by driving the horse in the loft?" Granddaughter questioned.

"Your turn will come - never fear! It's likely, the first of the week" Jamie assured her. "Meanwhile, if I were you, I'd rest up for it, because" he smiled "when we come to fill the mows, there'll be no 'slack lifts' for you then!"

"I can't rest today" she chuckled. "There are lawns to be mowed 'For Sunday." Shortbread, we baked this morning "for Sunday". After the recipe commonly used by cooks nowadays — Time was when the preferred shortening was a pat of butter fresh from the churn, and with it, no other than brown sugar was favored.

Shortbread, we made. And tidied the rooms. And filled the woodbox, heaping it. And gathered up shingles from those brought home by the younger farmer from the spot of roofing done on a far barn, to be our kindling-wood. It was a chore which allowed us an excuse to loiter out of doors, in the delight of a haying-afternoon — to love last crimson roses, before their glory fades and the loveliness over the fields.

Granddaughter mowed through the lengthening shadows, the little mower beating out a satisfying tune. Holidaying lads angled down at the stream. A family picnicked by the mill. Alex and Peter drove their tiny trucks on a sand-heap, Scampie nearby, and the sun on their heads.

And the hours sped — taking us past the sunset "fires so colorful, and on into the purple shadows of twilight and the strangely satisfying peace of week's end. The bird's happy Evensong ended in sleepy twitters, and solemn. The afterglow above the western rim of hills faded into the silver-blue of evening and a first star appeared, heralding the company now lighting the dim of night, each in its own time and place and course. And come starlight or dawn, wherever we are, we are mindful that forever and ever, "His loving care is around us all."

"God watches over the birds that fly;
He sets the stars in the evening sky;
He paints the flowers and He sends the rain
That patters against the window-pane.

The round red sun in the eastern sky
He bids ascend to its place on high;
And keeps it there, till it sinks to rest
A ball of fire in the glowing west.

His loving care is around us all —
We rise each day at His gentle call;
We go to sleep at His wise command;
We are led each step by His guiding hand."

Until Monday — — Diary — Good-night.....

Gettysberg And Art Gallery Are Included In Student's Tour

(Ed. note: Miss Sharon Baker of Margate is in Kensington, Maryland, as an exchange student sponsored by the Kensington, P.E.I. Lions Club. The following is the final in a series of accounts, written by herself, since leaving the province.)

Resuming my tour of Kensington, Maryland, on Monday the 23rd, I drove to Culpepper, Virginia, which took us two hours. We stopped at the "Pruet" farm, which is located nine miles from the town and I went horseback riding, swimming in the river, and walking across the swinging bridge over Rucoon Ford. The farm house was built back in 1820 and during the Civil War was used by the "South" as a hospital. From Mrs. Moxley's brother I received a miminie ball, a civil war bullet and an Indian arrowhead used by the Powhatan tribe.

The next morning we drove through Charlottesville, where the University of Virginia is located and on to Montecello, the home of Thomas Jefferson. The drive up the Blue Ridge Mountains on Skyline Drive was scenic. In Luray we visited the Caverns, the largest and most popular in the Eastern States.

Returning to Kensington I moved to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bebee and because it was raining on Wednesday, I went to see the National Gallery of Art. It appealed to me because I had never visited one before. We didn't tour all the eighty some marble galleries, because that would have taken a couple of days.

Thursday, accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. Mehring, we travelled to Gettysburg, Penn., where we met the doctor's sister and her teen-age daughter. The tour of Gettysburg took all afternoon. We went to see the slides of the battle, the panaroma which depict Picketts charge, the museum, the electric map, the battlefield itself with all the interesting points and the wax museum. From all this I should know something of the American Civil War.

Friday was a complete day of rest and tomorrow I attend the Lions' picnic, Church on Sunday and then back to P.E.I.

This has been a most wonderful trip for me.
