HAPPENINGS OF THE WEEK

On the eve of her departure for Canada the Queen was following with interest the progress of the baby son of her niece, Lady Anson, born the end of April.

Miss Katherine MacLennan of the teaching staff of the Alexandra Hospital, Montreal, was the guest over the week-end at her cousin Dr. A. M. Gordon, The Manse, Quebec.

The King and Queen have been invited to pay a state visit to Belgium in October. The invitation, which came from Leopold III, King of the Belgians, is en route to the King and Queen in October.

Colonel Alexander Macphail, of Kingston, and Dr. Moray Macphail, of Acadia College, Wolfville, N. S., were the week-end guests of the former's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Macphail of Ottawa.

The dinner given by the Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. DeBlas at Government House on Thursday evening was a social event long to be remembered for the brilliance of the scenery and the gracious hospitality extended by the King's representative.

Dr. and Mrs. David W. MacKenzie of Montreal returned on Thursday night from Williamsburg, Virginia, and White Sulphur Springs, West Va., where Dr. MacKenzie attended surgical meetings.

The opening tea at the Charlottetown Tennis Courts will be held this afternoon the hostesses being Miss Eleanor Bourke and Miss Gwen Rogers.

Miss Jeanette Orr, M. A., has arrived from New York City to visit her mother, Mrs. Parmenas Orr, who is recovering from a recent operation.

Mrs. A. Lord of Souris is expected Monday on a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Palmer. Mrs. Lord will take part in the festivities in connection with the visit of Their Majesties and will remain over for the marriage of her grandson Ernest Sutton.

Prince Edward and Princess Alexandra went out picnicking at Frogmore the other day. At 10 o'clock, when the Royal children are usually wheeled out in Coppins garden, whatever the weather, they were packed into a car with their nurse, a supply of toys, and driven to empty Frogmore House.

The commander-in-chief America and West Indies Station, Captain and officers, H. S. Berwick, entertained Thursday at a cocktail party from 5 to 7 p. m. which was much enjoyed by their guests.

Miss Edith Rogers has returned from an extended visit with her sisters in Brookline, Mass.

Lady Meyrick, wife of Vice Admiral Sir Sydney Meyrick, K. C. B., N. S., of St. George's, Lewis, returned among the visitors welcomed this week.

Many home friends will regret to learn of the illness of Mrs. Minnie Wright at her home 333 Metcalf Avenue, Westmont, Que., who recently returned from Florida where she spent the winter.

Mrs. J. Sidney Bonnell, with her children and the summer residence here from New York arrived last Saturday to spend the holidays at their summer cottage at Cavendish. Dr. Bonnell is arriving next Tuesday to join his family.

Rev. George Ayers has as his guest his brother-in-law Mr. W. E. Leonard and daughter Mrs. W. Leonard and her little son, Harley of Batty, Sask.

Lieut. Col and Mrs. G. Elliott Full have as their welcome guests this week the Colonel's nieces, Mrs. G. E. Full and sister, Mrs. A. O. Perry and Mr. Perry and their friend Mrs. Bemis of Brookline, Mass. who are having an exceptionally happy holiday among their old friends.

Mrs. Myron Stoll and little son Myron Jr. and Mrs. Cleveland and little son Albert from Youngstown, Ohio, have arrived by car to visit their parents, Mr. Justice A. Saunders and Mrs. Saunders, Summerside.

Mrs. R. H. Rogers' pretty home was the centre of a happy gathering yesterday afternoon when the Primary Teachers of Trinity Church entertained at the tea hour in honor of Miss Freda Colwill, a valued young teacher, who is to be one of Charlottetown's popular June brides.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Bauld of Halifax were the guests this week of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Bruce, Summerside.

Mrs. Ernest Walker of Summerside entertained at bridge Thursday evening for her friends.

Mrs. W. A. Currie has as her guest her sister Mrs. H. L. Brooster of Moncton and Mrs. MacDonald, Milford, N. S., whose daughter Miss MacDonald is organist of the Summerville Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Fred Moore and Miss Edith Moore were joint hostesses at a much enjoyed luncheon party at the Charlottetown Hotel yesterday in honor of Miss Freda Colwill.

Mrs. Bridgewater, wife of Rev. E. R. G. Bridgewater, M. A., D., former rector of the Anglican Church at Crapaud, P. E. I., has been visiting friends in Crapaud for a few days. On Wednesday she was the guest of Mrs. G. deW. White at Summerside. Mrs. Bridgewater with her children are sailing in August for London, England, to join her husband who has been over there for some time, and where they intend to make their home.

Miss Ruth Ayers, R. N., of Montreal has arrived home to attend the Ayers-Boyles nuptials on the 15th, and is the guest of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Ayers.

Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Harding have taken up their residence at their summer cottage at Stanley Bridge.

Mrs. A. B. Warburton, who has been visiting her daughter, Miss Olga Warburton, is now a guest of another daughter, Mrs. Bate and Rev. A. F. Bate, St. Paul's rectory, Wall Street, Saint John.

Mrs. Cameron Strathguthney is the guest of Mrs. Holden, C. Mills and Miss Green of Summerside.

It is pleasing to report that Mr. A. E. MacLennan, M. A., now recovered from his recent serious operation and was able to resume his seat in the House before progress.

Home friends will be interested in the engagement announcement this week by Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas William Outman of Westham of their daughter, Miss Olive Cousins, to Henry Wyman Holmes, Jr., of Cambridge and New York. Miss Cousins was graduated from Wellesley College and has studied at Columbia University and the Sorbonne. She studied dancing at the Braughton School in Boston, and at the Denishaw House in New York and is a former member of the Miriam Winslow concert group.

Given Away

Counsel had been bullying a witness at great length. Once the judge had ceased to reprove him. "Haven't you been in this court before?" asked the relentless one with an air of triumph.

"Are you sure of that?" "Yes, sir." "Your face seems very familiar—very familiar. Where have I seen it before?" "I'm barman at the Cross Roads Arms, sir."

Forgot One Thing

The doctor examined him twice a year. He wore goggles when he sailed. He slept with his window open. He stuck to a diet with plenty of fresh vegetables. He got up at least eight hours sleep every night. He never smoked, drank, or had his temper. He died daily.

The funeral took place yesterday—he had forgotten about motor cars.

member of the Sigma Nu fraternity and the Masque and Gown. He has been associated with the Cleveland Playhouse and the Old Globe Shakespearean productions, and is now appearing on the New York stage. The wedding will take place in June. Miss Cousins is a cousin of Mrs. W. Chester S. McLaren, Bonnehelny and has visited here on several occasions.

Dr. and Mrs. David W. MacKenzie of Montreal returned on Thursday night from Williamsburg, Virginia, and White Sulphur Springs, West Va., where Dr. MacKenzie attended surgical meetings. They were away for two weeks.

Miss Jeanette Orr, M. A., has arrived from New York City to visit her mother, Mrs. Parmenas Orr, who is recovering from a recent operation.

Prince Edward and Princess Alexandra went out picnicking at Frogmore the other day. At 10 o'clock, when the Royal children are usually wheeled out in Coppins garden, whatever the weather, they were packed into a car with their nurse, a supply of toys, and driven to empty Frogmore House.

The nursery routine at Coppins was observed. There, their prams being taken to Frogmore by the van used to take their parents' flowers and vegetables to Belgrave-square. The children were put to sleep in a sheltered place until their picnic lunch was ready. In the afternoon Prince Edward played and Princess Alexandra had another sleep in her pram. They had this day out so that the Duke could throw open his "out-door nursery" at Coppins Garden to the public to help the cause of the Queen's Institute and District Nursing. It is the first time he has ever done so, and will probably be the last, as he is selling this country house at Iver. The Duke did this at the request of Queen Mary, who asks all her relatives and friends with lovely gardens to help this favorite cause of hers. The Royal children's nine-hour picnic ended at 7 o'clock, when the last visitor left Coppins and they went home to their parents and Coppings from being the draw it would otherwise have been. By 2 o'clock only 33 people had been to see the Royal home.

Look in the section your birthday comes in, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars. (Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate Inc.)

For Saturday, June 10, 1939. MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) - Vibrations are much friendlier than usual. Natural and artificial, don't go swirly on wild schemes, adventurous doings and things in general because you are feeling tops (which you should be). Think always before acting.

APRIL 21 to MAY 20 (Taurus) - This Saturday invites the deer to push forward, to make the most of every opportunity, to enjoy the many blessings offered in this great land of ours. Don't dim your personality with pessimism—be a cheer leader. Whether it's work or play, do your best.

MAY 21 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) - Gains indicated (if not now, soon) through unexpected channels. Don't pass up small advantages. They may be the key to achievement on a large scale. Promote your interests.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) - Excellent aspects. Stars particularly favor personal development, management, weddings, outdoor activities, writings, art, travel, mixing business with pleasure to the advantage of both.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) - Headway to be made in business and social matters. See that your clever mind doesn't get foggy. Your natural charm rather than bluntness, forcible tactics will gain you point surprisingly quickly.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

When a Woman Gets An Untamed Creature for a Husband—One Who is Always Pinning for the Return to Freedom—it is Best to Send Him on His Way

Dear Miss Dix—I have been married two years to a man who, after trying marriage, has decided that he was not cut out for domesticity. He says that he has no fault to find with me; that I have been a good wife; that I am pleasant to get along with, and a fine housekeeper and manager. Also, there is no other woman. But he just feels that he wants to be free and that marriage is a sort of jail that he has to break out of, or die. In our brief marriage he has twice left me. The first time he asked me to go back to my people and stay for a couple of months so he could test out his feelings and decide whether he wanted to go on with our marriage or not. He came and begged me to return. The second parting was for five months. Then he also asked me to come back. But now after three weeks at a home he asks me to go for good and give him a divorce. What shall I do?

PERPLEXED WIFE. Apparently you are wife in NAME ONLY, as the old melodramas used to say, so I think you will be wise to give him the divorce he desires so badly. Certainly there can be no happiness for you in such an unstable marriage with a man who doesn't know what he wants from minute and who refuses to accept any of the responsibilities of marriage.

There are a lot of men who are celibate by nature and who should never marry. The only way that they get out of the cage before they break the hearts of their wives. No matter how beautiful a home their wives make for them, it is never anything but a prison from which they are always trying to escape. The devotion of no woman repays them for their loss of personal liberty. Children are never a consolation, but a ball and chain around their feet. They sacrifice their families to any fad, any hobby, any amusement, without even a thought of the crime they are committing against those whose lives they have taken in their hands.

Such men are not necessarily bad. On the contrary, they are frequently good, kind and lovable, but the call of the wild is in their blood and they are bound to answer it. They can be tied down by domesticity. And so when a woman gets one of these untamed creatures, who is always struggling to be free, the only thing she can do is to loose his bonds and let him go.

Dear Miss Dix—All my life I have understood that a woman has a right to break an engagement, but if a man does he can be sued for breach of promise. Recently I have been told that a woman has no more right to break an engagement than a man has. Also, that in some cases women are being sued for breach of promise and forced to pay damages. Is this true? I believe in equality of the sexes, and that if men have the right to drink and smoke so have women, and that it is no worse to see an intoxicated woman than it is a drunken man. I also believe that a drunken man who has an unfaithful husband has a right to be a playboy himself. Is it your opinion that it is a mother's duty to be an example to her children, while their father feels free to do as he likes?

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

Either party has a right to break an engagement if he or she decides for any reason to call the marriage off. In the past it has been the custom of the law to sue the woman for doing so, even if she was the man who wanted to get out of the engagement. Both men and women have sued for breach of promise and asked for money to assuage their broken hearts, but, to their shame, it is women who do this oftener than men.

As to women's right to drink and smoke, it is idle to argue, since they do it everywhere. But certainly no one will deny that the sight of an intoxicated woman is far more shocking and disgusting than that of a drunken man. Perhaps she is a playboy, but she is a playboy upholding the standards of morality and decency, so it horrifies us to see them dragging their white banner in the dust. Perhaps it is because drink shatters the nerves and degrades a woman more than it does a man, and when she sinks she goes deeper into the gutter than he does.

Maybe it is no worse for a woman to philander than it is for a man, but did two wrongs ever make a right? Did any wife ever bring her husband to the law for the narrow act of philandering? Or did she ever path herself? If children have an immoral father, isn't it all the more important that their mother should keep herself above reproach? They should have something clean and decent to tie to.

But I can't agree with you that a mother and father stand on the same plane in the home. It is infinitely more important that children should have a good mother than a good father, because the mother who is a drunkard, who is a playboy, who is a gambler, who is a woman of loose morals, they are babes and her influence is far more potent than the father's.

Abstractly, women have the right to do all the things that men do, but let's hope and pray they won't exercise it.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a girl 20 years old, an only child. Quiet, studious, do good work at school and an obedient to my parents, but here she comes, a womanly father, who is pure to notions that are veritable antiquities, informed that I was a painted doll and must leave off lipstick and nail polish, which are all the cosmetics that I use. Now I have always worn lipstick and am just a plain freak without it. Surely common sense should tell him that I wear it when he is not around. However, I am afraid that some time there will be a day of reckoning when I defy him and put it on when we are going out to dinner, and I fear his wrath. My father is a grand man and a wonderful provider, but he is a domineering tyrant whose will must be obeyed. Our house is just a barracks where the war is never over. I have never had a steady boy friend or even of him. What to do?

Answer: Well, if you are one of the girls who put on their lipstick with a trowel and whose mouths always looks like a raw out of butcher's meat, I don't blame your father. But if you use it delicately and artistically, he is foolish to object to it. It is the abuse, not the use, of cosmetics that is wrong. I think that I was a painted doll and must leave off lipstick and nail polish, which are all the cosmetics that I use. Now I have always worn lipstick and am just a plain freak without it. Surely common sense should tell him that I wear it when he is not around. However, I am afraid that some time there will be a day of reckoning when I defy him and put it on when we are going out to dinner, and I fear his wrath. My father is a grand man and a wonderful provider, but he is a domineering tyrant whose will must be obeyed. Our house is just a barracks where the war is never over. I have never had a steady boy friend or even of him. What to do?

THE COOK'S CORNER

ALMOND TEA CAKES

6 tablespoons shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup milk, 3 egg whites, beaten, 1 teaspoon almond flavoring. Cream shortening, blend in sugar until light and fluffy. Sift flour and measure and sift three times with baking powder and salt. Add alternately with milk mixture to the creamed mixture. Add about one-third of the dry and stir ingredients at a time and stir each time until smooth. Gently fold in the beaten egg whites. Pour into a greased 8-inch cake pan and bake in a moderate oven 350°F. for about 40 minutes. When cool cut in different shapes and size. Decorate with bits of candied crystallized fruit, etc. Makes about sixteen cakes.

BACON OLIVES

The stuffing in these bacon olives in the following recipe can be made of any scraps of meat, game or poultry, liver, etc., sufficient to fill 12 olives. Ingredients—1-4 lb. cooked meat minced; add 16 pieces of bacon some nice pieces of toast, 3 tablespoons breadcrumbs, 1 teaspoon chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon chopped onion, seasoning, 1-2 teaspoon dried herbs, a little egg. Method—Mix all the ingredients, including bacon and toast, together. Put tablespoon of the mixture on each slice of bacon, roll up and put on a baking tin. Cook 15 minutes in a moderate oven. Dish at once on squares of buttered toast, putting 2 olives on each slice. Quantity would be sufficient for eight people. If you use any scraps of meat they should be put through a mincer and less breadcrumbs be used.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I be more economical in the use of sugar when sweetening fruit punch or other beverages?

A. Make a syrup of sugar and water for this purpose. It is far easier to govern the sweetness and it is also more economical.

Q. How can I cause the silk underclothing to iron perfectly?

A. Fold it when dry and wrap in the center of the bundle of sprinkled clothes. It will absorb just enough dampness.

Q. How can I brighten the fireplace bricks?

A. By first scrubbing with hot soapsuds, then applying a coat of hot boiler oil, using a paint brush.

ON DRESSING OF BRIDESMAIDS

Without a doubt the wedding day is of all others the most special day of the bride herself, and for at least once, in all her life, the world moves to obey her slightest behest.

But, if by chance this is to be your one day of days, here's a plea for the merry maidens who form your bridal cortege. When you are completely engrossed in the schemes for wedding frocks and hats, remember for a moment your friends who are to play second, or third—or fourth fiddle to you on this all-important occasion.

Yes, you may suggest that you give your bridesmaids a break when it comes to the decision on dresses. Choose, if you please, mademoiselle the bride, frocks which in spite of their ethereal look, are neither too terribly expensive nor too utterly impossible for wear after the wedding is a thing of the past. They indicate loose parts which, if unattended, will wear away rapidly.

Offer Cash Prizes For Royal Menu

(By Jessie Read, Home Economist)

Every Canadian eye is focussed toward the one major event in Canadian history for this year. The coming of the King and Queen fascinates the imagination of every one. There is barely an idea in connection with commemorating the event that has not been worked out in some manner. Interviews with those who are to play a major part in the event, and pictures of the places where happenings are to take place have filled the pages of the press for some months. Even the food they are to eat is being discussed in connection with catering companies has sponsored a contest with many cash prizes for the best all-round Canadian menu that might be served at the Royal Visitation.

That should be rather an interesting subject, by the way, when you think that all the provinces have dishes that are distinctly native to that province and yet there are certain dishes that are universal across Canada. For instance, although we speak of British Columbia as a great apple province, good apples are pretty universal across the Dominion so that Apple Pie has become a standard Canadian dish. Serve this with Canadian Cheddar cheese to make a dish that will almost win "O Canada."

Canadian bacon is a familiar way to describe back bacon outside of the borders of our own country. The word "bacon" is a term used by Canadian cooks have learned to present this very attractive Canadian food and it is surely one thing that might be included in the menu of a Canadian dinner.

Salads—and in particular fruit salads—would be innovations to visitors from overseas who as a matter of fact think that some of our very best arrangements are nothing but dyspeptic concoctions bent on thoroughly destroying the human race.

Certainly this visit of the King and Queen to Canada is making everyone thoroughly Canadian-conscious in a way that they never have been before.

Training a Maid

Training a maid to serve dinner requires perseverance. The trick is to remove the maid from the list on perfect service from the start. The bride's new maid will take pride in doing the job well if she is trained in the right way. Here are some training tips for brides: Service should be from the guest's left. Dishes may be removed from the guest's left or right, although households now require both serving and removing from the left, in order to avoid confusion.

The maid should hold serving dishes with the right hand, the left hand; that makes it easier for the guest to reach the dishes. Hot dishes should have a napkin folded as a pad underneath them. Service dishes should be arranged as a rule—should be arranged so the handles are toward the person being served.

Dishes of one course should not be removed until every one at the table has finished eating that course. (The old signaling system is still good. Under that, the person who has finished places his knife on the upper right-hand rim of the plate—sharp edge in. The fork goes right next to it.)
