Canada Seeks 12-Mile Territorial Water Limit

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's seven-man delegation to the International Conference on the Law of the Sea in Geneva, Feb. 24, will claim a 12-mile limit for Canadian territorial waters. However, officials said Monday, the delegation will be ready to compromise if the 80 countries cannot agree to the extension from the present three miles. An acceptable compromise would involve a "contiguous zone" of nine miles—in addition to the present limit—thus giving Canada control primarily over fisheries up to 12 miles from shore. In effect, Canada's delegation headed by Hon. George Drew, Canadian high commissioner to London, will support general principles of the law of the sea recommended by the United Nations' commission on international law.

THOUGHTS FOR OUR TIME

BY HIS EMINENCE CARDINAL McGUIGAN

CONFIDENCE MUST BE CHILD-LIKE

In order for us to speak of God, we are forced by the inadequacy of our understanding, by the limitations of human intelligence in the face of His infinite being, to resort to analogies.

Our minds simply cannot comprehend God and our human words cannot express the ineffable. Our attempts at expression, however, can and do help us to think about God but always imperfectly and from one aspect of His Divine simplicity.

Thus if we say He is All Just, we must not forget that He is at the same time All Merciful and that because of His simplicity and unity Justice or Mercy is really God considered under one aspect. Thus human language gives us a partial description of God by a consideration of one of His attributes; it cannot give us an entire, a comprehensive description.

In teaching His disciples to pray, Our Lord told them and us to call God, Father—"Thus therefore shall you pray: Our Father." The full content, the full meaning of this word, as applied to God, is beyond our comprehension. We know what an earthly father is, his function, his characteristics; and what a wealth of tender memories that word fosters, what a picture it conjures up of fathers who in quiet and virile dignity watch over and provide for their children.

PERFECT LOVE

Yet we cannot just transfer that picture, those memories to God, removing the imperfections of earthly fathers and raising their good qualities to the highest degree we can imagine. Such a procedure, while it does help us to know better God's regard for us, does not do Him justice, it does not convey the perfect knowledge of His love and wisdom of God in His care for us. Therefore we must accept and realize this limitation and make analogies for it in our thoughts about God, as our Father.

If, when we recite the Our Father, our thoughts stop with a brief consideration of the Fatherhood of God, we have failed to consider the other term of the relationship. That is, if God is our Father, we are His children, we can understand perfectly; it is something in our experience, for all have been or are children.

In its first years the child is utterly helpless, and completely dependent for all its necessities. Yet even at this period the child manifests orally inordinate desires for affection or attention—desires that must be curbed and trained by the firm hand of a father.

Though as a rule the father is, in the eyes of his child, the greatest and best in every respect, there are times when conflicts might arise. For a child usually sees only one aspect, one side of a question or a situation.

Many times fathers have had to suffer unjustly the ingratitude or scorn or rebellion of their children, at the very moment they were striving hardest to show their love. The child in peevish self-will is blind to the true motives and reasonings of a loving father who is trying to secure the goodness and happiness of his child.

DEPEND ON GOD

God is our heavenly Father; He created us and in His wisdom has provided for all our needs. We are completely dependent on Him at all times. His infinite perfections have ordained and ordered all things to lead us to perfection and happiness.

The child's limitations, hinted at above, in comparison to his human father, are much less than our own compared to God. For often we, His children, display the unreasonable and short-sighted attitude of children.

We may cry for something that will prove harmful to us, and put when our wise Father refuses to pamper our will. Or we may complain that our circumstances are not the same as another's and use this as an excuse to justify our actions.

And certainly our Heavenly Father, has not been spared the injustice of ingratitude, scorn, rebellion and malice from His children. For we, like petulant children, see one small aspect of the Divine plan for our perfection and happiness and tend to regard Divine decrees as op-

Liberals Promise 25 Million Scholarship, Bursary Program

OTTAWA (CP) — A university scholarship and bursary program that would cost $25,000,000 a year after four years of operation will be established if the Liberals are elected March 31, Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson promised Monday.

As a further measure to help university students a self-sustaining loan fund would be set up, he told a press conference.

Mr. Pearson said the scholarships and bursaries would be established in consultation with the provinces. There would be 2,500 scholarships and 7,500 bursaries awarded by the National Conference of Canadian Universities.

Scholarships would be awarded for four years and have a value of $1,000 a year. Bursaries would be for four years and be worth $500 a year.

"The awarding of the scholarships and bursaries would be by open and competitive examination conducted in the two official languages (English and French) by the National Conference of Canadian Universities," he said.

40,000 AFTER 4 YEARS

The estimated number of scholarships and bursaries from the fourth year on would be 40,000. Mr. Pearson said the university loan fund also would be administered by the National Conference of Canadian Universities. Loans would be interest free during university attendance and for the first year after graduation.

After that the loans would be repayable in four years at an interest rate of four per cent.

Mr. Pearson said the scholarships and bursaries would constitute free education — to some degree — for those university students who could qualify for it.

During the national Liberal convention in January delegates endorsed the principle of free education at all levels. The resolution called for establishment of a wide system of scholarships and bursaries coupled with a national loan fund, providing students with interest-free money necessary for higher education.

Will Use Force To Halt Rebels

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — President Fulgencio Batista promised Monday to use all the force necessary to bring a halt to a fresh outbreak of killings and sabotage by Cuban rebels.

The president accused former president Carlos Prío Socarras, rebel leader Fidel Castro and Cuban Communists of joining hands in a campaign "to burn, destroy and kill."

Rebel attempts to topple his government have failed, Batista said, because the people, the government and the armed forces want to solve Cuba's political troubles through the elections June 1. He promised a hands-off policy in the campaigning, although he personally favored a Prime Minister Andres Rivero Aguiar, the presidential nominee of four pro-government political parties.
