

Some Good Advice.

Don't talk about you self. If there is no subject more interesting to you, something is quite wrong in your moral vision. You are too nearsighted, and require glasses which will bring far-away objects nearer, and somehow push the one near object farther off. It may be very pleasant to you to talk always about yourself in every company, but you are to remember that other people may not be so deeply interested as you are in the things, however fine or brilliant, which you have said or done. Cultivate modesty and self-denial. Leave at least some little interest in the talk about yourself for others to say a word about themselves. Even if you are entirely satisfied that your object is the most important and most improving that can be discussed, remember that other people may not yet think so, and that it will take time to educate them to the self-denial necessary to make them content to sit forever invisible in the blaze of your brilliance. There is in impression, too, among many people that the desire to talk of one's self savours of vanity, and it will require some time and considerable adroitness on your part to overcome this feeling and convince your friends that you are thoroughly humble, and that your aim is always pressing yourself and your affairs and exploits into the conversation is a perfectly unselfish one, purely for the enlightenment and up-building of others Westminster Teacher.

Disease in the Glass.

Undoubtedly people very often do contract disease by drinking from glasses used by others, remarked a bartender to a reporter of the St. Louis Globe. Just think how the beer drinker is served in the ordinary saloon. Look in on the crowd of roughs and see them stagger up to the bar and take the horrid mug in their hand and drain it to the last drop. Then see the filthy wretch behind the bar take each glass and make a pretense of rinsing it in a slop of dirty water, which has done the same service for the whole day before. The mouth from which that glass has been taken may be foul with loathsome disease. In first-class saloons all the pains possible are taken and the glasses may be considered clean. Some say however, that it is impossible to cleanse a beer glass with a simple turn of the wrist; a glass, clear and smooth used only for whiskey, is more easily cleaned. The dainty drinker should provide his own glass or cup. The barkeeper would not at all be astonished to see you set your own glass on the counter. A great many customers do carry their own nice little silver drinking cup.

Enjoy Life.

What a truly beautiful world we live in! Nature gives us grandeur of mountains, glens and oceans, and thousands of means of enjoyment. We can desire no better when in perfect health; but how often do the majority of people feel like giving it up disheartened, discouraged and worn out with disease, when there is no occasion for this feeling, as every sufferer can easily obtain satisfactory proof, that Green's August Flower will make them free from disease, as when born. Dyspepsia and liver complaint are the direct causes of seventy-five per cent. of such maladies as biliousness, sick headache, costiveness, nervous prostration, indigestion, dizziness of the head, palpitation of the heart, and other distressing symptoms. Three doses of August Flower will prove its wonderful effect. Sample bottle, 10 cts. Try it.
