Human Nature in the Steerage.

H. Phelps Whitmarsh writes of "The Steerage of Today" in The Century. Mr. Whitmarsh, who crossed the ocean in the steerage himself, says: To me the most noticeable thing about the life was the ease with which the yoke of civilization was thrown off. If conditions be favorable, I opine that a large proportion of the steerage passengers throw back to their Darwinian ancestry about the third day out. Away from home, country and religious influences, unrestrained by custom and conventionality, bound by no laws of action and separated from all that force of opinion so strong in the world ashore, they let themselves go and allow their baser natures to run riot. No sooner has the seasickness left them than they growl and snarl over their food like dogs, scrambling for the choice pieces and running off to their bunks with them; they grow quarrelsome; their talk is lewd and insulting; brute strength is in the ascendant, and, without shame, both sexes show the animal side of their natures. But most apparent and obnoxious are the filthy habits into which many of them fall. The sea seems utterly to demoralize them. Some of them will remain for days in their berths, where, without changing their clothes, they eat, sleep and are sick with the utmost impartiality and without the blessing of soap and water. Hence the steerage as a whole, the "married quarters" (where there were children) in particular, was ill smelling and otherwise objectionable.

THE DEACON'S DARTER MABEL.

She isn't much on dress an such, Like maidens in the city. It mayn't be only jes' a touch Of goodness makes her pretty. To keep from blushin when she speaks Our boys, leas'twise, ain't able. Of her they dream for weeks an weeks, The deacon's darter Mabel.

Across the aisle in church she sits At every Sunday meetin. An half the fellers lose their wits Whene'er she smiles a greetin. She ain't no fairy, sprite nor elf, Like those of song an fable. She's jes' her own dear little self, The deacon's darter Mabel.

You see her golden curls an swear A halo rests above her. There ain't a one of us 'd dare To own how much we love her. An, as fer dress, canned fruit that's good Ain't bettered by the label. It's jes' the same with womanhood, The deacon's darter Mabel.

—Roy Farrell Greene in New York Journal.

Appendixless Appendicitis.

The staff of a medical institution in this city were nonplused a day or two since when they undertook to perform an operation for appendicitis. After a careful and minute search among the contents of the abdominal cavity no appendix could be found. There was inflammation and adhesions and all sorts of trouble with other organs, but appendix there was none, and so no appendicitis. This, however, is not likely to interfere with the appendicitis business, for there were lots of other superfluous things which, in the absence of an appendix, were removed, and the desired result was obtained.—Portland Oregonian.

A Compromise.

"I don't suppose," said the wife, "that you mailed those letters I gave you today, John."

"No," said John cheerfully, "but I did those you gave me last week, my dear."

Sometimes policy and honesty go and in hand.—Cincinnati Commercial Appeal.

Four Dollars per Year

Personal observation has taught me that not one person in a hundred knows how to smoke a cigar properly. For instance, many men, after buying their cigars, stick them between their teeth and chew the ends off recklessly, thereby ruining and loosening the wrapper. When they light their cigars and puff away as if their very lives depended upon finishing them in a hurry. Thus the finest cigar will burn irregularly, and the smoker will, nine times out of ten, lay the blame on the cigar. The cigar may be to blame, but in most cases the fault lies in the way it has been handled.

After a cigar has been bought the end should be cut smoothly off by a clipper or sharp knife. The reverse end should then be placed in the mouth and the cigar blown through. This removes all the little particles of dust which cannot be avoided in the manufacture and prevents them from being inhaled into the throat and from producing coughing. The cigar should then be lit, and particular attention should be paid to its being thoroughly ignited all over the surface of the end. Then instead of puffing away like a steam engine the smoker will find that three or four puffs every minute make the best way to enjoy the cigar. The smoke should be kept in the mouth a short time in order to appreciate the flavor of the tobacco. Then it should be emitted slowly.

In case one side of the cigar should burn and leave a ragged edge on the other side it is not necessary to relight it as often as many people do. A gentle blow through the cigar toward the lighted end will ignite the ragged side, and it will burn regularly. Smoking this way is a pleasure. It frets me to see a man smoking a cigar who does not know how to enjoy it, and I often feel like giving him a few words of advice and would do so were it not for the fear of offending him.—Washington Star.

A woman's headaches may come from several causes. She may have a headache arising from nervousness, or from digestive disturbances. Nine cases in ten, her headaches come from disorders peculiar to her sex. It may show itself in the symptoms which are characteristic of a dozen disorders. Thousands of times, women have been treated for the wrong disorders. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was recommended for the sole purpose of relieving womankind of these ills and pains. Thousands of women have testified that after taking treatment from several physicians without benefit, the "Favorite Prescription" cured them completely and quickly. It has been used for over thirty years, and has an unbroken record of success.

The woman who hesitates is invited to send 21 one-cent stamps to cover only the cost of mailing a copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, which contains plain, clear information about all the organs of the human body and their diseases.
