The bidding:

Opening lead—nine of hearts.

The odd thing about Sylvia's game was that so many of her triumphs were scored as the result of some gross misconception of a principle she had supposedly assimilated.

Sylvia never intentionally varied from what she understood to be the proper bid or play. In fact, many times she would woefully follow instructions previously issued to her, even though these hurried suggestions and admonitions by various incensed partners often seemed to conflict with one another.

One day, playing in the expert game as usual, Sylvia held the South hand. It was only a few weeks after she had joined the club. Her knowledge of the game was very limited, of course, since she had only vaguely known that spades ranked higher than diamonds when she first became a member.

But at the time this remarkable deal came up, Sylvia had already learned about the hold-up play in notrump. Her numerous harassed and tormented partners had finally impressed upon her the necessity of refusing to win immediately the first trick of the suit led by the opening leader.

It is no wonder then that, when West decided to open the nine of hearts and East signaled with the six, Sylvia played the seven!

This extraordinary play is indicative of the lengths to which Sylvia was willing to go to please her partners.

West continued with a heart and Sylvia won the eight with the ten. She led the jack of diamonds. West took the king and returned a spade. Sylvia won and led the ten of diamonds. East won and was helpless. A heart return could accomplish nothing—Sylvia still had the A-Q.

So East returned a spade. Sylvia took it and returned a diamond, establishing the suit. She now had nine cold tricks. The battle was over.

Later analysis revealed that if Sylvia had won the opening heart lead with the ten, she would have been defeated. Sylvia would not have been able to establish the diamond suit before East established the hearts, and would have gone down.

Ike, PM Make Hit On TV Program

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan elicited solidly Monday night in their unscripted television discussion of world destinies.

A small audience watching the performance in London's Press Club was impressed. Three political commentators, discussing the program in a following broadcast, gave it good marks, though two had some reservations.

President Eisenhower's personality came through with strong simplicity.

Macmillan, once regarded as a TV failure, was at ease throughout. He spoke freely and with conviction.

In 1955 political broadcasts, the prime minister seemed wooden and lifeless.

HIGH INTEREST LEVEL

In terms of personalities involved, the broadcast ranked in interest on the international plane with the one given by Russia's Nikita Khrushchev and Nikolai Bulganin when they visited Britain four years ago.

For Eisenhower, it came as the seal on the great personal triumph he has already registered.

The man whom British Liberals label the "holier man" left no possible doubt of his vigor. To most viewers, he must have seemed the Gie of the wartime days.

For Macmillan, it probably meant political kudos.

The prime minister is expected to call an election in mid-October, and his part in Monday night's broadcast will almost certainly strengthen the image of Macmillan as a man doing his best for peace.

Macmillan has acknowledged with disarming frankness, privately and publicly, the turn of events that have played the spotlight upon him on election eve.

Havoc Is Seen In Germ War

WINNIPEG (CP)—Sir Robert Watson-Watt, inventor of radar, said Monday that a small and technically backward nation could break havoc on the world with biological or chemical weapons.

Sir Robert, who attended the recent conference of scientists at the Pugwash, N.S., home of American industrialist Cyrus Eaton, commented on a statement issued after the conference which dealt with biological and chemical weapons.

He said microbes, viruses and toxic products could be produced cheaply on a significant scale "even in a country not highly advanced technically."

Mass or individual sabotage could result, he said. The simultaneous use of "two or more pathogenic agents might assist spread of infection and confuse diagnosis."
