MINISTERIAL BANQUET

THE QUEEN'S SPEECH.

Irish and Other Affairs.

LONDON, Feb. 8. The Queen's speech was read at the Ministerial banquet this evening. After congratulating the country upon the pacific foreign relations, it announces the intention of the Government to introduce a bill declaring squares and thoroughfares unsuitable for public gathering. A bill of broad scope dealing with Ireland's land valuation and an English Local Government bill. The speech expresses satisfaction at the diminution of crime and the improved social condition of Ireland. The other measures announced are bills relating to land transfer and tithes amendment of the liability companies acts, employers liability for accidents, and improved technical education.

The speech does not refer to the European crisis. The reference to foreign relations is devoted chiefly to the Afghan boundary settlement and sugar bounties conference. The Government issued an imperative whip instructing its supporters to be present in the House of Commons before the address in reply to the Queen's speech is moved. The attendance of Conservative members is necessary, because there is reason to believe the Parnellites will attempt to raise the question of privilege regarding the imprisonment of their colleagues.

CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS

Outspoken Against Commercial Union.

OTTAWA, Feb. 8. The annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association was held this afternoon with a very large attendance. A census, by means of circulars, showed that since 1881 the output of the manufacturing industry has increased ninety per cent. President Cowan, in his address, spoke in favor of the National Policy, and attributed increased business to it. He did not see anything alarming in the increase of the public debt, referred to commercial union as a "nebulous undefined something," and said the inducement held out to us was a market already overstocked with the goods we had to sell. The following resolution was passed: "That the Canadian manufacturing Association are entirely opposed to commercial union with the United States, and to any other political proposition that might imperil our existing relations with Great Britain or prejudice the political status of the Dominion or welfare of the Canadian manufacturing industries."

Contraband Opium.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Feb. 8. Last night Ottawa's Special Officers J. C. Houghton and J. D. Fry captured $25,000 worth of opium at Redwood, N. Y., a short distance above this place on the other side of the river. The opium was brought from China via Vancouver, thence by the Canada Pacific Railway to this place. It appears that large quantities of this article have been smuggled across from this neighborhood to the States by ferries in summer and sleighs in winter, which were met by wagons or sleighs on the American side, and then shipped to New York as butter, eggs, etc., while the officers had been watching for the operation. Large quantities of other contraband goods have been intercepted.

Respect for the Laws.

Supreme Court.

THURSDAY, Feb. 9.

George Alley vs. Harrison Loring, an action to recover damages for losses sustained while on a voyage on the steamer Merimack, wrecked on the Nova Scotia coast last July. In this case the rule nisi granted in Chambers to show cause why all proceedings should not be set aside, and which was argued in the earlier part of the term, was this morning dismissed with costs by Mr. Justice Peters. The libel case of Fitzgerald vs. Frame has been postponed until the June term.

Shoeling.

It is generally the owner's fault when a young horse makes trouble the first time he is shod. If colts are handled rightly from the time they are foaled there will be no trouble in picking up their feet and working with them, as long as it is necessary to put the shoes on at least. The blacksmith shop is generally a place that is calculated to scare and excite an old and gentle horse, and it is not to be wondered at that young horses feel shy and scary when ushered into such a place. When frightened by their surroundings and the unnatural condition of standing on three legs while the other is held up by some burly fellow who is ready to yell at them at the top of his voice, it is no wonder that young horses will sometimes become vicious and troublesome. If you want to avoid all the danger of spoiling your best breed and most valuable young horses, don't neglect to handle their feet often, and have them become used to it before they are obliged to go through the trying ordeal in a place where they will do well to keep their wits without any extra ordeal to go through.

Sheep Notes.

Sheep should be entirely secure from any exciting causes, or liability to be worried by other animals. Let them have all the sweet hay or corn fodder they will eat in addition to the grass, and feed half a pint to a pint of corn meal per day per head in two feeds, varying occasionally with an equivalent of peas or oats.

Combining sheep husbandry with grain growing, pees out an uncomfortable gap in the finances, when without it the farmer's business would, for a while, be all outgo and no income.

Doesets are popular in England. They are said to be excellent nurses, and to have more twins and triplets than any other breed. A yearling ram's fleece weighs ten or twelve pounds.

Rain injures the wool even on a sheep's back. It is well to have a shed so situated that the sheep can take refuge in it when they choose.
