

CFS launched Days of Action

students are not aware of how to use it.

Doucette feels that too many students seem resigned to the increasing costs of education. As a result, fewer individuals are willing to speak against the issue.

"There's this rut of resignation," Doucette said. "But it's so wrong. The more you exercise your voice, the more things change."

Every full-time student at UPEI is a member of the CFS. Doucette hopes that students see this membership as a chance for a stronger voice. Doucette was pleased that around a dozen students signed up to become more involved with the CFS during the Days of Action.

"Students need to have an awareness of education and of their rights as students," she said. "There is a lot of hope. All we have to do is exercise our voices."

The UPEI Breezeway hosted the CFS's Days of Action info table. Traffic was relatively thin, but those who stopped by were appreciative.

MACLEAN'S MAGAZINE
INVITES UPEI STUDENTS
TO VOICE THEIR OPINIONS

MacLean's Magazine is preparing its fourth annual guide to universities, and is seeking input on campuses' strengths and weaknesses. Specifically, they are looking for answers to three questions:

1. Who are the strongest and most popular professors?
2. What is the hottest hang-out?
3. What are significant developments at UPEI?

THE CADRE
INVITES UPEI STUDENTS
TO VOICE THEIR OPINIONS

The Cadre is seeking input on students' opinions on the infamous MacLean's university guide. Specifically, we are looking for the following:

1. Do you think that the MacLean's guide is an accurate assessment of post-secondary education?
2. Why do you think that UPEI scores low on the rating annually?
3. Should administration be concerned about UPEI's representation in the magazine?
